Vandenberg Lashes Out At Russia

Senator Says U. S. Good Will Not Returned

Call For Lend-Lease Settlement Ignored

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich) said tonight that Russia has failed to reciprocate the fair play and good will extended by the United States in foreign relations.

Vandenberg, president pro tem of the Senate and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was referring specifically to Moscow's failure to answer requests for the settlement of lend-lease accounts.

Speaking at a dinner given by Michigan Chambers of Commerce in honor of the state congressional delegation, Vandenberg said:

"It should be our anxiety to establish mutual fair play and mutual goodwill" in Soviet-American relationships.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that we have rarely failed in this obligation. On the other hand, it seems to me that this can not be said of Moscow."

Vandenberg said that the United States lend-leased $11,300,000,000 to Russia during the war and never hesitated "long enough to count the cost."

U. S. Requests Ignored

Within the past year, he added, "Russia has, to all intents and purposes, completely ignored four American diplomatic requests to open negotiations for settlement of these accounts."

He also said Moscow ignored notes from the State Department relative to 125 merchant ships lend-leased to Russia and said these are "just a couple of symbolic incidents."

"I respectfully suggest," Vandenberg said, "that such experiences are not calculated to fertilize mutual goodwill and understanding."

He asserted it could not be considered an unfriendly act or out of keeping with the dignity of the United States government "to insist upon somewhat prompter official mail from Moscow."

"After all," he said, "Washington is not an inconsequential way station on an unimportant RFD. If we allow others to think it is, they may get the habit; and that could be a dangerous misconception for them as well as us."

Vandenberg said he is "equally sure that Russia wants peace just as much as America wants peace."

Advocates Cooperation

He advocated "whole hearted cooperation with Russia—and vice-versa—in seeking universal, multilateral disarmament—if, as and when the other great powers will enter such a system on a basis of absolute and workable disciplines which prevent bad faith."

Vandenberg cautioned, however, against repeating "the mistakes of yesterday when we disarmed alone" or "to depend merely upon fickle words for our reliance in respect to the attitudes of others."

Vandenberg expressed hope that the forthcoming Moscow Council of Foreign Ministers "may bring better understanding between us in all aspects of our relationships.

"To this end, I hope, among other things," he said, "that the Soviets will find it convenient and advisable to keep their promise—their very definite promise—to allow unlimited entry and unlimited facilities for the American press to cover the conference."

Message From Stricken Vessel Is Broken Off

MANILA, Feb. 14—(AP)—The SS Lake Sapor, American freighter aground on a reef 50 miles south of Iwo Jima, messaged at 8:58 p. m. (7:58 a. m. Friday, EST) that "we are abandoning ship south of . . ."

USSR Calls For UN A-Bomb Ban As First Step Toward Control

Gromyko Assails U. S. For Making Weapons

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Feb. 14 (AP)—Russia demanded today that the United Nations ban production of the atom bomb as the first step toward an international atomic control system and sharply criticized the United States for continued manufacture of mass-destruction weapons.

Categorically rejecting the American control plan, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told the Security Council that "atomic energy is still being used exclusively for the production of weapons which by their very nature are weapons of aggression."

"They are destined mainly for attacks on large cities with numerous civilian population, but not on the armies of an enemy," the Russian declared. "The nature of atomic weapons is such that they can not be regarded as weapons of defense."

Gromyko then added that "the continuation of the production of atomic weapons is used as a certain lever for political pressure on some other nations."

"Minority Report," Austin Says

Branding the principal points of the American plan as violations of the United Nations Charter and of the General Assembly's December 14 resolution on general arms reduction, he said firmly that "they must be rejected." Gromyko did say that work could go ahead on "revising" the American proposals now but reiterated that the bomb itself must be scrapped before any system actually could be set up.

Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate, termed Gromyko's speech "a minority report" and said he would have more to say when he saw Gromyko's revisions in writing.

Austin's only optimistic note was a comment that Gromyko's speech "encourages us to believe that on policy we are in agreement."

In opening general debate on the whole atomic question before the council, Gromyko, in effect, restated all the original proposals put forward last summer by the Soviet Union. These suggestions were re-

Britain Winning Battle Against Shortage Of Coal

Has "Turned Corner"; U. S. Aid Is Declined

LONDON, Feb. 14. (AP)—The government announced tonight that there were signs Britain had "turned the corner" on the road back to industrial production and lighted homes, but despite encouraging trends in the coal shortage, unemployment continued to spread.

Prime Minister Attlee met with his nine man "coal cabinet" to consider an approximate date for restoration of at least part of the power cut off completely from more than half the nation's industries in the gravest fuel shortage in the nation's history.

There was no official indication of a date for the switch-on, but when it comes industry will be given priority.

Truman's Offer Declined

Sir Guy Nott-Bower, Undersecretary of the Ministry of Fuel and Power, was the author of the "turn the corner" statement, but he added that "if we have turned the corner it is 'only just.'"

His statement coincided with a note from Attlee declining with thanks the offer of President Truman to divert American coal on ships on the high seas to British ports.

Attlee said that the need for coal in Europe "is no less pressing and we could not ask that cargoes should be diverted from Europe to the United Kingdom."

Unemployment, estimated at past the 5,000,000 mark, continued to grow.

But against these discouraging developments there were signs of improvement.

Mine Production Rises

In South Wales, mines were almost back to normal operations after weather interruptions and there was a possibility some pits would work on Sunday. Strip mines in Kent reported production this week slightly above normal despite heavy snow.

All shafts were operating in the big northeastern coal fields around Newcastle and railroads were speeding delivery of empty cars. A few

Texas Company's Pipe Line Bid Is Accepted By WAA

Justice Department Must Approve Sale

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The government knocked down its Big and Little Inch pipe lines for $143,127,000 today to carry natural gas to the East.

The War Assets Administration snapped up the cash offer by the Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, of Houston, Tex.—only $2,700,000 short of what the lines cost to build—and Administrator Robert M. Littlejohn expressed hope the company would take over by May 1.

Justice Department Okay Needed

But first:

1. The Justice Department must approve from the anti-trust standpoint. Littlejohn said he was informed it could rule within a week.

2. The General Power Commission must grant a certificate of convenience and necessity. Sen. Myers (D-Pa) predicted the commission will "never permit the transmission of natural gas to the Eastern seaboard" and insisted there is "nothing final at all" about the sale.

The 1,340-mile pipe lines were built in 1942 and 1943 to carry oil and gasoline from the Southwest to the New York-Philadelphia area when German U-boats were attacking water shipments and tankers were needed overseas. Coal and railroad interests have fought all proposals to use them for gas since the government offered them for sale.

Company President Elated

The Texas Eastern Transbmission Corporation is a new company formed in January and headed by bulky, round-faced E. Holley Poe, New York, an oil and gas operator. Its offer—by far the biggest ever received for war surplus—was entered as the highest of 11 sealed proposals opened Monday.

Littlejohn, plainly elated, announced the sale at a news conference. Congressmen from the oil and coal producing state of Pennsylvania did not share Littlejohn's elation, however. The state forbids stream-crossing permits to any but petroleum products and has held that natural gas is not such a product.

United Nations Will Get Holy Land Problem

Britain May Ask Special Meeting

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Britain is going to shed another of her problem children and hand Palestine's woes over to the United Nations.

The decision was announcel today at the final meeting with Arabs in the unsuccessful London conference on Palestine by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, who admitted failure in Britain's long efforts to puh forward an acceptable compromise between Jews and Arabs.

A thorn in Britain's side ever since Gen. Allenby drove the Turks out of Jerusalem in 1917, Palestine probably will continue to be policed by 100,000 British troops and be governed by the administration set up under the League of Nations mandate until the United Nations decides what to do.

But Britain is in such haste to shelve the problem in the strifetern land that a Foreign Office spokesman indicated she may ask the Security Council to call a special meeting of the United Nations General Assembly to consider the situation.

Under ordinary procedure the General Assembly would not meet until September.

There was no definite indication that Britain, which has set up plans for the independence of India and Burma and initiated a military withdrawal from Egypt, would propose her permanent withdrawal from Palestine, too.

Whether she will recommend a specific plan for Palestine to the United Nations, or merely turn over all the plans that have been suggested without recommendation, may be announced in the House of Commons on Monday.

Government sources indicated, however, that the present stringent regulations on immigration and safeguards against violence among the 600,000 Jews and more than 1,000,000 Arabs would be continued for the time being.

Three Underground Members Face Death

JERUSALEM, Feb. 14 (AP)—The British announced tonight that death sentences had been confirmed on three suspected members of Irgum Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground force, and a tension-gripped Holy Land feared the underground would strike back in quick retaliation.

A government announcement said that the death sentences and a life sentence for a fourth youth had been confirmed by Lt. Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker on Wednesday, the day he relinquished his post as commander-in-chief of British troops. He has been succeeded by Maj. Gen. G. H. A. MacMillan.

The sentences were imposed by a a military court on February 10 or the four youths, who were charged with illegal possession of arms and whips. They were arrested on the night a British major and three sergeants were seized by the underground and flogged.

The three sentenced to death were Dov Ben Falman Rosenbaum, 24, Eliezer Ben Zion Kashani, 23, and Mordecai Ben Abraham Alhachi, 21, Haim Ben Aharon Gorovevsky, 17, escaped with a life sentence because of his youth.

Jewish leaders, fearing possible violence from the underground, had appealed to the government for clemency toward the four.

50 Persons Are Reported Hurt In Train Wreck

Streamliner Cracks Up At Maxville, Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—The Florida Highway Patrol said tonight about 50 persons were injured when the northbound "Orange Blossom Special" (Miami-New York), of the Seaboard Airline Railroad, was derailed at Maxville, Fla., 22 miles southwest of here.

Headquarters here said reports received from patrolmen at the wreck scene said about 30 persons were given first aid while 20 were placed in ambulances to be brought to Jacksonville hospitals.

Highway Patrolmen Fred Eskridge and Ed Reddick said there were no fatalities.

Seven cars of the steamliner were derailed and overturned, the highway patrol report said.

At Norfolk, Va., C. A. Sauls, general manager of the SAL, issued this statement:

"The Seaboard Orange Blossom Special, Northbound, was derailed and six sleeping cars and one diner turned over at Maxville, Fla., 24 miles south of Jacksonville at 7:45 p. m. today. Both tracks were blocked by the derailed cars.

"There were several passengers injured, none fatally. The injured passengers are being taken to hospitals in Jacksonville. The uninjured continued their journey northward.

"The cause of the accident is being investigated."

Truman's Mother Suffers Fractured Hip In Fall

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—President Truman learned this morning in a telephone call from his sister, Miss Mary Truman, that his mother had suffered a fractured hip in a fall, the White House said today.

He also was informed later in the day by his brother, Vivian Truman, that his mother is resting comfortably.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters the President said this is the third time the 94-year old Mrs. Martha E. Truman has suffered a fractured hip.

Walkout Of Government Employes Cripples Paris

PARIS, Feb. 14 (AP)—Paris was paralyzed this afternoon by general walkout of government employes pressing their demand for a minimum wage and protesting a government proposal to freeze wages, a situation which prompted Premier Paul Ramadier to declare that the republic might be imperiled by labor unrest.

The work stoppage lasted four hours, throwing the heart of Paris into confusion as it halted transportation and communications, and coincided with the strike of newspaper mechanical and business office employes who seeks a 25 per cent wage increase.

The strike call today was directed to 1,750,000 government employes and several hundred thousand municipal and department employes throughout France.

"There is cause to fear for our country and even for the republic," Ramadier declared before the National Assembly while police, bus and subway workers, telephone and telegraph operators, postmen, ministry clerks and other public employes abandoned their jobs for two to four hours.

"To the government employes we say: The nation has made an effort for you at a time when it could ill afford it," the Premier continued. "You have certain duties. There is a limit beyond which we cannot go. The question is whether the nation is really sovereign or whether it is special interests which will triumph."

Subways and busses were left standing where their operators walked off them at 4 p. m. Telephone, telegraph and postal communications ended at the same time. Uniformed gendarmes left their posts and joined the demonstrators. The busses and subways started up again after two hours, but hundreds of thousands of Parisian workers were unable to get home. Traffic was snarled to a halt without police or traffic lights.

Premier Ramadier had pleaded yesterday with union heads to defer strike action on the newspapers. He said their action would jeopardize the government's program to reduce the January level of prices by 10 per cent.

Sisters Who Became Brothers Are Pleased With Transformation

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Feb. 14 (AP) — Dr. W. P. Steenkamp said today that two teen-age sisters living in Lansdowne had become brothers in the last few months.

Dr. Steenkamp said that several months ago the sisters, aged 15 and 17, started undergoing physical changes which brought them medical attention. A series of operations is being performed now to permit full male development.

The girls who became boys are pleased with the transformation and have taken the names David and Daniel Muller. Their parents also are pleased, saying they always had wanted sons.

U. S. Army Major, Nine Filipinos Die In Dynamite Blast

Nine Hurt; Explosion Felt 10 Miles Away

MANILA, Saturday, Feb. 15 (AP)—A United States Army major and nine Filipinos were killed and eight Filipinos and a second United States major were injured yesterday during a fire and explosion of 22 tons of dynamite at an Air Force ammunition dump 58 miles south of Manila.

The Filipinos were killed or injured when the dynamite let go at the height of the fire with a blast felt 10 miles away.

Maj. James L. Sedore, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., an officer at a United States 13th Air Force base at Batangas, near which the fire took place, was killed when his jeep was struck by a fire truck speeding to the scene.

Maj. Peter M. O'Neill, Lynn, Mass., a passenger in the jeep, was injured seriously and was being brought to the Tenth General Hospital in Manila.

Col. William S. Eley, Suffolk, Va., commander of the base at Batangas, said a fire of unknown origin broke out in the airplane ammunition dump Thursday night. There were no casualties.

Next day, he added, while Filipino laborers were moving demolition explosives in the nearby engineer depot a second explosion took place at the dump. All the Filipino casualties were caused by this explosion.

"Twenty-two tons of dynamite went up," Eley reported. "It rocked us at headquarters here (in Batangas) 10 miles away. All damage was confined to the explosives storage area and no damage was done to civilian property."

Killed By Baseball

EAGLE ROCK, Va., Feb. 14—(AP)—Struck on the head by a baseball while playing at the high school here yesterday afternoon, Hubert Marshall Biggs, 17-year-old student, died of the injury early this morning in the C. and O. Hospital at Clifton Forge.

OPA Turns To Supreme Court In Sugar Battle

Industrial Rationing System Held Invalid

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — OPA, fighting a challenge to its industrial sugar rationing methods, lost in the United States Court of Appeals today and turned to the Supreme Court.

The Appeals Court, in a 2 to 1 decision, held invalid the agency's "historical use" system of rationing sugar to the bulk sweetened condensed milk industry.

OPA attorneys contended this might force scrapping of the industrial rationing system and ultimately affect its method of rationing for household use. Meanwhile, rationing continues as usual at least until March 4.

No Substitute Found

Carl Auerbach, chief OPA counsel, told the court in arguments last week that OPA officials had been unable to find any satisfactory method for industrial allocation other than the "historical use" basis. This is a formula under which sugar is rationed on the basis of use in pre-rationing periods.

On this point, Judge E. Barrett Prettyman wrote in the Appeals Court opinion:

"We do not see how or why the historical use basis is the only method x x x The injunction (ordered by a lower court) is not a sweeping invalidation of rationing or allotment."

Congress May Enter Picture

The court sustained a decision handed down February 7 by District Judge F. Dickinson Letts in a suit by the Moberly (Mo.) Milk Company.

Ordinarily the judgment would have become effective in 15 days but OPA attorneys successfully sought an extension until March 4.

Congress may be asked to settle the entire sugar problem before the high court gets around to a ruling. Authority for rationing sugar is contained in the Second War Powers Act which expires March 31. Thus Congress may rule on an administration request to extend sugar rationing for one year.

Georgia Ruling Today

McDonough, Ga., Feb. 14—(AP)—Another Superior Court decision on Georgia's governorship is set for 10 a. m. tomorrow when Judge Bond Almad has promised to say whether Herman Talmadge or Lt. Gov. M. E. Thompson is entitled to draw on executive department funds.

Armed Forces' Plea Rejected By Committee

Knutson Says Way Clear For Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—The House-Senate Budget Committee voted 50 to 22 today to slash $6,000,000,000 out of President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

It thus overrode Army and Navy protests that cuts in their funds would endanger national security and, in the words of Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee, cleared the way for a 20 per cent cut in individual income taxes.

The reduced figure of $31,500,000,000 is not necessarily the amount that will be made available for the next fiscal year. It amounts to a suggested ceiling, but Congress is not bound to stay within it.

The committee rejected all efforts, including a plea by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), to hold the budget reduction at a figure which would take fewer dollars from the $11,200,000,000 that President Truman requested for the Army and Navy.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD), of the Senate Armed Services Committee, fought the huge slash doggedly in and out of committee. He told reporters it would take $1,750,000,000 from the Army and Navy and "I refuse to vote for any thing that will hamstring our armed forces while the peace of the world is unsettled."

"Ike's" Appeal Rejected

Prior to the committee session, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff, and heads of the Army and Navy, backed by President Truman, had pleaded against cutting the armed forces budget.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal told a news conference that if Congress cuts military funds without a "full realization of our posture before the world, it would eventually invite disaster."

Wednesday night, Secretary of War Patterson said that cuts reported planned for the War Department would seriously jeopardize execution of the Army's functions.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich) told reporters that the committee action "just about amounts to the Republicans risking the national security in an effort to meet their promises to cut taxes."

The committee met behind doors closed to the press and public.

During the deliberations of the group, Gurney left the session to deliver a protest speech in the Senate in which he said that "until the United Nations is a going concern, and until it has power to compel acceptance of its decisions, the nation cannot accept disarmament."

Sen. Morse (R-Ore) told the Senate Congress should squeeze every dollar of waste out of the budget and should first determine where it was going to make a saving before committing itself to a specific budget cut.

Party Lines Crossed In Voting

"We must make up our minds what services we want to dispense with," said Morse, "and tell the American people exactly what we are going to do. The approach being made to our fiscal policies by the Republican Party is not in step with the thinking of the voters who want strict economy in government."

The Budgetary Committee rejected all proposals, members said, to stipulate that a part of the proposed savings shall be applied to retirement of the national debt.

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) described the committee's cutting action to reporters as a "flash in the dark to deceive the public."

The resolution of the committee, he noted, provides an "escape clause" that constitutes an "admission that the whole thing doesn't amount to anything."

He pointed out that the resolution says the budget "should" be cut

Luxury Of Breakfast In Bed Enjoyed By Woman Who Has Had 28 Children

TRAFALGAR, Ind., Feb. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Lester Smith enjoyed breakfast in bed today, a rare luxury for a mother who has given birth to 28 children, 13 of them at home.

She plans to be up right away, though, because she has never spent more than four days in bed following the birth of a child.

This time it was different. She became seriously ill and was taken to a hospital in Indianapolis, where her 28th child was stillborn.

Sixteen of the 28 are alive and range in age from 17 months to 27 years.

The visit to the hospital was the first time the 44-year-old farm woman had been away from her family overnight.

"Children get on some mothers' nerves but mine are a pleasure to me," said Mrs. Smith. "If I were to do over again I wouldn't change a thing.

"If we raise our children up under the fear of the Lord He helps us in these things. Most people have forgotten that."

Mrs. Smith, who married at the age of 16, has all of the work around the farm home organized and that makes it much easier.

"Each child gets a certain job to do and I see that they do that," she said.

This system leaves her enough time to teach a Sunday school class and take an active part in the work of the Nazarene Church.

Mrs. Smith has one slight regret. "I wanted 12 boys, but I suppose I won't have them," she said. She has 11.

Marshall Calls For Adequate Funds To Feed People In Occupied Areas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall asserted today in the midst of the congressional budget struggle that failure to vote adequate funds for food in the overseas occupied areas would result in an "intolerable situation."

He voiced the sharp warning at a news conference after advising in a meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "the world is in a very critical condition" politically.

Stressing that the State Department's immediate concern in the budget fight is food for occupied Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea, Marshall said:

"We cannot expect to maintain an occupation of countries like those with our troops if the people are starving."

Marshall also:

1. Said in a statement that the United States hoped all loyal political parties in Greece would bury partisan differences and get together on a program to restore political and economic health to that country.

2. Described China's financial crisis as tragic. He made clear this government had not decided on measures to help restore stability. Some economists, he said, had advised a hands-off policy.

3. Said Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane had not notified him whether he planned to return to Poland after his forthcoming visit to this country. Warsaw dispatches reported Lane would not return.

1. The Justice Department must approve from the anti-trust standpoint. Littlejohn said he was informed it could rule within a week.

2. The General Power Commission must grant a certificate of convenience and necessity. Sen. Myers (D-Pa) predicted the commission will "never permit the transmission of natural gas to the Eastern seaboard" and insisted there is "nothing final at all" about the sale.

The 1,340-mile pipe lines were built in 1942 and 1943 to carry oil and gasoline from the Southwest to the New York-Philadelphia area when German U-boats were attacking water shipments and tankers were needed overseas. Coal and railroad interests have fought all proposals to use them for gas since the government offered them for sale.

Company President Elated

The Texas Eastern Transbmission Corporation is a new company formed in January and headed by bulky, round-faced E. Holley Poe, New York, an oil and gas operator. Its offer—by far the biggest ever received for war surplus—was entered as the highest of 11 sealed proposals opened Monday.

Littlejohn, plainly elated, announced the sale at a news conference. Congressmen from the oil and coal producing state of Pennsylvania did not share Littlejohn's elation, however. The state forbids stream-crossing permits to any but petroleum products and has held that natural gas is not such a product.

United Nations Will Get Holy Land Problem

Britain May Ask Special Meeting

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Britain is going to shed another of her problem children and hand Palestine's woes over to the United Nations.

The decision was announcel today at the final meeting with Arabs in the unsuccessful London conference on Palestine by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, who admitted failure in Britain's long efforts to puh forward an acceptable compromise between Jews and Arabs.

A thorn in Britain's side ever since Gen. Allenby drove the Turks out of Jerusalem in 1917, Palestine probably will continue to be policed by 100,000 British troops and be governed by the administration set up under the League of Nations mandate until the United Nations decides what to do.

But Britain is in such haste to shelve the problem in the strifetern land that a Foreign Office spokesman indicated she may ask the Security Council to call a special meeting of the United Nations General Assembly to consider the situation.

Under ordinary procedure the General Assembly would not meet until September.

There was no definite indication that Britain, which has set up plans for the independence of India and Burma and initiated a military withdrawal from Egypt, would propose her permanent withdrawal from Palestine, too.

Whether she will recommend a specific plan for Palestine to the United Nations, or merely turn over all the plans that have been suggested without recommendation, may be announced in the House of Commons on Monday.

Government sources indicated, however, that the present stringent regulations on immigration and safeguards against violence among the 600,000 Jews and more than 1,000,000 Arabs would be continued for the time being.

Three Underground Members Face Death

JERUSALEM, Feb. 14 (AP)—The British announced tonight that death sentences had been confirmed on three suspected members of Irgum Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground force, and a tension-gripped Holy Land feared the underground would strike back in quick retaliation.

A government announcement said that the death sentences and a life sentence for a fourth youth had been confirmed by Lt. Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker on Wednesday, the day he relinquished his post as commander-in-chief of British troops. He has been succeeded by Maj. Gen. G. H. A. MacMillan.

The sentences were imposed by a a military court on February 10 or the four youths, who were charged with illegal possession of arms and whips. They were arrested on the night a British major and three sergeants were seized by the underground and flogged.

The three sentenced to death were Dov Ben Falman Rosenbaum, 24, Eliezer Ben Zion Kashani, 23, and Mordecai Ben Abraham Alhachi, 21, Haim Ben Aharon Gorovevsky, 17, escaped with a life sentence because of his youth.

Jewish leaders, fearing possible violence from the underground, had appealed to the government for clemency toward the four.

ONCE WAS PLANE—The wreckage of an Army C-45 plane (above), the bodies of its seven occupants burned beyond recognition, was found yesterday in the dismal heart of a Middle Georgia swamp. The plane burst into flames and crashed shortly after taking off from Robins Field near Macon, Ga. A searching party reached the scene of the crash after nearly 10 hours of hacking its way through the dense underbrush.

50 Persons Are Reported Hurt In Train Wreck

Streamliner Cracks Up At Maxville, Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—The Florida Highway Patrol said tonight about 50 persons were injured when the northbound "Orange Blossom Special" (Miami-New York), of the Seaboard Airline Railroad, was derailed at Maxville, Fla., 22 miles southwest of here.

Headquarters here said reports received from patrolmen at the wreck scene said about 30 persons were given first aid while 20 were placed in ambulances to be brought to Jacksonville hospitals.

Highway Patrolmen Fred Eskridge and Ed Reddick said there were no fatalities.

Seven cars of the steamliner were derailed and overturned, the highway patrol report said.

At Norfolk, Va., C. A. Sauls, general manager of the SAL, issued this statement:

"The Seaboard Orange Blossom Special, Northbound, was derailed and six sleeping cars and one diner turned over at Maxville, Fla., 24 miles south of Jacksonville at 7:45 p. m. today. Both tracks were blocked by the derailed cars.

"There were several passengers injured, none fatally. The injured passengers are being taken to hospitals in Jacksonville. The uninjured continued their journey northward.

"The cause of the accident is being investigated."

Truman's Mother Suffers Fractured Hip In Fall

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—President Truman learned this morning in a telephone call from his sister, Miss Mary Truman, that his mother had suffered a fractured hip in a fall, the White House said today.

He also was informed later in the day by his brother, Vivian Truman, that his mother is resting comfortably.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters the President said this is the third time the 94-year old Mrs. Martha E. Truman has suffered a fractured hip.

OPA Turns To Supreme Court In Sugar Battle

Industrial Rationing System Held Invalid

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—OPA, fighting a challenge to its industrial sugar rationing methods, lost in the United States Court of Appeals today and turned to the Supreme Court.

The Appeals Court, in a 2 to 1 decision, held invalid the agency's "historical use" system of rationing sugar to the bulk sweetened condensed milk industry.

OPA attorneys contended this might force scrapping of the industrial rationing system and ultimately affect its method of rationing for household use. Meanwhile, rationing continues as usual at least until March 4.

No Substitute Found

Carl Auerbach, chief OPA counsel, told the court in arguments last week that OPA officials had been unable to find any satisfactory method for industrial allocation other than the "historical use" basis. This is a formula under which sugar is rationed on the basis of use in pre-rationing periods.

On this point, Judge E. Barrett Prettyman wrote in the Appeals Court opinion:

"We do not see how or why the historical use basis is the only method x x x The injunction (ordered by a lower court) is not a sweeping invalidation of rationing or allotment."

Congress May Enter Picture

The court sustained a decision handed down February 7 by District Judge F. Dickinson Letts in a suit by the Moberly (Mo.) Milk Company.

Ordinarily the judgment would have become effective in 15 days but OPA attorneys successfully sought an extension until March 4.

Congress may be asked to settle the entire sugar problem before the high court gets around to a ruling. Authority for rationing sugar is contained in the Second War Powers Act which expires March 31. Thus Congress may rule on an administration request to extend sugar rationing for one year.

Sisters Who Became Brothers Are Pleased With Transformation

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Feb. 14 (AP) — Dr. W. P. Steenkamp said today that two teen-age sisters living in Lansdowne had become brothers in the last few months.

Dr. Steenkamp said that several months ago the sisters, aged 15 and 17, started undergoing physical changes which brought them medical attention. A series of operations is being performed now to permit full male development.

The girls who became boys are pleased with the transformation and have taken the names David and Daniel Muller. Their parents also are pleased, saying they always had wanted sons.

U. S. Army Major, Nine Filipinos Die In Dynamite Blast

Nine Hurt; Explosion Felt 10 Miles Away

MANILA, Saturday, Feb. 15 (AP)—A United States Army major and nine Filipinos were killed and eight Filipinos and a second United States major were injured yesterday during a fire and explosion of 22 tons of dynamite at an Air Force ammunition dump 58 miles south of Manila.

The Filipinos were killed or injured when the dynamite let go at the height of the fire with a blast felt 10 miles away.

Maj. James L. Sedore, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., an officer at a United States 13th Air Force base at Batangas, near which the fire took place, was killed when his jeep was struck by a fire truck speeding to the scene.

Maj. Peter M. O'Neill, Lynn, Mass., a passenger in the jeep, was injured seriously and was being brought to the Tenth General Hospital in Manila.

Col. William S. Eley, Suffolk, Va., commander of the base at Batangas, said a fire of unknown origin broke out in the airplane ammunition dump Thursday night. There were no casualties.

Next day, he added, while Filipino laborers were moving demolition explosives in the nearby engineer depot a second explosion took place at the dump. All the Filipino casualties were caused by this explosion.

"Twenty-two tons of dynamite went up," Eley reported. "It rocked us at headquarters here (in Batangas) 10 miles away. All damage was confined to the explosives storage area and no damage was done to civilian property."

Armed Forces' Plea Rejected By Committee

Knutson Says Way Clear For Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—The House-Senate Budget Committee voted 50 to 22 today to slash $6,000,000,000 out of President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

It thus overrode Army and Navy protests that cuts in their funds would endanger national security and, in the words of Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee, cleared the way for a 20 per cent cut in individual income taxes.

The reduced figure of $31,500,000,000 is not necessarily the amount that will be made available for the next fiscal year. It amounts to a suggested ceiling, but Congress is not bound to stay within it.

The committee rejected all efforts, including a plea by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), to hold the budget reduction at a figure which would take fewer dollars from the $11,200,000,000 that President Truman requested for the Army and Navy.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD), of the Senate Armed Services Committee, fought the huge slash doggedly in and out of committee. He told reporters it would take $1,750,000,000 from the Army and Navy and "I refuse to vote for any thing that will hamstring our armed forces while the peace of the world is unsettled."

"Ike's" Appeal Rejected

Prior to the committee session, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff, and heads of the Army and Navy, backed by President Truman, had pleaded against cutting the armed forces budget.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal told a news conference that if Congress cuts military funds without a "full realization of our posture before the world, it would eventually invite disaster."

Wednesday night, Secretary of War Patterson said that cuts reported planned for the War Department would seriously jeopardize execution of the Army's functions.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich) told reporters that the committee action "just about amounts to the Republicans risking the national security in an effort to meet their promises to cut taxes."

The committee met behind doors closed to the press and public.

During the deliberations of the group, Gurney left the session to deliver a protest speech in the Senate in which he said that "until the United Nations is a going concern, and until it has power to compel acceptance of its decisions, the nation cannot accept disarmament."

Sen. Morse (R-Ore) told the Senate Congress should squeeze every dollar of waste out of the budget and should first determine where it was going to make a saving before committing itself to a specific budget cut.

Party Lines Crossed In Voting

"We must make up our minds what services we want to dispense with," said Morse, "and tell the American people exactly what we are going to do. The approach being made to our fiscal policies by the Republican Party is not in step with the thinking of the voters who want strict economy in government."

The Budgetary Committee rejected all proposals, members said, to stipulate that a part of the proposed savings shall be applied to retirement of the national debt.

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) described the committee's cutting action to reporters as a "flash in the dark to deceive the public."

The resolution of the committee, he noted, provides an "escape clause" that constitutes an "admission that the whole thing doesn't amount to anything."

He pointed out that the resolution says the budget "should" be cut

Walkout Of Government Employes Cripples Paris

PARIS, Feb. 14 (AP)—Paris was paralyzed this afternoon by general walkout of government employes pressing their demand for a minimum wage and protesting a government proposal to freeze wages, a situation which prompted Premier Paul Ramadier to declare that the republic might be imperiled by labor unrest.

The work stoppage lasted four hours, throwing the heart of Paris into confusion as it halted transportation and communications, and coincided with the strike of newspaper mechanical and business office employes who seeks a 25 per cent wage increase.

The strike call today was directed to 1,750,000 government employes and several hundred thousand municipal and department employes throughout France.

"There is cause to fear for our country and even for the republic," Ramadier declared before the National Assembly while police, bus and subway workers, telephone and telegraph operators, postmen, ministry clerks and other public employes abandoned their jobs for two to four hours.

"To the government employes we say: The nation has made an effort for you at a time when it could ill afford it," the Premier continued. "You have certain duties. There is a limit beyond which we cannot go. The question is whether the nation is really sovereign or whether it is special interests which will triumph."

Subways and busses were left standing where their operators walked off them at 4 p. m. Telephone, telegraph and postal communications ended at the same time. Uniformed gendarmes left their posts and joined the demonstrators. The busses and subways started up again after two hours, but hundreds of thousands of Parisian workers were unable to get home. Traffic was snarled to a halt without police or traffic lights.

Premier Ramadier had pleaded yesterday with union heads to defer strike action on the newspapers. He said their action would jeopardize the government's program to reduce the January level of prices by 10 per cent.

Luxury Of Breakfast In Bed Enjoyed By Woman Who Has Had 28 Children

TRAFALGAR, Ind., Feb. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Lester Smith enjoyed breakfast in bed today, a rare luxury for a mother who has given birth to 28 children, 13 of them at home.

She plans to be up right away, though, because she has never spent more than four days in bed following the birth of a child.

This time it was different. She became seriously ill and was taken to a hospital in Indianapolis, where her 28th child was stillborn.

Sixteen of the 28 are alive and range in age from 17 months to 27 years.

The visit to the hospital was the first time the 44-year-old farm woman had been away from her family overnight.

"Children get on some mothers' nerves but mine are a pleasure to me," said Mrs. Smith. "If I were to do over again I wouldn't change a thing.

"If we raise our children up under the fear of the Lord He helps us in these things. Most people have forgotten that."

Mrs. Smith, who married at the age of 16, has all of the work around the farm home organized and that makes it much easier.

"Each child gets a certain job to do and I see that they do that," she said.

This system leaves her enough time to teach a Sunday school class and take an active part in the work of the Nazarene Church.

Mrs. Smith has one slight regret. "I wanted 12 boys, but I suppose I won't have them," she said. She has 11.

Marshall Calls For Adequate Funds To Feed People In Occupied Areas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall asserted today in the midst of the congressional budget struggle that failure to vote adequate funds for food in the overseas occupied areas would result in an "intolerable situation."

He voiced the sharp warning at a news conference after advising in a meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "the world is in a very critical condition" politically.

Stressing that the State Department's immediate concern in the budget fight is food for occupied Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea, Marshall said:

"We cannot expect to maintain an occupation of countries like those with our troops if the people are starving."

Marshall also:

1. Said in a statement that the United States hoped all loyal political parties in Greece would bury partisan differences and get together on a program to restore political and economic health to that country.

2. Described China's financial crisis as tragic. He made clear this government had not decided on measures to help restore stability. Some economists, he said, had advised a hands-off policy.

3. Said Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane had not notified him whether he planned to return to Poland after his forthcoming visit to this country. Warsaw dispatches reported Lane would not return.

Not Much Justification For Keeping Sugar Control

In the new Congress sugar rationing, along with other controls left over from the war, face a highly uncertain future. In addition to the growing sentiment for abolition of remaining controls, there is the possibility that Congress may kill them indirectly by refusing to vote additional funds to the OPA for their enforcement.

This general confusion makes it difficult to say how much importance to attach to the OPA order validating a new ration stamp, good for ten pounds of sugar, on April 1.

There is one definite gain which housewives can count on as a result of this announcement. The new stamp has been validated one month earlier than was planned. Thus the current five-pounds-per-person ration can be used up in three months instead of being stretched thin over four.

But, except for this circumstance, the new ration leaves the home sugar situation in doubt. The April 1 stamp will be good for ten pounds instead of five, but this is offset by the announcement that no canning stamps will be issued this year. In 1946 a five-pound stamp for sugar for canning was issued in March and another later in the year.

OPA officials now say their "best guess" is that housewives will receive 35 pounds per person in 1947. Republican leaders in Congress have been campaigning for an increase in rations to at least 35 pounds, and preferably 40. It is evident that housewives will do considerably better than the 25-pound-per-person allotment for 1946. In fact, there doesn't seem to be much justification for continuation of sugar rationing. Perhaps President Truman will issue a dramatic announcement terminating this remnant of war restrictions.

Germans, who slaughtered populations of other lands on short rations, now complain that they are too hungry to work.

United States Should Keep Atomic Secret Well Guarded

Development of atomic energy for peacetime use reveals 80 percent of the knowledge necessary for making an atomic weapon, it is said. Can we afford to permit industrial development of atomic energy, if by the process we must give most of the secret away?

It is an accepted fact that all nations are not governed by men of good will. Indeed, there are more potential threats to world peace and security today than there were in 1939. No nation today may be ready for war, but should we make them ready? Granted that harnessing the atom might solve the fuel and power problems of the universe. Of what value those blessings if we are not here to enjoy them? We might not enjoy them long, if by giving away 80 percent of the secret atomic processes we start a race to acquire the other 20 percent of the know-how. There is something to be said for going on living just as we are.

Ever since the first atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima seemingly we have been trying to give the secret away, admitting a sense of guilt that we have kept it to ourselves so long. To that end, congressional committees, presidential commissions and international agencies have been set up. By that attitude we may invite the fate of the man who designed the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary, only to be the first person to die in it. We have a bear by the tail, but instead of trying to let go, we might consider how to get it in a cage until it is safe to turn it loose.

We do not intend to use the bomb to commit unprovoked, wholesale murder. But how can we know that all nations are of like mind? When atomic bombs rain down on us from the skies it will be too late to be sorry.

Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate to the United Nations, has said this country will not exchange its atomic secrets with other nations for constructive uses until we are sure they won't be employed for destruction. But, if in the meantime, accumulative leaks give the secret away, we will have nothing to exchange. Bit by bit, vital information has seeped through the security controls, usually through scientific publications. Bernard M. Baruch sounded a sober warning which well sums up the case when he said: "While science should be free, it should not be free to destroy mankind."

This injunction would apply with equal force to Congress. Senator Brien McMahon, Connecticut Democrat, maintains that as a member of the Senate Committee on Atomic Energy he should have access to atomic secrets. If that is to be the policy there will be no secrets at all.

Congressmen wrestling with the budget are face to face with plain arithmetic, the kind they formerly taught in schools.

Shut The Door, Richard

It has long been apparent that one doesn't have to be loftily inspired to compose a popular song, but the point probably never has been better illustrated than by the current ditty which is making the life of everyone named Richard a daytime nightmare.

Four little words, repeated, ah, so many times, with a bit of chatter in between, have a nation in a state of near-neurosis. Even Lauritz Melchior, the great tenor sang it on the radio the other night.

Last year the listening public was bombarded with another equally inspired song about a cement mixer and another called, "One-zy, Two-zy," which caused a critic to make a horrible error in his report on the matter. Being of logical and sound mind, he understood the title to be "Monday, Tuesday" and so recorded it in his article, only to have to suffer a humiliating retraction later.

In view of the success of such outpourings of genius, all hard-up composers wasting away in garrets, fiddling with such antiquated song subjects as love, moon and June, are offered the following titles, which when put to two or three bars of music, should make a million, easy:

"Switch Your Tail, Mrs. Cow," "Elevator Operator, Zoom, Zoom," "Who Put the Glue in My Stew?" and "Charley's Verly Sorrly."

These are offered absolutely free and no claims will be made or suits brought when the money starts to pour in. Nor, for that matter, will any responsibility be accepted when a whole nation drives itself to doom singing "Charley's Verly Sorrly."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

MODERN CONCEPTS OF AN OLD DISEASE

LEPROSY was one of the earliest diseases to be described and in spite of its 60 centuries of existence, the manner of transmission from one victim to another is still uncertain. Learning the causative germ has not solved the mystery, for over 60 years ago Hansen discovered the culprit—an organism similar to the tubercle bacillus.

Furthermore, our method of dealing with victims has altered little thruout the ages. They have been isolated and sometimes actually exiled from family and friends. Those who are familiar with the ailment argue against such stringent rules, stating that it probably is less contagious than tuberculosis or syphillis. In addition, segregation has discouraged many early cases, who make every attempt to escape the authorities by moving from place to place or seeking hideouts as if they were criminals. These sufferers desire medical care but do not dare to submit themselves. As the malady progresses, ultimate surrender is the rule.

Since we know now that certain newer drugs are more effective when administered soon after the disorder is recognized, everything should be done to encourage this group. Consequently it is highly possible that in the future, patients in the beginning stages will not be sent away but given medication from a treatment center. Thus the number of advanced cases will be reducted materially. Public opinion must also be modified and changing the name to "Hansen's disease" was a step in the right direction.

Several years may pass before an individual who was exposed develops the disturbance. The organisms most commonly attack the nerves and the skin. Later, the deeper structures may be affected. As a rule, the affliction starts as a small round, slightly elevated spot which is lighter in color than the surrounding epidermis. Gradually the nodule grows larger or newer blemishes appear. Involvement of the nerves leading to the lesions leaves the overlying skin numb so that neither the pricking of a pin, the application of heat or cold, nor the tickling of a feather are perceived in normal fashion. Now and then the nerves become thickened and tender.

Chaulmoogra oil has been standard theatment for some time. It was supposedly discovered by a legendary nobleman of ancient China who went into exile after he became a victim but was cured by eating the fruit of a tree containing this compound. Today, in some instances, the preparation is used in conjunction with gold.

At the National Leprosarium, Carville, La., many forms of therapy are being tried. Penicillin has not been effective but the sulfones—promin, promizole, and diasone—are proving valuable in their hands. The remedies must be employed over a long period of time as improvement generally does not manifest itself before six months of continuous use. These products apparently affect the organisms but to date the most noticeable changes have occurred in the skin manifestations. Whether streptomycin will have a greater influence is not known but there is a possibility that it might be helpful.

REMOTE CAUSE

H. W. writes: Could nervousness due to eyestrain lead to stomach ulcer?

REPLY

This is farfetched altho individuals who harbor ulcers are frequently nervous.

BLADDER INFLAMMATION

M. J. writes: What is a Hunner ulcer?

REPLY

This irritating lesion develops in the bladder thru longstanding infection. It occurs more frequently in women than men and is suspected whenever pain in this area appears associated with marked desire to urinate.

TENNIS ELBOW

C. S. writes: Some months ago I bumped my elbow and pain is still present there and in my hand. Every time I move my arm I hear a snapping sound. Can you tell me the trouble?

REPLY

In many instances symptoms of this type are due to synovitis and the majority of cases recover spontaneously if the arm is not moved. Immobility can be facilitated by employing a sling or the application of a light cast.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

One of the great joys of being an actor is receiving your fan mail. Why just yesterday my fan mail doubled—I have to fold it to get it in my vest pocket.

The most numerous of the fan notes is "the hungry relative," or "you are the funniest comedian on the screen and can you send me a fast fifty?" type letter. These epistles are usually wired with fuse that goes off if you don't answer in thirty days.

Then there is the "confused fan" letter. It goes:

"I saw your last picture and think you're wonderful. I hope you'll continue to do such a grand job playing Doctor Gillespie."

And of course you receive many subtle letters. They hint. They say "Hope, you're through."

But the letter I'm really proud of is one I just received. It's a thank you note and reads in part:

"Thanks for your consideration in not giving us any trouble. As you know, we are overburdened with problems and we think it's a fine gesture that you have saved us the necessity of bothering about you. (Signed) The Academy Award Committee."

THE SAD CASE OF DEMOCRACY AND CAPITALISM

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Communist Leaders Flee From USA; Nebraska Lobbyist Puts Wall Street Ahead Of Government Loan; Senators McKellar And Bridges Queer Bedfellows

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—A group of Communist leaders in the United States, headed by William Z. Foster, the party's secretary general, are fleeing the country just ahead of a sweeping Justice Department-Congressional probe of the Soviet political network.

Here are the developments thus far:

1. Foster sailed ten days ago on a passport visaed for every country from France to Russia.

2. Morris Childs, former head of the Communist party in Illinois and now a key official of the Communist publication, The Daily Worker, has secured a passport for a similar trip.

3. FBI agents have two New York night clubs under surveillance, checking reports that they are "message drops" for Soviet agents.

4. The Justice Department is prepared to support a Congressional drive to outlaw the Communist party in the United States. Lists of key Communist officials have already been drawn up by the FBI for possible apprehension.

5. A group of onetime Comintern agents, many of whom worked actively with the anti-Nazi underground in Germany, have left for Mexico City after a premature tipoff that they were wanted for questioning by the House Committee on un-American activities.

Government investigators have also learned there is a distinct possibility that William Z. Foster will not return to the United States from his visit to the Kremlin. Foster was elevated to power after the American Communist party deposed Earl Browder last year because he maintained that capitalism and Communism could live side by side. Browder journeyed to Moscow after his ouster, was cordially received at the Kremlin by Foreign Minister Molotov.

Nebraska's Ace Lobbyist

He manages to keep completely out of the limelight, but the smoothest lobbyist in Washington these days is George Johnson, head of the Central Nebraska Public Power District and the Farm Crops Processing Corporation of Omaha.

Johnson has just succeeded in doing what is supposed to be almost impossible—he got a private banking loan given first priority over a Government loan. In other words, though the Government loan was a first mortgage, it will be paid off as a second mortgage.

George Johnson is also the man who helped rush a special law through Congress benefiting only one alcohol plant in the country — his Farm Crops Processing Corporation. This is the company in which Senator Hugh Butler's old partner holds stock, and Butler rushed the bill through the Senate to oblige his friends and partner. It is one of the few pieces of legislation passed by the Republicans since they controlled Congress.

Although busy as an alcohol distiller, Johnson also had time to put across a unique deal with the Public Works Administration. That agency had liens of over $43,000,000 on three Nebraska power projects—the Loup, Central Nebraska and Platte Valley Districts.

Wall Street Comes First

And despite these prior liens, Johnson was so persuasive that he induced PWA counsel Allen Johnstone to waive these liens in favor of the Wall Street firm of B. J. Van Ingen which is putting up $10,000,000 to build a steam plant. Thus the bonds issued by Van Ingen will have first lien on the gross receipts of the Nebraska Power District, and the $43,000,000 of Government bonds, which previously had first lien, will come second.

George has been lobbying on this ever since last May, but he has now finally put it across.

Most interesting phase of this transaction is that it was not submitted to or approved by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren. Under the law, as interpreted by other Government attorneys, no one except the Comptroller General has the authority to "settle, adjust or compromise a claim held in favor of the United States."

However, this is not the only accomplishment of Nebraska's skillful George Johnson. He also persuaded Senator Kenneth Wherry to tack a rider on another bill in the last session of Congress reducing the interest on public works bonds from 4 to 2½ per cent. This reduction is not unfair, but it was obtained by unfair means—a rider on another bill so that Congress could not vote on the real issue.

Thus, Nebraska not only got her interest reduced on Government loans, but has put those loans second to more recent Wall Street loans—all thanks to the fast-talking, smooth-lobbying George Johnson.

Strange Senate Bedfellows

To Capital insiders who have watched the never-ending battles over public power, there's a very familiar strain to the current whoop-and-holler over the confirmation of TVA Chairman David Lilienthal as chief of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The battle against Lilienthal follows closely the pattern of the fight against TVA itself, when private power moguls were alarmed by the threat of cheap rates to their industry—as they are today by the threat of atomic energy. They know that atomic energy can put all electric power out of business and they don't want a man in the saddle whom they can't control.

During the old TVA battle, as now, Lilienthal's public power philosophy was a prime issue. Then, as now, red herrings were dragged across the floor of Congress, with the same individuals, led by articulate GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, dragging them.

If you fold back the Congressional Record Record a few years to 1938-40, the story repeats itself like a cracked phonograph record.

Senator Bridges set himself up as a one-man grand jury to investigate the TVA and its directors, including Lilienthal. He spent a whole vacation probing the Government power program and filled the record with vocal thunder. One speech, on Jan. 18, 1938, in which the New Hampshire Senator charged that TVA had "betrayed its trust" ran nine pages of small type.

There is only one notable discrepancy between acts I and II of Bridges' war on Lilienthal. Piston-jawed Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, who is solidly teamed with Bridges now, supported the TVA in the 1938-40 battles. You almost have to read it to believe it, but McKellar, who has waged an unparalled mud-smearing vendetta against Lilienthal and the TVA in the last few years, actually accused Bridges in 1940 of trying to "throw dirt on the TVA."

Now they are battling arm and arm together. Very strange bedfellows!

Sullivan Says Tariff Question Is Not Domestic Controversy

By MARK SULLIVAN

Even before Republican speakers at Lincoln Day dinners, especially presidential possibilities Stassen and Taft, dealt with the tariff, it was apparent that the country is about to experience a repetition of the tariff debates which have occurred at roughly 10-year intervals throughout more than a century.

But in that sentence here written, two words need explanation. What we are about to experience is not a "repetition." And it is not a "debate" between the two parties, of the kind that attended the Smoot-Hawley tariff, or the Fordney one, or the Dingley one, or any of a dozen others, back to the time of Henry Clay.

The tariff question, as it now lies before us, is not a domestic controversy between agriculture and manufacturing, as the early tariff debates were, nor a struggle for advantage on the part of various industries, as many of our later tariff debates were. For there has come into the world a condition which makes the very words "tariff" obsolete, and makes the slogans that attended former tariff debates, such as "pork barrel" meaningless. Even the comparatively modern term "reciprocal trade agreements," brought forward by former Secretary of State Hull some dozen years ago, is inadequate as a solution of the new condition. Most basically obsolete of all is the phrase "free trade," which was commonly, although misleadingly, used as the antithesis of tariffs, a kind of epithet case by Republicans at Democrats.

A clue to the new and revolutionary condition is in a passage in ex-Governor Stassen's Lincoln Day speech. He was describing the happy condition America enjoys as a result of freedom of tariffs between the states:

"If . . . each of the states of the union should raise its own wheat, mill its own flour, make its own shoes, build its own automobiles, tailor its own clothing, the result would be that the people in none of the states would be enjoying the standard of living they enjoy today."

Having portrayed that happy American condition, Mr. Stassen says that we now face the problem of duplicating it for the whole world: "We have now reached the point where the counter-part of this basic fact is upon us on a world level."

In that American condition which Mr. Stassen vividly portrays, a man in Michigan can make a mousetrap or automobile, and sell it to a man in Pennsylvania, without tariff impediment. If this freedom from trade barriers were now to be achieved upon a world basis, as Mr. Stassen suggests, it would mean that the man in Michigan could, with the same freedom from trade barriers, sell his mousetrap or automobile to a man in Odssa; and a man in Odessa could sell his leather or furs to the man in Michigan. That would be real freedom of trade, freedom of an individual or corporation in one country to trade with an individual or corporation in another country.

But, as between America and Russia, that freedom of trade is made impossible by a fundamental concept and practice of the Communist Government. An American who undertakes to sell in Russia or buy from Russia, does not deal with an individual Russian citizen or corporation. He deals with the Russian government, the government is the sole buyer and the sole seller.

The condition is apparently about to be set up in England. With the taking over of industries by the labor Government, government becomes the one seller and the one buyer. In England potentially and already beginning, and in Russia actually, trade with other countries is a government monopoly.

The system is being adopted by other countries, and there is a striking recent development. Apparently Russia and countries within the Russian area of influence, such as Czechoslovakia, practicing government ownership of industry are about to set up special trade relations with each other.

What America apparently faces as respects foreign trade is a part of what it faces in other fundamental respects. It is a conflict on a world basis—on the one hand, a group of Communist countries and a group of Socialist countries, each group having within itself group-wide trade relations; and, on the other hand the United States as a country practicing private ownership of industry.

In that condition, discussion about the American tariffs in the terms in which it has been discussed for a century, would be inadequate and antiquated.

Reasons Congressmen Oppose Lilienthal Given By Lawrence

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 — More than meets the eye is involved in the attitudes and statements of members of the Senate with respect to the confirmation of David E. Lilienthal to be chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The issue is one of simple fear and suspicion. The argument made by Senator McKellar of Tennessee that Mr. Lilienthal, in his conduct of the Tennessee Valley Authority for the government, was not as severe as he might have been with respect to Communists in the TWA can only mean that there is suspicion about Mr. Lilienthal's possible sympathies.

But the men who know Mr. Lilienthal—Secretary of War Patterson, Bernard M. Baruch, and others, especially in the Senate — do not doubt for one moment his loyalty either to democracy or to his own government. The idea that Mr. Lilienthal could harbor and friendlier thoughts for some other government than his own is absurd on its face. He is much too valued a public servant and too well known in public life for such charges to gain any currency. It is regrettable that any such implication has been made.

But the opposition to Mr. Lilienthal is rapidly mounting and on grounds of a different sort. The truth is Mr Lilienthal is a believer in New Deal philosophy and was the New Deal's agent in swallowing up Wendell Willkie's power company in Tennessee. Mr. Willkie always conceded Mr. Lilienthal's ability, though he questioned his propaganda in behalf of public ownership.

The background of controversy that surrounds Mr. Lilienthal relates more to his ideas on public ownership than on Communism. Few people realize what atomic energy could mean as a competitor of electricity and existing power facilities. Would such a man in public office be able to serve the people best or would it be better to have someone who is more objective on the public power question?

This is one of the queries that perhaps may have arisen so as to line up opponents to the confirmation. Mr. Lilienthal, of course, will have with him other members of the commission, but he has a strong personality and the senators who oppose him imply that Mr. Lilienthal will dominate the commission if he is confirmed.

This is not to say all of the opposition springs from the belief that the entire power system of the country will be translated into a huge TVA with atomic power as its chief energy, but simply that some of the controversy undoubtedly comes from those sources which fear the effect on private investment of another TVA in atomic uses.

There are other senators, of course, who have no feeling one way or the other about Mr. Lilienthal and really don't know much about him but who are saying that when such an important post is involved—one that could conceivably affect the safety of the United States, if not its very life—the appointment should be virtually unanimous and there should be no doubts or hesitant attitudes.

The difficulty about this is that few men are competent to deal with the atomic question. Mr. Lilienthal's report and recommendation on international control of atomic energy have been so penetrating that what he wrote became the American delegation's position at the United Nations debate on atomic energy control. Mr. Lilienthal's knowledge and ability would undoubtedy be an asset to the government. But, again, which is more important—that public opinion shall be satisfied and someone else equally competent be chosen or that Mr. Lilienthal be given the chance to prove himself?

This correspondent long ago suggested that it was a mistake to have any federal officials, including cabinet officers, serve for longer than one year. This would mean that every year the Senate could pass judgment on whether the officials are doing their jobs satisfactoriily. If such a system were in effect, there would be little hesitation about confirming Mr. Lilienthal, for it would be obvious that in one year the Senate would have an opportunity to observe whether the new commission was disusing its powers. After all, there are four other members of the commission and they are likely to be vigilant in protecting the people against any misuse of the Atomic Energy Commission's authority by anyone.

If Congress were to pass a general statute requiring all appointive officers to come up for confirmation periodically, there would be more efficiency in government and less controversy about the appointees when they come up for their first test.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Are We All Migratory?

All my life, ever since I learned of the migration of birds, I have wondered about migration. How strange and yet how wonderful that birds have been given the urge to select their homes throughout the many changes of climate and seasons. Perhaps it is what keeps life vibrant and vital. We, as human beings, like to keep moving, changing our abodes, and we are usually inspired and renewed by it, both in mind and body.

In an interesting study of W. H. Hudson, by Robert Hamilton, I came across a statement that the Dartfold warbler, an English bird, did not migrate, and so was gradually dying out. He could not find the answer. Certain it is that migratory birds keep multiplying, and seem to know what they are about, when they do migrate.

Said Hamilton: "Migration, in some form or other, seems natural to all living creatures, and can be regarded as a manifestation of universal movement of life." And so it is that we human beings also migrate, travel about, change our abodes, and so, in a way, imitate these winged creatures who stay with us for a time and then seek new homes and new scenes.

The sparrow, the blue jay, and the starling are a few of our native birds of the north who seem to have hardihood which enables them to brave the storms and cold of winter. We have to admire them, though we may not love them as we do so many of our beautiful and expert songsters.

All life, however, seems to call for movement and action, and although we may represent the highest form of intelligent creation, still we remain as one with all Nature—a part of God's stream of life. We like new scenes, new contacts, new experiences.

When in Hawaii I learned of a bird there that migrates to faraway Alaska, nests in that cold clime, and then flies the thousands miles back to Hawaii, its young knowing just how to perform the task—truly miraculous! And nations are migratory—they keep reaching out, wanting more land, more people to dominate and control. Is it, after all, just a law of life and the survival of the fittest, as Darwin suggested?

Not Much Justification For Keeping Sugar Control

In the new Congress sugar rationing, along with other controls left over from the war, face a highly uncertain future. In addition to the growing sentiment for abolition of remaining controls, there is the possibility that Congress may kill them indirectly by refusing to vote additional funds to the OPA for their enforcement.

This general confusion makes it difficult to say how much importance to attach to the OPA order validating a new ration stamp, good for ten pounds of sugar, on April 1.

There is one definite gain which housewives can count on as a result of this announcement. The new stamp has been validated one month earlier than was planned. Thus the current five-pounds-per-person ration can be used up in three months instead of being stretched thin over four.

But, except for this circumstance, the new ration leaves the home sugar situation in doubt. The April 1 stamp will be good for ten pounds instead of five, but this is offset by the announcement that no canning stamps will be issued this year. In 1946 a five-pound stamp for sugar for canning was issued in March and another later in the year.

OPA officials now say their "best guess" is that housewives will receive 35 pounds per person in 1947. Republican leaders in Congress have been campaigning for an increase in rations to at least 35 pounds, and preferably 40. It is evident that housewives will do considerably better than the 25-pound-per-person allotment for 1946. In fact, there doesn't seem to be much justification for continuation of sugar rationing. Perhaps President Truman will issue a dramatic announcement terminating this remnant of war restrictions.

Germans, who slaughtered populations of other lands on short rations, now complain that they are too hungry to work.

United States Should Keep Atomic Secret Well Guarded

Development of atomic energy for peacetime use reveals 80 percent of the knowledge necessary for making an atomic weapon, it is said. Can we afford to permit industrial development of atomic energy, if by the process we must give most of the secret away?

It is an accepted fact that all nations are not governed by men of good will. Indeed, there are more potential threats to world peace and security today than there were in 1939. No nation today may be ready for war, but should we make them ready? Granted that harnessing the atom might solve the fuel and power problems of the universe. Of what value those blessings if we are not here to enjoy them? We might not enjoy them long, if by giving away 80 percent of the secret atomic processes we start a race to acquire the other 20 percent of the know-how. There is something to be said for going on living just as we are.

Ever since the first atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima seemingly we have been trying to give the secret away, admitting a sense of guilt that we have kept it to ourselves so long. To that end, congressional committees, presidential commissions and international agencies have been set up. By that attitude we may invite the fate of the man who designed the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary, only to be the first person to die in it. We have a bear by the tail, but instead of trying to let go, we might consider how to get it in a cage until it is safe to turn it loose.

We do not intend to use the bomb to commit unprovoked, wholesale murder. But how can we know that all nations are of like mind? When atomic bombs rain down on us from the skies it will be too late to be sorry.

Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate to the United Nations, has said this country will not exchange its atomic secrets with other nations for constructive uses until we are sure they won't be employed for destruction. But, if in the meantime, accumulative leaks give the secret away, we will have nothing to exchange. Bit by bit, vital information has seeped through the security controls, usually through scientific publications. Bernard M. Baruch sounded a sober warning which well sums up the case when he said: "While science should be free, it should not be free to destroy mankind."

This injunction would apply with equal force to Congress. Senator Brien McMahon, Connecticut Democrat, maintains that as a member of the Senate Committee on Atomic Energy he should have access to atomic secrets. If that is to be the policy there will be no secrets at all.

Congressmen wrestling with the budget are face to face with plain arithmetic, the kind they formerly taught in schools.

Shut The Door, Richard

It has long been apparent that one doesn't have to be loftily inspired to compose a popular song, but the point probably never has been better illustrated than by the current ditty which is making the life of everyone named Richard a daytime nightmare.

Four little words, repeated, ah, so many times, with a bit of chatter in between, have a nation in a state of near-neurosis. Even Lauritz Melchior, the great tenor sang it on the radio the other night.

Last year the listening public was bombarded with another equally inspired song about a cement mixer and another called, "One-zy, Two-zy," which caused a critic to make a horrible error in his report on the matter. Being of logical and sound mind, he understood the title to be "Monday, Tuesday" and so recorded it in his article, only to have to suffer a humiliating retraction later.

In view of the success of such outpourings of genius, all hard-up composers wasting away in garrets, fiddling with such antiquated song subjects as love, moon and June, are offered the following titles, which when put to two or three bars of music, should make a million, easy:

"Switch Your Tail, Mrs. Cow," "Elevator Operator, Zoom, Zoom," "Who Put the Glue in My Stew?" and "Charley's Verly Sorrly."

These are offered absolutely free and no claims will be made or suits brought when the money starts to pour in. Nor, for that matter, will any responsibility be accepted when a whole nation drives itself to doom singing "Charley's Verly Sorrly."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

MODERN CONCEPTS OF AN OLD DISEASE

LEPROSY was one of the earliest diseases to be described and in spite of its 60 centuries of existence, the manner of transmission from one victim to another is still uncertain. Learning the causative germ has not solved the mystery, for over 60 years ago Hansen discovered the culprit—an organism similar to the tubercle bacillus.

Furthermore, our method of dealing with victims has altered little thruout the ages. They have been isolated and sometimes actually exiled from family and friends. Those who are familiar with the ailment argue against such stringent rules, stating that it probably is less contagious than tuberculosis or syphillis. In addition, segregation has discouraged many early cases, who make every attempt to escape the authorities by moving from place to place or seeking hideouts as if they were criminals. These sufferers desire medical care but do not dare to submit themselves. As the malady progresses, ultimate surrender is the rule.

Since we know now that certain newer drugs are more effective when administered soon after the disorder is recognized, everything should be done to encourage this group. Consequently it is highly possible that in the future, patients in the beginning stages will not be sent away but given medication from a treatment center. Thus the number of advanced cases will be reducted materially. Public opinion must also be modified and changing the name to "Hansen's disease" was a step in the right direction.

Several years may pass before an individual who was exposed develops the disturbance. The organisms most commonly attack the nerves and the skin. Later, the deeper structures may be affected. As a rule, the affliction starts as a small round, slightly elevated spot which is lighter in color than the surrounding epidermis. Gradually the nodule grows larger or newer blemishes appear. Involvement of the nerves leading to the lesions leaves the overlying skin numb so that neither the pricking of a pin, the application of heat or cold, nor the tickling of a feather are perceived in normal fashion. Now and then the nerves become thickened and tender.

Chaulmoogra oil has been standard theatment for some time. It was supposedly discovered by a legendary nobleman of ancient China who went into exile after he became a victim but was cured by eating the fruit of a tree containing this compound. Today, in some instances, the preparation is used in conjunction with gold.

At the National Leprosarium, Carville, La., many forms of therapy are being tried. Penicillin has not been effective but the sulfones—promin, promizole, and diasone—are proving valuable in their hands. The remedies must be employed over a long period of time as improvement generally does not manifest itself before six months of continuous use. These products apparently affect the organisms but to date the most noticeable changes have occurred in the skin manifestations. Whether streptomycin will have a greater influence is not known but there is a possibility that it might be helpful.

REMOTE CAUSE

H. W. writes: Could nervousness due to eyestrain lead to stomach ulcer?

REPLY

This is farfetched altho individuals who harbor ulcers are frequently nervous.

BLADDER INFLAMMATION

M. J. writes: What is a Hunner ulcer?

REPLY

This irritating lesion develops in the bladder thru longstanding infection. It occurs more frequently in women than men and is suspected whenever pain in this area appears associated with marked desire to urinate.

TENNIS ELBOW

C. S. writes: Some months ago I bumped my elbow and pain is still present there and in my hand. Every time I move my arm I hear a snapping sound. Can you tell me the trouble?

REPLY

In many instances symptoms of this type are due to synovitis and the majority of cases recover spontaneously if the arm is not moved. Immobility can be facilitated by employing a sling or the application of a light cast.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

One of the great joys of being an actor is receiving your fan mail. Why just yesterday my fan mail doubled—I have to fold it to get it in my vest pocket.

The most numerous of the fan notes is "the hungry relative," or "you are the funniest comedian on the screen and can you send me a fast fifty?" type letter. These epistles are usually wired with fuse that goes off if you don't answer in thirty days.

Then there is the "confused fan" letter. It goes:

"I saw your last picture and think you're wonderful. I hope you'll continue to do such a grand job playing Doctor Gillespie."

And of course you receive many subtle letters. They hint. They say "Hope, you're through."

But the letter I'm really proud of is one I just received. It's a thank you note and reads in part:

"Thanks for your consideration in not giving us any trouble. As you know, we are overburdened with problems and we think it's a fine gesture that you have saved us the necessity of bothering about you. (Signed) The Academy Award Committee."

THE SAD CASE OF DEMOCRACY AND CAPITALISM

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Communist Leaders Flee From USA; Nebraska Lobbyist Puts Wall Street Ahead Of Government Loan; Senators McKellar And Bridges Queer Bedfellows

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—A group of Communist leaders in the United States, headed by William Z. Foster, the party's secretary general, are fleeing the country just ahead of a sweeping Justice Department-Congressional probe of the Soviet political network.

Here are the developments thus far:

1. Foster sailed ten days ago on a passport visaed for every country from France to Russia.

2. Morris Childs, former head of the Communist party in Illinois and now a key official of the Communist publication, The Daily Worker, has secured a passport for a similar trip.

3. FBI agents have two New York night clubs under surveillance, checking reports that they are "message drops" for Soviet agents.

4. The Justice Department is prepared to support a Congressional drive to outlaw the Communist party in the United States. Lists of key Communist officials have already been drawn up by the FBI for possible apprehension.

5. A group of onetime Comintern agents, many of whom worked actively with the anti-Nazi underground in Germany, have left for Mexico City after a premature tip-off that they were wanted for questioning by the House Committee on un-American activities.

Government investigators have also learned there is a distinct possibility that William Z. Foster will not return to the United States from his visit to the Kremlin. Foster was elevated to power after the American Communist party deposed Earl Browder last year because he maintained that capitalism and Communism could live side by side. Browder journeyed to Moscow after his ouster, was cordially received at the Kremlin by Foreign Minister Molotov.

Nebraska's Ace Lobbyist

He manages to keep completely out of the limelight, but the smoothest lobbyist in Washington these days is George Johnson, head of the Central Nebraska Public Power District and the Farm Crops Processing Corporation of Omaha.

Johnson has just succeeded in doing what is supposed to be almost impossible—he got a private banking loan given first priority over a Government loan. In other words, though the Government loan was a first mortgage, it will be paid off as a second mortgage.

George Johnson is also the man who helped rush a special law through Congress benefiting only one alcohol plant in the country — his Farm Crops Processing Corporation. This is the company in which Senator Hugh Butler's old partner holds stock, and Butler rushed the bill through the Senate to oblige his friends and partner. It is one of the few pieces of legislation passed by the Republicans since they controlled Congress.

Although busy as an alcohol distiller, Johnson also had time to put across a unique deal with the Public Works Administration. That agency had liens of over $43,000,000 on three Nebraska power projects—the Loup, Central Nebraska and Platte Valley Districts.

Wall Street Comes First

And despite these prior liens, Johnson was so persuasive that he induced PWA counsel Allen Johnstone to waive these liens in favor of the Wall Street firm of B. J. Van Ingen which is putting up $10,000,000 to build a steam plant. Thus the bonds issued by Van Ingen will have first lien on the gross receipts of the Nebraska Power District, and the $43,000,000 of Government bonds, which previously had first lien, will come second.

George has been lobbying on this ever since last May, but he has now finally put it across.

Most interesting phase of this transaction is that it was not submitted to or approved by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren. Under the law, as interpreted by other Government attorneys, no one except the Comptroller General has the authority to "settle, adjust or compromise a claim held in favor of the United States."

However, this is not the only accomplishment of Nebraska's skillful George Johnson. He also persuaded Senator Kenneth Wherry to tack a rider on another bill in the last session of Congress reducing the interest on public works bonds from 4 to 2½ per cent. This reduction is not unfair, but it was obtained by unfair means—a rider on another bill so that Congress could not vote on the real issue.

Thus, Nebraska not only got her interest reduced on Government loans, but has put those loans second to more recent Wall Street loans—all thanks to the fast-talking, smooth-lobbying George Johnson.

Strange Senate Bedfellows

To Capital insiders who have watched the never-ending battles over public power, there's a very familiar strain to the current whoop-and-holler over the confirmation of TVA Chairman David Lilienthal as chief of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The battle against Lilienthal follows closely the pattern of the fight against TVA itself, when private power moguls were alarmed by the threat of cheap rates to their industry—as they are today by the threat of atomic energy. They know that atomic energy can put all electric power out of business and they don't want a man in the saddle whom they can't control.

During the old TVA battle, as now, Lilienthal's public power philosophy was a prime issue. Then, as now, red herrings were dragged across the floor of Congress, with the same individuals, led by articulate GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, dragging them.

If you fold back the Congressional Record Record a few years to 1938-40, the story repeats itself like a cracked phonograph record.

Senator Bridges set himself up as a one-man grand jury to investigate the TVA and its directors, including Lilienthal. He spent a whole vacation probing the Government power program and filled the record with vocal thunder. One speech, on Jan. 18, 1938, in which the New Hampshire Senator charged that TVA had "betrayed its trust" ran nine pages of small type.

There is only one notable discrepancy between acts I and II of Bridges' war on Lilienthal. Piston-jawed Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, who is solidly teamed with Bridges now, supported the TVA in the 1938-40 battles. You almost have to read it to believe it, but McKellar, who has waged an unparalled mud-smearing vendetta against Lilienthal and the TVA in the last few years, actually accused Bridges in 1940 of trying to "throw dirt on the TVA."

Now they are battling arm and arm together. Very strange bedfellows!

Sullivan Says Tariff Question Is Not Domestic Controversy

By MARK SULLIVAN

Even before Republican speakers at Lincoln Day dinners, especially presidential possibilities Stassen and Taft, dealt with the tariff, it was apparent that the country is about to experience a repetition of the tariff debates which have occurred at roughly 10-year intervals throughout more than a century.

But in that sentence here written, two words need explanation. What we are about to experience is not a "repetition." And it is not a "debate" between the two parties, of the kind that attended the Smoot-Hawley tariff, or the Fordney one, or the Dingley one, or any of a dozen others, back to the time of Henry Clay.

The tariff question, as it now lies before us, is not a domestic controversy between agriculture and manufacturing, as the early tariff debates were, nor a struggle for advantage on the part of various industries, as many of our later tariff debates were. For there has come into the world a condition which makes the very words "tariff" obsolete, and makes the slogans that attended former tariff debates, such as "pork barrel" meaningless. Even the comparatively modern term "reciprocal trade agreements," brought forward by former Secretary of State Hull some dozen years ago, is inadequate as a solution of the new condition. Most basically obsolete of all is the phrase "free trade," which was commonly, although misleadingly, used as the antithesis of tariffs, a kind of epithet case by Republicans at Democrats.

A clue to the new and revolutionary condition is in a passage in ex-Governor Stassen's Lincoln Day speech. He was describing the happy condition America enjoys as a result of freedom of tariffs between the states:

"If . . . each of the states of the union should raise its own wheat, mill its own flour, make its own shoes, build its own automobiles, tailor its own clothing, the result would be that the people in none of the states would be enjoying the standard of living they enjoy today."

Having portrayed that happy American condition, Mr. Stassen says that we now face the problem of duplicating it for the whole world; "We have now reached the point where the counter-part of this basic fact is upon us on a world level."

In that American condition which Mr. Stassen vividly portrays, a man in Michigan can make a mousetrap or automobile, and sell it to a man in Pennsylvania, without tariff impediment. If this freedom from trade barriers were now to be achieved upon a world basis, as Mr. Stassen suggests, it would mean that the man in Michigan could, with the same freedom from trade barriers, sell his mousetrap or automobile to a man in Odssa; and a man in Odessa could sell his leather or furs to the man in Michigan. That would be real freedom of trade, freedom of an individual or corporation in one country to trade with an individual or corporation in another country.

But, as between America and Russia, that freedom of trade is made impossible by a fundamental concept and practice of the Communist Government. An American who undertakes to sell in Russia or buy from Russia, does not deal with an individual Russian citizen or corporation. He deals with the Russian government, the government is the sole buyer and the sole seller.

The condition is apparently about to be set up in England. With the taking over of industries by the labor Government, government becomes the one seller and the one buyer. In England potentially and already beginning, and in Russia actually, trade with other countries is a government monopoly.

The system is being adopted by other countries, and there is a striking recent development. Apparently Russia and countries within the Russian area of influence, such as Czechoslovakia, practicing government ownership of industry are about to set up special trade relations with each other.

What America apparently faces as respects foreign trade is a part of what it faces in other fundamental respects. It is a conflict on a world basis—on the one hand, a group of Communist countries and a group of Socialist countries, each group having within itself group-wide trade relations; and, on the other hand the United States as a country practicing private ownership of industry.

In that condition, discussion about the American tariffs in the terms in which it has been discussed for a century, would be inadequate and antiquated.

Reasons Congressmen Oppose Lilienthal Given By Lawrence

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 — More than meets the eye is involved in the attitudes and statements of members of the Senate with respect to the confirmation of David E. Lilienthal to be chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The issue is one of simple fear and suspicion. The argument made by Senator McKellar of Tennessee that Mr. Lilienthal, in his conduct of the Tennessee Valley Authority for the government, was not as severe as he might have been with respect to Communists in the TWA can only mean that there is suspicion about Mr. Lilienthal's possible sympathies.

But the men who know Mr. Lilienthal—Secretary of War Patterson, Bernard M. Baruch, and others, especially in the Senate — do not doubt for one moment his loyalty either to democracy or to his own government. The idea that Mr. Lilienthal could harbor and friendlier thoughts for some other government than his own is absurd on its face. He is much too valued a public servant and too well known in public life for such charges to gain any currency. It is regrettable that any such implication has been made.

But the opposition to Mr. Lilienthal is rapidly mounting and on grounds of a different sort. The truth is Mr Lilienthal is a believer in New Deal philosophy and was the New Deal's agent in swallowing up Wendell Willkie's power company in Tennessee. Mr. Willkie always conceded Mr. Lilienthal's ability, though he questioned his propaganda in behalf of public ownership.

The background of controversy that surrounds Mr. Lilienthal relates more to his ideas on public ownership than on Communism. Few people realize what atomic energy could mean as a competitor of electricity and existing power facilities. Would such a man in public office be able to serve the people best or would it be better to have someone who is more objective on the public power question?

This is one of the queries that perhaps may have arisen so as to line up opponents to the confirmation. Mr. Lilienthal, of course, will have with him other members of the commission, but he has a strong personality and the senators who oppose him imply that Mr. Lilienthal will dominate the commission if he is confirmed.

This is not to say all of the opposition springs from the belief that the entire power system of the country will be translated into a huge TVA with atomic power as its chief energy, but simply that some of the controversy undoubtedly comes from those sources which fear the effect on private investment of another TVA in atomic uses.

There are other senators, of course, who have no feeling one way or the other about Mr. Lilienthal and really don't know much about him but who are saying that when such an important post is involved—one that could conceivably affect the safety of the United States, if not its very life—the appointment should be virtually unanimous and there should be no doubts or hesitant attitudes.

The difficulty about this is that few men are competent to deal with the atomic question. Mr. Lilienthal's report and recommendation on international control of atomic energy have been so penetrating that what he wrote became the American delegation's position at the United Nations debate on atomic energy control. Mr. Lilienthal's knowledge and ability would undoubtedly be an asset to the government. But, again, which is more important—that public opinion shall be satisfied and someone else equally competent be chosen or that Mr. Lilienthal be given the chance to prove himself?

This correspondent long ago suggested that it was a mistake to have any federal officials, including cabinet officers, serve for longer than one year. This would mean that every year the Senate could pass judgment on whether the officials are doing their jobs satisfactorily. If such a system were in effect, there would be little hesitation about confirming Mr. Lilienthal, for it would be obvious that in one year the Senate would have an opportunity to observe whether the new commission was disusing its powers. After all, there are four other members of the commission and they are likely to be vigilant in protecting the people against any misuse of the Atomic Energy Commission's authority by anyone.

If Congress were to pass a general statute requiring all appointive officers to come up for confirmation periodically, there would be more efficiency in government and less controversy about the appointees when they come up for their first test.

Today's Talk

Are We All Migratory?

All my life, ever since I learned of the migration of birds, I have wondered about migration. How strange and yet how wonderful that birds have been given the urge to select their homes throughout the many changes of climate and seasons. Perhaps it is what keeps life vibrant and vital. We, as human beings, like to keep moving, changing our abodes, and we are usually inspired and renewed by it, both in mind and body.

In an interesting study of W. H. Hudson, by Robert Hamilton, I came across a statement that the Dartfold warbler, an English bird, did not migrate, and so was gradually dying out. He could not find the answer. Certain it is that migratory birds keep multiplying, and seem to know what they are about, when they do migrate.

Said Hamilton: "Migration, in some form or other, seems natural to all living creatures, and can be regarded as a manifestation of universal movement of life." And so it is that we human beings also migrate, travel about, change our abodes, and so, in a way, imitate these winged creatures who stay with us for a time and then seek new homes and new scenes.

The sparrow, the blue jay, and the starling are a few of our native birds of the north who seem to have hardihood which enables them to brave the storms and cold of winter. We have to admire them, though we may not love them as we do so many of our beautiful and expert songsters.

All life, however, seems to call for movement and action, and although we may represent the highest form of intelligent creation, still we remain as one with all Nature—a part of God's stream of life. We like new scenes, new contacts, new experiences.

When in Hawaii I learned of a bird there that migrates to faraway Alaska, nests in that cold clime, and then flies the thousands miles back to Hawaii, its young knowing just how to perform the task—truly miraculous! And nations are migratory—they keep reaching out, wanting more land, more people to dominate and control. Is it, after all, just a law of life and the survival of the fittest, as Darwin suggested?

Oakland Speaker Defends Arabs In Palestine

Right To Retain Land Is Defended

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 14 — The Arab's right to retain his land in Palestine was defended Wednesday night by Aouney DeJany, of the Arabian legation in Washington, at the annual Ladies' night meeting of the Oakland Rotary Club.

In his address he pointed out that the Arabs had been in Palestine for 1500 years and that the Jewish people had no more moral right to the land than the Arabs. He was of the opinion that most of the talk for re-colonization of Palestine was from the organized Zionist movement in this country and declared most of the opposition to the Arabs was coming from the United States. He felt that that British people were appearing more fair in the matter.

The Arabs feel the same way about the large Jewish immigration into the Palestine as we would feel if 100,000 Jews were to be allowed to immigrate into the United States in one year, he continued.

About 90 Rotarians and their wives attended the dinner. Charles L. Briner sang several selections.

Will Discuss School Plans

A county-wide Parent-Teacher Association meeting has been called for Saturday afternoon, February 15, at 2 o'clock, in the Court House, Oakland, to discuss possible plans for the new school building program and give specific backing to the legislators who are attempting to carry out the wishes of the majority, at Annapolis, regarding the school building program.

Emeric Dusic, president of the elementary P. T. A., said the approaching appointment of a new school superintendent would be one of the subjects discussed and urged a large attendance from all parts of the county. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, who has been in that position for over 35 years, is due to retire in December, 1948.

Legion To Back Sports

At a meeting of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, this week the members decided to sponsor a full sports program in Oakland.

A basketball team already has been organized with several games having been played away from home. Home games will be scheduled as soon as arangements can be made with the high school. The committee includes Robert Lohr, Richard Wolfe, Hensel Deckman and Albert Jordan.

Members are also planning to sponsor a baseball team this summer and gradually work into a program of baseball for the juniors of town. Members of the committee also said they would get the tennis court in shap on the Legion grounds for use this summer.

Southern States Meeting

Members of Southern States local farmer advisory boards from nine communities will gather in Oakland on Monday night, February 17, at 6:30 for their annual mid-winter regional conference. The meeting will be at the William-James Hotel with a dinner preceding the business session.

Boards from Davis, Eglon, Aurora, Kingwood, Brandonville, Valley Point, Bruceton Mills, Terra Alta, W. Va., and Oakland, Kitzbiller, Friendsville and Accident, Md., will attend.

Presiding at the session will be T. Roy Brookes, Athens, W. Va., a member of the co-operative board. Principal speaker will be G. L. Leitz, Baltimore. He will give company facts, news on farm supplies, feed, seed and fertilizer and the economic outlook for the next six months.

The group from Grantsville will attend the Cumberland meeting on February 18.

Mining Operations To Start

In spite of the inclement weather, those associated with the T. and T. Construction Company have gone ahead with bringing machinery here to begin coal strip mining operations in the Round Glade section, northwest of Oakland.

E. O. Taylor, member of the company, was here this week and announced that two steam shovels and a bulldozer had been brought here and were being taken to the job. Workmen also arrived this week and are looking for homes for themselves and families. They are Thomas Garner, Bob Dillman, John Nicely, John Reiner and Russell W. Harvey. The latter resides near Fort Pendleton.

Test Pilot Will Speak

Maj. A. S. "Speed" Chandler, aviation authority, will be the second speaker on the Oakland Rotary Club's next Institute of International Understanding in the Assembly room of St. Paul's Methodist Church next Monday night at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Co-operation or Confusion in a 10-mile a Minute Travel."

Maj. Chandler is an Army test pilot and has been flying since he was thirteen when a built a home-made glider and made his first flight. He has raced in the famous Indianapolis 500-mile speadway classics. Hollywood is to make three movies based on the episodes of his life. He has flown every type of Army plane, has crashed several times but was never injured. During World War II he was a test pilot in Canada, the United States, India, China and Burma and was Operations Officer for the WASPS.

He was the first man to transfer in mid-air from an automobile to a plane and from a plane to an automobile. He has also jumped from airplanes to speeding trains.

Maj. Chandler will speak at the High School on Monday afternoon also. His address at night will be followed by a question and answer period.

Oakland Speaker Defends Arabs In Palestine

Right To Retain Land Is Defended

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 14 — The Arab's right to retain his land in Palestine was defended Wednesday night by Aouney DeJany, of the Arabian legation in Washington, at the annual Ladies' night meeting of the Oakland Rotary Club.

In his address he pointed out that the Arabs had been in Palestine for 1500 years and that the Jewish people had no more moral right to the land than the Arabs. He was of the opinion that most of the talk for re-colonization of Palestine was from the organized Zionist movement in this country and declared most of the opposition to the Arabs was coming from the United States. He felt that that British people were appearing more fair in the matter.

The Arabs feel the same way about the large Jewish immigration into the Palestine as we would feel if 100,000 Jews were to be allowed to immigrate into the United States in one year, he continued.

About 90 Rotarians and their wives attended the dinner. Charles L. Briner sang several selections.

Emeric Dusic, president of the elementary P. T. A., said the approaching appointment of a new school superintendent would be one of the subjects discussed and urged a large attendance from all parts of the county. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, who has been in that position for over 35 years, is due to retire in December, 1948.

Members are also planning to sponsor a baseball team this summer and gradually work into a program of baseball for the juniors of town. Members of the committee also said they would get the tennis court in shap on the Legion grounds for use this summer.

Southern States Meeting

Members of Southern States local farmer advisory boards from nine communities will gather in Oakland on Monday night, February 17, at 6:30 for their annual mid-winter regional conference. The meeting will be at the William-James Hotel with a dinner preceding the business session.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13 — Helen Hunt Jackson's beloved old story of California, "Ramona," has been a good story almost since the beginning of the movies. So there's no reason why it won't be a winner again in it's fifth remake at any rate, 20th believes it will in a new musical dress, with a new title, "Song of Ramona."

The new 20th ranch at Malibu wil' be the setting plus the actual place Ramona is supposed to nave lived. Edmund Goulding, whose last movie was "Razor's Edge," is slated to direct with Bill Bacher at the production controls.

Jeanne Crain, who expects her baby March 17 believes she will be able to make the picture in May. This gives her a chance to do "Ramona" before "Glass Menagerie' which is set for late summer.

And last but far from least, "Song of Ramona" has a musical score written by Dave Rose and Lee Robins.

Little did I know or did George Sanders himself know that he would be leaving for Italy very soon when he came to see me a few days ago.

He was hoping to go far away from all his domestic unhappiness, and now he'll soon be headed for Italy to make "Then And Now," the Somerset Maugham story for Arnold Pressburger. Pressburger is making the Maugham story under the aegis of J. Arthur Rank, and it's the first of these movies to be made in Italy since the war.

"Then And Now," the story of Machiavelli, is set against the actual backgrounds and Marjorie Deans, who adapted all of George Bernard Shaw's movies, is doing the writing job. This will be the second picture George has made for Pressburger — The other was "Scandal in Paris."

While Barbara Stanwyck and Bob Taylor are in Europe, they'll look over the movie-making situation. Barbara knocked the sophisticates cold by taking off for Europe with just one trunk and no hats! That's the way to travel—says I who never do go short of six trunks and every chapeau I own!

The best reason the Taylors will spy out the movie making overseas is because Barbara is committed to make a picture for Enterprise next year in England.

If she likes the set-up she'll do a story Erich Remarque has written especially for her. Miss S. just finished "The Other Love" by Remarque and you can bet your boots she'll try to arrange for Bob to co-star with her.

Larry Park's devotion to his mother is one of Hollywood's sweetest stories. Mrs. Parks had been desperately ill for several years before she died recently of an incurable malady.

Even when Larry was making "The Jolson Story," he was up night after night with her. When he came to my house for an interview, he telephoned her nurse twice and hurried home to be with her.

He told me all his mother wanted was to see him make good in pictures, so you can imagine his happiness at being able to show her "The Jolson Story" a few weeks before her death.

John Wildberg, who is in town with his pretty blonde wife for the opening of "Anna Lucasta" on the 24th, reveals that in conjunction with Jack Hyiton, he plans to open his play in London. It will be John's first visit to London and he says he and his wife are very excited about it.

Arthur Rank has already expressed an interest in the film rights and it's possible that Wildberg may sell it to the British movie mogul.

Too bad it isn't a deal with Alex Korda, for Paulette Goddard, whose British movie activities are tied up with the Korda organization, has always wanted to play the temptress Anna Lucasta.

Who do you think is going to tell us about our little feathered friends in the movies? You'd never, never guess. Cigar-smoking comic Ken Murray has just closed a deal with Republic for "Bill And Coo," which tells about the private life of the birds.

A featurette it is and is based on an act in the Murray "Blackouts" called "George Burton and his Love Birds." These little birdies will be the stars of the picture. They do every stunt in the world, from turning summersaults to standing on their heads but don't think that Ken won't get in some of his own personal dialogue.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Joan Caulfield was treated at the Warner Studio hospital today for bruises when she fell and badly hurt her leg.

News has just come out that Louanna Walters, an actress at Republic and Max Hoffman, Jr.s widow, was secretly married a week ago in Mexico. Her bridegroom is said to be Robert King, a cameraman.

Freddie Martin and his reconciled wife, Lillian, are going to be remarried any day.

Kim Hunter, recently divorced and just returned from England, is spending her leisure moments with Robert Daley.

Mrs. Otto Preminger has left Hollywood once again and will spend the rest of the year visiting in Chile and other South American countries. At the time of her separation from Otto, she planned to marry someone else, but later the Premingers reconciled.

Howard Hawks has given the girl he most admires, Doris Lilley, a good job. He's put her to work as a talent scout to find an unknown girl for the lead in his next picture.

Don't tell my boss, but I took time off and went to the races. A lot of other people were out there, too. Cary Grant did alright on Blue Pennant, a nag that romped in and paid the biggest price of the day. He was with Eddie Robinson. Mickey Rooney with a pretty blonde, head and shoulders above him, attracted lots of attention—so did Betty Grable's red cigaret holder. I had my usual assortment of losers, but a good time.

Betty Hutton gave her mother a surprise party and four sables to top it off—Betty's a good daughter.

Eleanor Parker, who has worked for four months steady, will probably go to Europe on a vacation with Bert Friedlob before she starts "The Voice Of The Turtle."

The conservative Brian Aherne has blossomed out in a red sunbeam—a British automobile to you, kids. Extra parts, too, were sent along, which is more than most Americans can get for their cars.

Mrs. Charles Haas, wife of the young man who will produce "Moonrise," welcomed a seven pound girl.

That's all today.

Negroes comprised approximately 19 per cent of the population of the U. S. 150 years ago. They now comprise approximately 9.8 per cent of the population.

Flintstone P-TA To Hold Evening Social March 22

Bazaar Corner Will Be One Feature

By MRS. H. V. BENDER

FLINTSTONE, Feb. 14—Announcement has been made of an evening social which will be held at the Flintstone School on Saturday, March 22, under the sponsorship of the Parent-Teacher Association.

A magician act and a "bazaar corner," the latter consisting of a display of articles made of feed sacks, will be featured. Committees named for the event include Mrs. Roy Shryock and Mrs. Ralph Buser, Town Creek; Mrs. Russell Smith, Polish Mountain; Mrs. A. Miltenberger; Pleasant Valley; Mrs. Nelson Willison, Twiggtown; Mrs. R. I. Gilson, Gilpen; Mrs. Harry Bender, Flintstone, and Mrs. M. Harmon, school.

"Opportunities in the Flintstone School" was the theme of the P-TA meeting at the school last night. The program was arranged by Miss Mary Morgan, Mrs. Florence Robinette and Mrs. Roy Shryock.

Roseanne Willison described the music program she and William Buser, another senior, attended in Baltimore. Two other seniors, Christine Smith and Perry Shryock, described recent trips in connection with their work at the school, and the latter told of his experiences while attending the Victory convention of the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, Mo.

In a report on graduating classes, it was stated that from 1913 to 1946 a total of 359 have been graduated, 160 boys and 199 girls. Of this group, 75 per cent are now engaged in farming as a full-time occupation.

A definite report is scheduled for the March meeting on the progress of plans for establishing a health center in Flintstone. The committee includes Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer; Mrs. Isabel Laughlin, county health nurse; Mrs. Nola Smith, Mrs. E. H. Roland, Miss Lena Twigg, J. S. Roland and Bradye Dolly.

The next meeting of the group will be held March 12 at the school, with Earl E. Manges, Cumberland attorney, speaking on the topic "Law Protects the Home." The program will be in charge of Bradye Dolly, president, assisted by Esther Morrison, Mrs. Louise Odgers and Mrs. Smith.

Washington's Birthday Dinner

HOLIDAY TABLE GLAMOR . . . Patriotic red, white, blue.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

You will want a red-white-and-blue table for a Washington's Birthday dinner party, as half the fun of giving a party on a holiday is the decorations.

A white Irish linen tablecloth is the perfect beginning for this patriotic color scheme. Then you can use blue pottery or blue banded white china—and red flowers—roses, carnations or gladiolas.

A really fine George Washington's decoration can be made by arranging red roses around a thick white candle (which stands for the Washington Monument). Or if you like to pay tribute to the cherry tree legend, combine red and white gladiolas in a section of cork bark, which you can buy at any florist's.

Here is a menu for this gala day:

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY MENU

Tomato Canape
Pot Roast in Claret
Red Cabbage
Spoon Bread
Deep Dish Cherry Pie

There are lots of different reds in that dinner, but they will blend well with each other.

Tomato Canape

4 slices tomato, ½ inch thick
4 three-inch bread rounds
Mayonnaise
Mustard
Paprika

Saute bread rounds lightly in butter or margarine. Place slice of tomato on each. Spread lightly with mustard. Spread mayonnaise thickly on top. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place three inches from flame on broiler for about three mins. or until mayonnaise puffs and browns.

Pot Roast in Claret

4 pounds boneless chuck
2 small carrots, sliced
2 medium-sized onions, sliced
3 stalks celery, diced
¼ teaspoon allspice
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
2 bay leaves, broken small
2 tablespoons fat
12 whole cloves
2 tablespoons seedless raisins
4 whole black peppers
2 cups claret

Marinate meat two hours in wine, which has been mixed with all other ingredients, turning meat frequently. Remove meat and sear it on all sides in fat Dutch oven. When brown, add wine mixture. Cover and simmer gently until meat is tender about two and a half hours). Remove meat from pot and strain liquid. Thicken with flour and season with salt to taste. Place meat back in gravy for a few minutes to be sure all is thoroughly heated.

Deep Dish Cherry Pie

4 cups pitted sour cherries
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
Butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
Rich Pastry

Spread a third of the cherries in the bottom of a deep oven-proof dish. Cover with a third of the sugar, dot with butter or margarine, and sprinkle with a level teaspoon of flour. Repeat until all the cherries are used. Pour the water over. Top with pie-crust—cut into stars for the holiday touch. Bake in 450° oven about 45 mins. Serve hot with vanilla ice cream, if you like.

DeMille Casts Union Leaders In Tyrant Roles

Calls On Congress To Come To Rescue

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Movie Maker Cecil B. DeMille cast union leaders today in the role of whip-cracking tyrants and pleaded with Congress to come to the rescue.

"I am pleading for the individual worker," the Hollywood producer told the Senate Labor Committee.

"I see the same feeling of fear among unions in this country as I felt on a trip to Russia."

DeMille was one of several witnesses who voiced strong feelings on the need of labor law changes, now being studied by Senate and House Labor Committees.

Others Give Testimony

Samples of what the others had to say:

Harold W. Story, vice president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company—"Congress must develop a legislative weed killer which will nullify the destructive effects of Communistic union leadership without harming the grass of sound unionism."

Grant L. Cook, corporation Lawyer representing the Detroit Board of Trade—Union members know they "are being played as suckers" by their leaders and "at least 90 per cent of American workmen today are not in accord with the demands and desires of many of their leaders."

Also Circuit Court Justice George B. Murphy, of Detroit, reported that indictments have been returned against the teamsters and riggers unions in Detroit on charges of extortion and trying to compel workers to join a union against their will.

Union Leaders To Give Views

Murphy appeared before a House Expenditures Subcommittee in its study of whether the anti-racketeering law needs to be strengthened to prevent union interference with interstate commerce.

DeMille and Story were Senate Labor Committee witnesses; Cook appeared before the House labor group. These committees are to start hearing union leaders next week, to be climaxed with an appearance of John L. Lewis February 26.

DeMille argued particularly for a prohibition against the closed shop, under which a man must be a union member to get a job. He said this is as much a form of slavery as that which was wiped out in the Civil War.

GETS THE STORY—"Champion Galahad," two-year-old St. Bernard, lends an attentive ear as Mrs. Jane Hoyt, Bethel, Conn., reads a list of competitors in the Westminster Kennel Club show at New York's Madison Square Garden where Galahad was judged best of his breed.

Child Describes Father's Slaying

Detroit, Feb. 14 (AP)—Little, blue-eyed Frankie DeVore, with the candor of childhood, told in court today how her nine-year-old world was shattered by a shotgun blast that killed her father.

The attractive child was the state's star witness against her mother, Vera, 38, charged with the first degree murder of her father last October 14.

Frankie wore a red hat and skirt and carried a red purse, gifts from relatives who gave her a birthday party Tuesday in the gloomy confines of Recorder's Court where her mother is on trial.

The little girl, bright and gay, drew sketches on a Valentine as she waited quietly in Judge W. McKay Sullivan's chambers before taking the witness stand.

Her mother, who said she shot Robert DeVore, 41, when her mind "snapped" during her husband's four-day drinking spree, faces a mandatory life term if convicted.

With the jury of five women and seven men leaning forward to follow the little girl's low, silky voice, Frankie told of the slaying.

She was home in bed with a cold October 14, the child began, and her mother was asleep beside her. Mrs. DeVore awoke "and went over and got the gun and loaded it."

"She went just behind the door where he was laying," Frankie added.

"Then did she shoot him?" Platt asked.

"Yes," the child replied, fidgeting with her hands but keeping her solemn eyes on her questioner.

Man Who Posed As Tax Collector Is Sentenced

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14 (AP)—Russell J. Rogers, 60, was sentenced today to 10 years in a federal prison by Judge William C. Coleman after he admitted in court he had collected sums of money from 37 Baltimoreans while posing as an income tax collector.

Assistant United States Attorney Thomas G. Gray told Judge Coleman that the short and rotund native of Cleveland, O., had used 33 aliases, one of which was "H. I. Neighbor."

Rogers was arrested two weeks ago by FBI agents while combing through a city directory in the public library for new "prospects," the agents testified. They estimated he had obtained a total of $2,000 by impersonating a federal employe.

Russia Objects To China Having Full Treaty Voice

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Russia objected tonight to China's participating as a major power in writing the German peace treaty, American sources said.

Feodor Gousev, the Soviet representative at the conference of Deputy Foreign Ministers of the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France, insisted that the final European peace settlements be managed at top level by the Big Four and not by the Big Five.

Russia's opposition to China's major power role in Europe came to light, the American sources said, as the deputies discussed a Russian idea on the organization to frame the German treaty.

Gousev proposed that the powers which accepted the German surrender at Berlin—the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France—draft the complete treaty, then submit it to a peace conference at which all the Allied nations would participate

County Board Approves Teacher Pay Raise Plan

School Building Projects Deferred

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday unanimously approved a proposed bill to increase the pay of public school teachers and two members of the three-man board expressed the opinion that the Board of Education, through the Superintendent of Schools, should have asked for teacher pay raises six or eight years ago.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, who in past years has attempted to obtain pay raises for teachers, presented the current proposal to the board. He made no reply to charges of Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr. and Commissioner William H. Lemmert that the present teacher shortage could have been avoided if Kopp had sought pay raises for teachers six or eight years ago.

The record shows that Kopp requested $150 annual increase in 1942, per teacher, but the county board refused it. That year an increase of 10 per cent was allowed for school buses and five per cent for janitors, but teachers' pay was not raised because the Board did not approve Kopp's recommendation.

After some discussion on the proposal, the Commissioners passed a resolution favoring the new pay schedule and favoring its passage by the General Assembly, in an effort to remedy the critical shortage of teachers and to raise the pay standards of those in the teaching profession.

Under the proposed schedule, the starting salary would be $2,400 a year, as compared with $1,500 at present. Teachers in their first year, however, are now paid $1,800, including a $300 adjustment approved last year by the commissioners.

Appearing with Kopp before the board today were Edgar A. Dashiell, president of the Board of Education; Harold C. Wickard G. Stanly Hunter and Lewyn C. Davis, representing the Allegany County Teachers' Association.

Under the proposed schedule $100 would be added each year to the annual salary, until at the end of 17 years service a teacher would be paid $3,900.

Kopp also informed the Commissioners that the Board of Education at a meeting Tuesday had agreed to defer any building program for at least two years, until the costs of labor and materials have come down.

He presented an excerpt from the School Board minutes explaining that the legislature had authorized $800,000 for construction of schools at Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Ellerslie, but that at present day costs, $2,895,000 will be required to build these three structures. The School Board does not wish to ask for an additional $2,000,000 school bond issue at this time, and has agreed to defer the project until later.

U. S. Fighter Plane Pilot Loses Race With Death

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 14 (AP)—Lt. Col. Duane Beeson, 25-year-old fighter plane pilot credited with downing 23 German planes during the recent war, died last night aboard an Army transport plane rushing him to Walter Reed Hospital at Washington, his parents were notified here.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beeson, the parents, were advised by the Red Cross that the flier had been a patient at an Atlanta, Ga., hospital for treatment of what was believed to have been a brain tumor.

Mrs. Beeson said the airman's wife, Mrs. Tracey Beeson, Baltimore, Md., whom he married January 25, 1946, was with him when he died on a transport plane just as its wheels touched the landing strip in Washington.

Army Witnesses In Durant Trial Hard To Locate

Subpoena Servers Are Being Evaded

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Army said today that some of its prospective witnesses against Col. Jack W. Durant, on trial in connection with the theft of the Hesse crown jewels, are evading subpoena servers.

This came out along with new evidence which hinted that the Chicago underworld may still have part of the $1,500,000 in gems taken from Kronberg Castle in Germany.

Maj. Joseph Robinson, prosecutor, said he may require another week or ten days to present his case because of difficulty in getting some witnesses.

"I don't know if I will be successful in serving process on some witnesses," Robinson told the military court trying Durant. Durant is charged with violating three articles of war, including one against larceny.

Durant's wife, Mrs. Kathleen Nash Durant, was convicted of conspiracy in the case at a military trial in Germany. She was sentenced to serve five years. Both Durant and his wife, a WAC captain, served at the castle during the war.

Dr. Lemoine Snyder, medical-legal director of the Michigan State Police, told the court today that Durant, while held by Army investigators, had arranged by telephone for a "fence" to place some of the missing jewels in a Chicago railroad station locker.

Dr. Snyder added that Durant contended the "fence" had not returned all the diamonds and emeralds when the jewels were later recovered from the station.

Army investigators have said part of the jewels have not been located.

Trades Council

Commissioners Wilkinson and Lemmert asserted that there are many roads in the county needing repairs and that Fairgo is a "commercial enterprise." A similar request last year by White was also rejected.

Dr. George H. Preston, state commissioner of mental hygiene, asked the board to advise him in advance when patients from this county are to be sent to institutions. He cited that all such places are overcrowded.

Seek More State Funds

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., former attorney to the board, reported that some steps should be taken to obtain more funds from the state, in payment for the care of patients at Sylvan Retreat. He cited that Allegany is the only county in Maryland which has its own asylum, and other counties sent patients to state institutions.

Whitworth explained that the state had been paying the county $8,000 a year, since the state is thus relieved of the expense in caring for mental cases. He suggested that $20,000 a year would be an adequate amount, and urged the board to contact the county members of the General Assembly and seek $20,000 in the governor's supplemental budget.

Members of the board approved the proposal by Whitworth, who cited that the number of asylum patients has increased and the cost of maintaining them has also been boosted in recent years.

A hearing was started before the board on petitions filed by residents of the Corriganville area, who protested the proposed closing of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing on the Wills-Creek-Corriganville-Ellerslie Road, but the session was continued until a later date.

Recess Requested

William A. Gunter and D. Lindley Sloan, attorneys for the railroad company, asked a recess, in order to check on the ownership of land along the road.

The proposed closing of the crossing is being opposed by several score residents of the area, including members of the American Legion and the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company. The firemen contend they would be unable to reach the creek and obtain water for their booster tank in case of emergency. George C. DeHaven, James H. Thompson and C. H. Walters appeared today to voice their protests.

The railroad attorneys contended the road was abandoned some years ago, after the improved Mt. Savage Road was built, and declared that the crossing was dangerous and cannot be improved, due to the location of the tracks. They also cited the large number of freight and passenger trains passing at that point presented a hazard to users of the road and crossing.

Overton, Brooks To Vote Against David Lilienthal

McKellar Musters Fresh Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Sens. Overton (D-La) and Brooks (R-Ill) today announced they will vote against David E. Lilienthal for chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and Sen. Russell (D-Ga) said he might, too.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, meanwhile, said that what he knows about Lilienthal "is good," and the Oak Ridge Association of Engineers and Scientists announced the nominee has its "confidence."

The Federation of American Scientists, many of whom worked on the atomic project during the war, meanwhile urged prompt senatorial confirmation of all members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"Any other action, we believe," the federation said, "will have the gravest consequences for our peace and security and for the future development of atomic energy."

The new pros and cons came during a lull in Senate Atomic Committee hearings as Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn), battling against Lilienthal's confirmation, mustered fresh witnesses. They will be heard on Monday, when the hearings enter their fourth week.

Brooks issued a statement saying that "anyone who has had affiliation or association with Communism or with those who have been associated or affiliated with Communism should be denied this important post." Lilienthal has denied any such affiliation and President Truman yesterday termed the charges "absolutely unfounded."

Overton, in another statement, declared that "the United States is not so meagerly supplied with capable men that it must place the peace and security of the nation and the world in the care of one about whom so much controversy rages. Mr. Lilienthal is not the indispensable man."

jected by the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission which, after seven months, adopted a report for the parent council embodying all the basic ideas of Bernard M. Baruch's American plan The commission vote, taken December 31, was 10 to 0 with Russia and Poland abstaining.

Veto Possibility Raised

During the commission debate, Gromyko had turned down the United States proposals but his outspoken opposition again today raised the possibility that he might go so far as to veto the whole report in the council.

Gromyko emphasized Russia's rejection of the American demand that the veto be eliminated in the punishment of atomic violators. He said such a decision would undermine "the foundations of the very existence of this organization."

Gromyko termed the American proposals "one-sided" and designed "to secure a position of monopoly in the atomic energy production for one country."

He quickly described such an aim as an illusion "since the position of monopoly of any one country in this field cannot continue for an indefinite period—it seems everybody agrees on this."

The American plan pivots on a system of international inspections and veto-free punishment for violators as a condition to outlawing atomic bombs. The United States has said it would reveal the secrets of the bomb stage by stage with the setting up of such control machinery.

Action On Women's Jury Service Bill Is Deferred

State Senate Delays Consideration Until Next Thursday Pending Study Of Constitutionality

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP)—The hacked-over legislation which would allow women to serve on juries in some parts of Maryland was hung up to dry again in the Senate today, pending some more study of its constitutionality.

As the bill was called up for passage, Chairman Bolton (D-Balto County), of the Judiciary Committee, asked that action be held up until next Thursday.

Bolton said he had received from the Attorney General's office a verbal opinion that the measure is constitutional, but he believed the Senate should have a written opinion.

The constitutional matter was raised Tuesday when the committee reported the bill and various senators managed to get exemptions for 10 counties.

Much of the last day of the seventh week was devoted to a joint session of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees, as they started an item-by-item consideration of Gov. Lane's $91,000,000 budget.

The House, which had no third reading calendar at all when it convened, suspended its rules and sent to Gov. Lane eight bills which would provide for referenda at Baltimore City's election on bond issues totaling $55,000,000. The issues would be for various purposes, including a new stadium, airport, improvement of schools and others.

An investigation of operations of the Department of Public Welfare was asked in a resolution submitted by Delegate Luber (D-Balto 5th).

Luber said that widespread publicity had caused concern over "the possible existence of fraud and especially as to laxity in administration of public welfare."

The resolution, asking Gov. Lane to name the investigating body, was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

There was no objection from the Senate floor when Bolton asked for delay in action on the women's jury service bill.

Bolton said it might yet be determined that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to effectuate jury service for women. In previous debate it was pointed out that Article Five of Maryland's Constitution guaranteed inhabitants operation of the "common law of England," which does not permit women to serve in juries.

Further arguments on constitutionality arose when the 10 counties were exempted. They are Allegany, Carroll, Garrett, Washington, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Worcester, Howard, St. Mary's and Kent.

Earlier in the day in a discussion of educational problems, Gov. Lane said the fixing of a minimum salary for teachers is "up to the Legislature." He reiterated the statement at his Friday afternoon press conference.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Education, and teachers' representatives have asked for a $2,200 starting salary. The Republican minority in the Senate has said it would ask for $2,000, while current budgetary proposals have $1,800. The present law fixes the beginning minimum at $1,500.

"The teachers' salary problem is part of an overall problem," Lane said. "I don't feel that I should name a figure for the Legislature because it would appear like dictating what it is to do."

instead of declaring that it "shall" be cut.

Party lines were crossed frequently in the voting.

While Republican Sen. Gurney led the battle against the $6,000,000,000 slash, Democratic Sen. McKellar of Tennessee, and Byrd of Virginia, joined in support of the Republicans in the reduction drive.

Fields Sentenced To 90 Days In Jail

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—Accusing Benjamin Franklin Fields of "cunning evasiveness," Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff today sentenced him to 90 days in jail and $250 fine for contempt of the House Surplus Property Investigating Committee.

Fields, a Washington promoter who figured also in the Garsson munitions inquiry, was released on $500 bond, however, pending an appeal of his conviction to the United States Court of Appeals here.

He was convicted February 5 on charges arising from failure to supply the committee with his complete records on a sale of surplus bronze screening to C. B. Warr, an Oklahoma City builder, which he arranged. The records dealt with the distribution of a $4,400 commission on the sale in which the government said Fields made a 59 per cent profit.

His attorney, William Dougherty, arguing for a light sentence, contended the government itself was confused as to just what records were lacking and pleaded that Fields could not be blamed for similar confusion. Dougherty added there was no wilful refusal by Fields to submit the records.

Man Sought In Deputy Sheriff's Slaying Killed

COUNCIL HILL, Okla., Feb. 14 (AP) — An Oklahoma highway patrolman today shot and killed J. W. Beasley, 22-year-old fugitive wanted for the slaying of a deputy sheriff, as the youth's wife and baby son watched.

The Highway Patrol said Trooper Howard H. Hill killed Beasley in a gunfire exchange as the youth ran across a field to escape arrest for the slaying Wednesday of Deputy Sheriff Lon Pearson, of Pauls Valley. He had leaped from a pickup truck in which his young wife and two-year-son, Buddy, were riding.

The two-day search for Beasley ended after the patrol received reports the fleeing man and his family were headed toward Muskogee on country roads nearly 100 miles from the scene of the original shooting.

DeMille Casts Union Leaders In Tyrant Roles

Calls On Congress To Come To Rescue

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Movie Maker Cecil B. DeMille cast union leaders today in the role of whip-cracking tyrants and pleaded with Congress to come to the rescue.

"I am pleading for the individual worker," the Hollywood producer told the Senate Labor Committee.

"I see the same feeling of fear among unions in this country as I felt on a trip to Russia."

DeMille was one of several witnesses who voiced strong feelings on the need of labor law changes, now being studied by Senate and House Labor Committees.

Others Give Testimony

Samples of what the others had to say:

Harold W. Story, vice president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company—"Congress must develop a legislative weed killer which will nullify the destructive effects of Communistic union leadership without harming the grass of sound unionism."

Grant L. Cook, corporation Lawyer representing the Detroit Board of Trade—Union members know they "are being played as suckers" by their leaders and "at least 90 per cent of American workmen today are not in accord with the demands and desires of many of their leaders."

Also Circuit Court Justice George B. Murphy, of Detroit, reported that indictments have been returned against the teamsters and riggers unions in Detroit on charges of extortion and trying to compel workers to join a union against their will.

Union Leaders To Give Views

Murphy appeared before a House Expenditures Subcommittee in its study of whether the anti-racketeering law needs to be strengthened to prevent union interference with interstate commerce.

DeMille and Story were Senate Labor Committee witnesses; Cook appeared before the House labor group. These committees are to start hearing union leaders next week, to be climaxed with an appearance of John L. Lewis February 26.

DeMille argued particularly for a prohibition against the closed shop, under which a man must be a union member to get a job. He said this is as much a form of slavery as that which was wiped out in the Civil War.

Child Describes Father's Slaying

Detroit, Feb. 14 (AP)—Little, blue-eyed Frankie DeVore, with the candor of childhood, told in court today how her nine-year-old world was shattered by a shotgun blast that killed her father.

The attractive child was the state's star witness against her mother, Vera, 38, charged with the first degree murder of her father last October 14.

Frankie wore a red hat and skirt and carried a red purse, gifts from relatives who gave her a birthday party Tuesday in the gloomy confines of Recorder's Court where her mother is on trial.

The little girl, bright and gay, drew sketches on a Valentine as she waited quietly in Judge W. McKay Sullivan's chambers before taking the witness stand.

Her mother, who said she shot Robert DeVore, 41, when her mind "snapped" during her husband's four-day drinking spree, faces a mandatory life term if convicted.

With the jury of five women and seven men leaning forward to follow the little girl's low, silky voice, Frankie told of the slaying.

She was home in bed with a cold October 14, the child began, and her mother was asleep beside her. Mrs. DeVore awoke "and went over and got the gun and loaded it."

"She went just behind the door where he was laying," Frankie added.

"Then did she shoot him?" Platt asked.

"Yes," the child replied, fidgeting with her hands but keeping her solemn eyes on her questioner.

Man Who Posed As Tax Collector Is Sentenced

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14 (AP)—Russell J. Rogers, 60, was sentenced today to 10 years in a federal prison by Judge William C. Coleman after he admitted in court he had collected sums of money from 37 Baltimoreans while posing as an income tax collector.

Assistant United States Attorney Thomas G. Gray told Judge Coleman that the short and rotund native of Cleveland, O., had used 33 aliases, one of which was "H. I. Neighbor."

Rogers was arrested two weeks ago by FBI agents while combing through a city directory in the public library for new "prospects," the agents testified. They estimated he had obtained a total of $2,000 by impersonating a federal employe.

County Board Approves Teacher Pay Raise Plan

School Building Projects Deferred

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday unanimously approved a proposed bill to increase the pay of public school teachers and two members of the three-man board expressed the opinion that the Board of Education, through the Superintendent of Schools, should have asked for teacher pay raises six or eight years ago.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, who in past years has attempted to obtain pay raises for teachers, presented the current proposal to the board. He made no reply to charges of Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr. and Commissioner William H. Lemmert that the present teacher shortage could have been avoided if Kopp had sought pay raises for teachers six or eight years ago.

The record shows that Kopp requested $150 annual increase in 1942, per teacher, but the county board refused it. That year an increase of 10 per cent was allowed for school buses and five per cent for janitors, but teachers' pay was not raised because the Board did not approve Kopp's recommendation.

After some discussion on the proposal, the Commissioners passed a resolution favoring the new pay schedule and favoring its passage by the General Assembly, in an effort to remedy the critical shortage of teachers and to raise the pay standards of those in the teaching profession.

Under the proposed schedule, the starting salary would be $2,400 a year, as compared with $1,500 at present. Teachers in their first year, however, are now paid $1,800, including a $300 adjustment approved last year by the commissioners.

Appearing with Kopp before the board today were Edgar A. Dashiell, president of the Board of Education; Harold C. Wickard G. Stanly Hunter and Lewyn C. Davis, representing the Allegany County Teachers' Association.

Under the proposed schedule $100 would be added each year to the annual salary, until at the end of 17 years service a teacher would be paid $3,900.

Kopp also informed the Commissioners that the Board of Education at a meeting Tuesday had agreed to defer any building program for at least two years, until the costs of labor and materials have come down.

He presented an excerpt from the School Board minutes explaining that the legislature had authorized $800,000 for construction of schools at Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Ellerslie, but that at present day costs, $2,895,000 will be required to build these three structures. The School Board does not wish to ask for an additional $2,000,000 school bond issue at this time, and has agreed to defer the project until later.

U. S. Fighter Plane Pilot Loses Race With Death

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 14 (AP)—Lt. Col. Duane Beeson, 25-year-old fighter plane pilot credited with downing 23 German planes during the recent war, died last night aboard an Army transport plane rushing him to Walter Reed Hospital at Washington, his parents were notified here.

Mrs. Beeson said the airman's wife, Mrs. Tracey Beeson, Baltimore, Md., whom he married January 25, 1946, was with him when he died on a transport plane just as its wheels touched the landing strip in Washington.

Army Witnesses In Durant Trial Hard To Locate

Subpoena Servers Are Being Evaded

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Army said today that some of its prospective witnesses against Col. Jack W. Durant, on trial in connection with the theft of the Hesse crown jewels, are evading subpoena servers.

This came out along with new evidence which hinted that the Chicago underworld may still have part of the $1,500,000 in gems taken from Kronberg Castle in Germany.

Maj. Joseph Robinson, prosecutor, said he may require another week or ten days to present his case because of difficulty in getting some witnesses.

"I don't know if I will be successful in serving process on some witnesses," Robinson told the military court trying Durant. Durant is charged with violating three articles of war, including one against larceny.

Durant's wife, Mrs. Kathleen Nash Durant, was convicted of conspiracy in the case at a military trial in Germany. She was sentenced to serve five years. Both Durant and his wife, a WAC captain, served at the castle during the war.

Dr. Lemoine Snyder, medical-legal director of the Michigan State Police, told the court today that Durant, while held by Army investigators, had arranged by telephone for a "fence" to place some of the missing jewels in a Chicago railroad station locker.

Dr. Snyder added that Durant contended the "fence" had not returned all the diamonds and emeralds when the jewels were later recovered from the station.

Army investigators have said part of the jewels have not been located.

Commissioners Wilkinson and Lemmert asserted that there are many roads in the county needing repairs and that Fairgo is a "commercial enterprise." A similar request last year by White was also rejected.

Dr. George H. Preston, state commissioner of mental hygiene, asked the board to advise him in advance when patients from this county are to be sent to institutions. He cited that all such places are overcrowded.

Seek More State Funds

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., former attorney to the board, reported that some steps should be taken to obtain more funds from the state, in payment for the care of patients at Sylvan Retreat. He cited that Allegany is the only county in Maryland which has its own asylum, and other counties sent patients to state institutions.

Whitworth explained that the state had been paying the county $8,000 a year, since the state is thus relieved of the expense in caring for mental cases. He suggested that $20,000 a year would be an adequate amount, and urged the board to contact the county members of the General Assembly and seek $20,000 in the governor's supplemental budget.

Members of the board approved the proposal by Whitworth, who cited that the number of asylum patients has increased and the cost of maintaining them has also been boosted in recent years.

A hearing was started before the board on petitions filed by residents of the Corriganville area, who protested the proposed closing of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing on the Wills-Creek-Corriganville-Ellerslie Road, but the session was continued until a later date.

Recess Requested

William A. Gunter and D. Lindley Sloan, attorneys for the railroad company, asked a recess, in order to check on the ownership of land along the road.

The proposed closing of the crossing is being opposed by several score residents of the area, including members of the American Legion and the Corriganville Volunteer Fire Company. The firemen contend they would be unable to reach the creek and obtain water for their booster tank in case of emergency. George C. DeHaven, James H. Thompson and C. H. Walters appeared today to voice their protests.

The railroad attorneys contended the road was abandoned some years ago, after the improved Mt. Savage Road was built, and declared that the crossing was dangerous and cannot be improved, due to the location of the tracks. They also cited the large number of freight and passenger trains passing at that point presented a hazard to users of the road and crossing.

Overton, Brooks To Vote Against David Lilienthal

McKellar Musters Fresh Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Sens. Overton (D-La) and Brooks (R-Ill) today announced they will vote aganist David E. Lilienthal for chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and Sen. Russell (D-Ga) said he might, too.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, meanwhile, said that what he knows about Lilienthal "is good," and the Oak Ridge Association of Engineers and Scientists announced the nominee has its "confidence."

The Federation of American Scientists, many of whom worked on the atomic project during the war, meanwhile urged prompt senatorial confirmation of all members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"Any other action, we believe,' the federation said, "will have the gravest consequences for our peace and security and for the future development of atomic energy."

The new pros and cons came during a lull in Senate Atomic Committee hearings as Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn), battling against Lilienthal's confirmation, mustered fresh witnesses. They will be heard on Monday, when the hearings enter their fourth week.

Brooks issued a statement saying that "anyone who has had affiliation or association with Communism or with those who have been associated or affiliated with Communism should be denied this important post." Lilienthal has denied any such affiliation and President Truman yesterday termed the charges "absolutely unfounded."

Overton, in another statement, declared that "the United States is not so meagerly supplied with capable men that it must place the peace and security of the nation and the world in the care of one about whom so much controversy rages. Mr. Lilienthal is not the indispensable man."

jected by the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission which, after seven months, adopted a report for the parent council embodying all the basic ideas of Bernard M. Baruch's American plan The commission vote, taken December 31, was 10 to 0 with Russia and Poland abstaining.

Veto Possibility Raised

During the commission debate, Gromyko had turned down the United States proposals but his outspoken opposition again today raised the possibility that he might go so far as to veto the whole report in the council.

Gromyko emphasized Russia's rejection of the American demand that the veto be eliminated in the punishment of atomic violators. He said such a decision would undermine "the foundations of the very existence of this organization."

Gromyko termed the American proposals "one-sided" and designed "to secure a position of monopoly in the atomic energy production for one country."

He quickly described such an aim as an illusion "since the position of monopoly of any one country in this field cannot continue for an indefinite period—it seems everybody agrees on this."

The American plan pivots on a system of international inspections and veto-free punishment for violators as a condition to outlawing atomic bombs. The United States has said it would reveal the secrets of the bomb stage by stage with the setting up of such control machinery.

Action On Women's Jury Service Bill Is Deferred

State Senate Delays Consideration Until Next Thursday Pending Study Of Constitutionality

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP)—The hacked-over legislation which would allow women to serve on juries in some parts of Maryland was hung up to dry again in the Senate today, pending some more study of its constitutionality.

As the bill was called up for passage, Chairman Bolton (D-Balto County), of the Judiciary Committee, asked that action be held up until next Thursday.

Bolton said he had received from the Attorney General's office a verbal opinion that the measure is constitutional, but he believed the Senate should have a written opinion.

The constitutional matter was raised Tuesday when the committee reported the bill and various senators managed to get exemptions for 10 counties.

Much of the last day of the seventh week was devoted to a joint session of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees, as they started an item-by-item consideration of Gov. Lane's $91,000,000 budget.

The House, which had no third reading calendar at all when it convened, suspended its rules and sent to Gov. Lane eight bills which would provide for referenda at Baltimore City's election on bond issues totaling $55,000,000. The issues would be for various purposes, including a new stadium, airport, improvement of schools and others.

An investigation of operations of the Department of Public Welfare was asked in a resolution submitted by Delegate Luber (D-Balto 5th).

Luber said that widespread publicity had caused concern over "the possible existence of fraud and especially as to laxity in administration of public welfare."

The resolution, asking Gov. Lane to name the investigating body, was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

There was no objection from the Senate floor when Bolton asked for delay in action on the women's jury service bill.

Bolton said it might yet be determined that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to effectuate jury service for women. In previous debate it was pointed out that Article Five of Maryland's Constitution guaranteed inhabitants operation of the "common law of England," which does not permit women to serve in juries.

Further arguments on constitutionality arose when the 10 counties were exempted. They are Allegany, Carroll, Garrett, Washington, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Worcester, Howard, St. Mary's and Kent.

Earlier in the day in a discussion of educational problems, Gov. Lane said the fixing of a minimum salary for teachers is "up to the Legislature." He reiterated the statement at his Friday afternoon press conference.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Education, and teachers' representatives have asked for a $2,200 starting salary. The Republican minority in the Senate has said it would ask for $2,000, while current budgetary proposals have $1,800. The present law fixes the beginning minimum at $1,500.

"The teachers' salary problem is part of an overall problem," Lane said. "I don't feel that I should name a figure for the Legislature because it would appear like dictating what it is to do."

Armed Forces

instead of declaring that it "shall" be cut.

Party lines were crossed frequently in the voting.

While Republican Sen. Gurney led the battle against the $6,000,000,000 slash, Democratic Sen. McKellar of Tennessee, and Byrd of Virginia, joined in support of the Republicans in the reduction drive.

Fields Sentenced To 90 Days In Jail

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—Accusing Benjamin Franklin Fields of "cunning evasiveness," Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff today sentenced him to 90 days in jail and $250 fine for contempt of the House Surplus Property Investigating Committee.

Fields, a Washington promoter who figured also in the Garsson munitions inquiry, was released on $500 bond, however, pending an appeal of his conviction to the United States Court of Appeals here.

He was convicted February 5 on charges arising from failure to supply the committee with his complete records on a sale of surplus bronze screening to C. B. Warr, an Oklahoma City builder, which he arranged. The records dealt with the distribution of a $4,400 commission on the sale in which the government said Fields made a 59 per cent profit.

His attorney, William Dougherty, arguing for a light sentence, contended the government itself was confused as to just what records were lacking and pleaded that Fields could not be blamed for similar confusion. Dougherty added there was no wilful refusal by Fields to submit the records.

Man Sought In Deputy Sheriff's Slaying Killed

COUNCIL HILL, Okla., Feb. 14 (AP) — An Oklahoma highway patrolman today shot and killed J. W. Beasley, 22-year-old fugitive wanted for the slaying of a deputy sheriff, as the youth's wife and baby son watched.

The Highway Patrol said Trooper Howard H. Hill killed Beasley in a gunfire exchange as the youth ran across a field to escape arrest for the slaying Wednesday of Deputy Sheriff Lon Pearson, of Pauls Valley. He had leaped from a pickup truck in which his young wife and two-year-son, Buddy, were riding.

The two-day search for Beasley ended after the patrol received reports the fleeing man and his family were headed toward Muskogee on country roads nearly 100 miles from the scene of the original shooting.

HOW CHIVALROUS ARE WOMEN?

Chivalry—we women are still strong for it. Even though we have equal rights, equal liberties, most of us expect men to protect us and go ga-ga over us as they did over our grandmas. And, generally speaking, the boys live up to our expectations. They dasn't do otherwise.

From the cradle up, brother is taught to be nice to sister. Sister, it is true, may pack ten times as big a wallop as brother and use it plenty. She may be a young hellion and brother a sniveling martyr, but chivalry must be maintained at all costs. As a consequence, brother grows up thinking that sister should receive special consideration and exemption, such as he would never dream of giving a man. And sister, in spite of her boasts about equality, sees that she gets it.

Yes, women like chivalry from men, but how chivalrous are women to men?

Take love and marriage. . . romantic institutions, but also grave risks, as every woman will acknowledge. But will she also acknowledge that the risk is as great for the man as it is for her?

Listen in on any married woman while she is talking to her lady friends. It is dollars to doughnuts that she is talking about her husband, this being the favorite theme of any missis when she meets another missis. She is probably fond of her husband and generally contented with the marital state. But would you guess it from her conversation? You would not.

To hear her tell it, she is the most misunderstood, unappreciated and abused human on earth. With utmost frankness and in infinite detail, she retails her husband's faults and failures, exposes his weakness, spills the most intimate beans. . .all the time obviously pitying herself for the disappointments he has brought upon her.

Does a man do this in talking to other men? Not once in a thousand times. His disappointments may have been quite as great as his lady wife's—his sensitiveness may have been as deeply laceratd—but he observes the code of chivalry. Gentlemen mustn't bleat.

Or consider the matter of motherhood. No citizen expects or deserves a bigger hand than a good mother. But after all, mama isn't the whole show. It requires as much guts and implies as much grief to support a bunch of youngsters for twenty-one years as it does to give them birth and spank them into shape. But does mama admit this? Anything but! Papa's pangs are nothing to hers. Papa is merely doing his duty but she is making the great sacrifice. And yet, she probably likes the old man. But why should men expect appreciation?

Then there's divorce. By chivalrous tradition, this is commonly accorded the wife. With little or no protest, the gallant husband allows himself to be written down as a brute, a deserter, an unfaithful cad. And how often does any wife stand up and say—It's as much my fault as his. I nagged him as much as he bullied me. If he's a failure so am I.

Have you ever heard a divorce say that? No, you haven't. And you'll be plenty older before you will. For chivalry isn't as yet a feminine virtue. Sey I. How about you?

Advice To The Lovelorn

No Reason Why Girl Of 22 Should Continue Under Father's Thumb

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 22, and have been unhappy for quite some time.

I have never been out with a fellow alone, although I go to dances once in a while with the whole family. My father wouldn't allow me to have friends. I go to work all day, and at night I go home and have to listen to my father arguing all the time. He is mean and narrow-minded, and also to my brothers and sisters and mother.

Please tell me what I should do.

"UNHAPPY GIRL"

It seems to me, "Unhappy Girl," that if conditions in your home are a difficult as you say, you are old enough to break away and get out on your own to make yourself a happier life. I can't see any reason why a girl of 22 should be held down under her father's thumb as you appear to be.

You have a job. Do you make enough to support yourself away from home? And would you have common sense enough to know how to conduct yourself if you got out from under parental supervision? If so, why don't you find a place where you can live by yourself and have opportunities to make the friends and have the good times which should be a normal part of a 22-year-old's life and which now appear to be denied you?

It is always ticklish business to advise a young person to defy family authority, especially without knowing both sides of the story. But, on the other hand, young sons and daughters have their rights just as much as parents, and if they are wise enough to exercise them in the proper way, I think they are entitled to a chance to prove that they can do so.

Sophomore's Question

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a 15-year-old sophomore in high school, and after I graduate I want to become a dress designer.

During my spare time now I am always designing clothes. What I I would like to know is, is there any place where I could send my designs, and could I make any extra money this way? I am sending you one of my designs and I wish you would tell me, honestly, what you think of it and whether or not you think I will be a success in this business.

BETH.

Your question is hardly in my line, Beth, and I think you had better consult someone more expert in the field of design than I am.

I suggest that you write a letter to one of the colleges or schools that have special courses in dress design and ask them for the information you would like to have.

Specifically, you might write to the Central High School of Needle Trades, 225 West 24th street, New York City, or the Traphagen School of Fashion, 1680 Broadway, New York City. I am sure that if you tell either of these institutions what you wish to know, they will be glad to answer you.

HOW CHIVALROUS ARE WOMEN?

Chivalry—we women are still strong for it. Even though we have equal rights, equal liberties, most of us expect men to protect us and go ga-ga over us as they did over our grandmas. And, generally speaking, the boys live up to our expectations. They dasn't do otherwise.

From the cradle up, brother is taught to be nice to sister. Sister, it is true, may pack ten times as big a wallop as brother and use it plenty. She may be a young hellion and brother a sniveling martyr, but chivalry must be maintained at all costs. As a consequence, brother grows up thinking that sister should receive special consideration and exemption, such as he would never dream of giving a man. And sister, in spite of her boasts about equality, sees that she gets it.

Yes, women like chivalry from men, but how chivalrous are women to men?

Take love and marriage. . . romantic institutions, but also grave risks, as every woman will acknowledge. But will she also acknowledge that the risk is as great for the man as it is for her?

Listen in on any married woman while she is talking to her lady friends. It is dollars to doughnuts that she is talking about her husband, this being the favorite theme of any missis when she meets another missis. She is probably fond of her husband and generally contented with the marital state. But would you guess it from her conversation? You would not.

To hear her tell it, she is the most misunderstood, unappreciated and abused human on earth. With utmost frankness and in infinite detail, she retails her husband's faults and failures, exposes his weakness, spills the most intimate beans...all the time obviously pitying herself for the disappointments he has brought upon her.

Or consider the matter of motherhood. No citizen expects or deserves a bigger hand than a good mother. But after all, mama isn't the whole show. It requires as much guts and implies as much grief to support a bunch of youngsters for twenty-one years as it does to give them birth and spank them into shape. But does mama admit this? Anything but! Papa's pangs are nothing to hers. Papa is merely doing his duty but she is making the great sacrifice. And yet, she probably likes the old man. But why should men expect appreciation?

Then there's divorce. By chivalrous tradition, this is commonly accorded the wife. With little or no protest, the gallant husband allows himself to be written down as a brute, a deserter, an unfaithful cad. And how often does any wife stand up and say—It's as much my fault as his. I nagged him as much as he bullied me. If he's a failure so am I.

Have you ever heard a divorce say that? No, you haven't. And you'll be plenty older before you will. For chivalry isn't as yet a feminine virtue. Sey I. How about you?

No Reason Why Girl Of 22 Should Continue Under Father's Thumb

Dear Miss Fairfax:

You have a job. Do you make enough to support yourself away from home? And would you have common sense enough to know how to conduct yourself if you got out from under parental supervision? If so, why don't you find a place where you can live by yourself and have opportunities to make the friends and have the good times which should be a normal part of a 22-year-old's life and which now appear to be denied you?

It is always ticklish business to advise a young person to defy family authority, especially without knowing both sides of the story. Your question is hardly in my line, Beth, and I think you had better consult someone more expert in the field of design than I am.

I suggest that you write a letter to one of the colleges or schools that have special courses in dress design and ask them for the information you would like to have.

Specifically, you might write to the Central High School of Needle Trades, 225 West 24th street, New York City, or the Traphagen School of Fashion, 1680 Broadway, New York City. I am sure that if you tell either of these institutions what you wish to know, they will be glad to answer you.

FCC To Hold Hearing On Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Communications Commission today called a hearing for March 25 on the question of rate revisions by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

The company seeks authority to revise its schedule of unit charges on phone calls between those points in Maryland and Virginia classed as part of the Washington Metropolitan area.

The proposed revision would raise some call rates by five cents and reduce others by the same amount.

Calls involving the City of Washington would not be affected. The petition sought to make the changes effective March 13, but the FCC directed that no revisions be made pending the hearing.

Lengthy Contest Of Fleek Will Ends In Keyser

Methodist Trustees To Get Bequest

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 14—The Susan M. Fleek will case which has been before the local and state courts since 1944 was retired from further consideration today when Judge Ernest A. See signed an order making permanent an injunction prohibiting Columbus Fleek, Samuel A. Fleek, J. Stanley Fleek and Edgar A. Fleek and other heirs from further efforts to contest the will.

The will was drawn January 4, 1941, and admitted to probate in Mineral County Court on June 24, 1944, some time after the death of Miss Fleek. The will left the bulk of an estate of approximately $25,000 to the trustees of the Moorefield District of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The will was contested first on the ground that the Moorefield District of the Methodist Episcopal Church South went out of existence when the two branches of the Methodist Episcopal Church united in 1942 to form the Methodist Church. The plaintiff heirs in that suit claimed the will defective in the portion relating to the bequest to the Moorefield District trustees as stated, but that the remaining portions of the will were valid.

The Mineral County Circuit Court was upheld by the State Supreme Court of Appeals, in holding that the ministerial charges of the original Moorefield district of the M. E. Church South, which are now ministerial charges of the Methodist Church, are the successors to the Moorefield District of the former M. E. Church South, and rightfully entitled to the benefits as set out in the will.

That point settled, the heirs then instituted proceedings to have the entire will set aside, on grounds of incompetency of the testator. The court ruled that they could not attack the whole of the will after having admitted portions of it to be valid. The order entered today sustains the validity of the will.

The money going to the several charges of the old Moorefield District of the M. E. Church South will amount to approximately $20,000.

Lunch Program Described

One thousand pupils of Mineral county public schools receive hot lunches at noon each day at a cost ranging from 10 to 20 cents each, according to school officials. A total of 26,613 lunches were served in January, in the 11 schools having the hot lunch program. Only eight of the county's schools do not provide this service.

Those having the service, the supervisor of each and the number served are:

Beryl, Gladys McDowell, 43; Burlington, Mernie Judy, 153; Cross, Eva E. Pritts, 34; Dixie, Charles E. Wimer, 149; Elk Garden, Frank Burgess, 240; Fort Ashby High, Dorothy Haines, 138; Fort Ashby Elementary, Virginia Bolen, 93; Keyser, Nell Hott, 228; Lincoln, Elizabeth Duckworth, 44; New Creek, Harold Carvey, 89, and Ridgeley, 196.

THE STATE TAX COMMISSION OF MARYLAND hereby gives notice that ARTICLES OF DISSOLUTION of the CUMBERLAND LAUNDRY COMPANY OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND were received for record by it on January 21, 1947, in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 96 of Art. 23 of the Code (1936 Edition.)

FCC To Hold Hearing On Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Communications Commission today called a hearing for March 25 on the question of rate revisions by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

The company seeks authority to revise its schedule of unit charges on phone calls between those points in Maryland and Virginia classed as part of the Washington Metropolitan area.

The proposed revision would raise some call rates by five cents and reduce others by the same amount.

Lengthy Contest Of Fleek Will Ends In Keyser

Methodist Trustees To Get Bequest

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 14—The Susan M. Fleek will case which has been before the local and state courts since 1944 was retired from further consideration today when Judge Ernest A. See signed an order making permanent an injunction prohibiting Columbus Fleek, Samuel A. Fleek, J. Stanley Fleek and Edgar A. Fleek and other heirs from further efforts to contest the will.

The will was drawn January 4, 1941, and admitted to probate in Mineral County Court on June 24, 1944, some time after the death of Miss Fleek. The will left the bulk of an estate of approximately $25,000 to the trustees of the Moorefield District of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The will was contested first on the ground that the Moorefield District of the Methodist Episcopal Church South went out of existence when the two branches of the Methodist Episcopal Church united in 1942 to form the Methodist Church. The plaintiff heirs in that suit claimed the will defective in the portion relating to the bequest to the Moorefield District trustees as stated, but that the remaining portions of the will were valid.

The Mineral County Circuit Court was upheld by the State Supreme Court of Appeals, in holding that the ministerial charges of the original Moorefield district of the M. E. Church South, which are now ministerial charges of the Methodist Church, are the successors to the Moorefield District of the former M. E. Church South, and rightfully entitled to the benefits as set out in the will.

That point settled, the heirs then instituted proceedings to have the entire will set aside, on grounds of incompetency of the testator. The court ruled that they could not attack the whole of the will after having admitted portions of it to be valid. The order entered today sustains the validity of the will.

The money going to the several charges of the old Moorefield District of the M. E. Church South will amount to approximately $20,000.

Lunch Program Described

One thousand pupils of Mineral county public schools receive hot lunches at noon each day at a cost ranging from 10 to 20 cents each, according to school officials. A total of 26,613 lunches were served in January, in the 11 schools having the hot lunch program. Only eight of the county's schools do not provide this service.

Those having the service, the supervisor of each and the number served are:

Beryl, Gladys McDowell, 43; Burlington, Mernie Judy, 153; Cross, Eva E. Pritts, 34; Dixie, Charles E. Wimer, 149; Elk Garden, Frank Burgess, 240; Fort Ashby High, Dorothy Haines, 138; Fort Ashby Elementary, Virginia Bolen, 93; Keyser, Nell Hott, 228; Lincoln, Elizabeth Duckworth, 44; New Creek, Harold Carvey, 89, and Ridgeley, 196.

THE STATE TAX COMMISSION OF MARYLAND hereby gives notice that ARTICLES OF DISSOLUTION of the CUMBERLAND LAUNDRY COMPANY OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND were received for record by it on January 21, 1947, in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 96 of Art. 23 of the Code (1936 Edition.)

Late Timid Purchasing Cuts Most Early Declines In Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Stocks were more or less friendless in today's stock market until late timid purchasing cut most early declines running to three points or so and enabled a number of pivotals to finish in the plus column. Volume of 940,000 shares was the smallest for a five-hour stretch since January 27 and compared with 1,340,000 Thursday.

National Distillers was up 1⅜ at 21⅞ on a record sales and income statement. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies added 2½ at 33⅜ following a sharp jump in net due mainly to disposal of capital assets. American Woolen, up and down a point at intervals, emerged up one-half at 48¾. Ahead a point or so were Ekco Products at 27, National Biscuit at 34 and Pepsi-Cola at 31¼.

Norfolk and Western conceded 4½ points at 228½. Chrysler was off 1⅝ at 102¼ and some disappointment was expressed by those who had expected a boosted quarterly. General Motors lost three-fourths at 63⅜, Douglas Aircraft one at 72, American Can two at 93¾, Allied Chemical one at 179, United States Gypsum 1½ at 104 and J. C. Penney 1⅜ at 46¾.

In the Curb, Cities Service preferred was up 4¼ at 170 and the common 1⅝ at 32½. Forward leaners included American Gas, Middle West Corporation, Standard Oil of Kentucky (on an extra dividend) and Textron. Semler, Inc., was off 1¾ on a reduced quarterly payment. Turnover here was 470,000 shares versus 650,000 yesterday.

The bond market wobbled aimlessly over a narrow price route in today's trading.

Volume dried up to $2,930,000, smallest for any full session since January 2, from $4,430,000 Thursday.

United States governments held firm in the over-the-counter market. The Victory Loan 2½s of December '67-72 ended 2/32 higher at 102 30/32 bid.

Late Timid Purchasing Cuts Most Early Declines In Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Stocks were more or less friendless in today's stock market until late timid purchasing cut most early declines running to three points or so and enabled a number of pivotals to finish in the plus column. Volume of 940,000 shares was the smallest for a five-hour stretch since January 27 and compared with 1,340,000 Thursday.

National Distillers was up 1⅜ at 21⅞ on a record sales and income statement. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies added 2½ at 33¾ following a sharp jump in net due mainly to disposal of capital assets. American Woolen, up and down a point at intervals, emerged up one-half at 48¼. Ahead a point or so were Ekco Products at 27, National Biscuit at 34 and Pepsi-Cola at 31¼.

Norfolk and Western conceded 4½ points at 228½. Chrysler was off 1⅞ at 102¼ and some disappointment was expressed by those who had expected a boosted quarterly. General Motors lost three-fourths at 63¾, Douglas Aircraft one at 72, American Can two at 93¾, Allied Chemical one at 179, United States Gypsum 1½ at 104 and J. C. Penney 1¾ at 46¼.

In the Curb, Cities Service preferred was up 4¼ at 170 and the common 1⅝ at 32½. Forward leaners included American Gas, Middle West Corporation, Standard Oil of Kentucky (on an extra dividend) and Textron. Semler, Inc., was off 1¾ on a reduced quarterly payment. Turnover here was 470,000 shares versus 650,000 yesterday.

The bond market wobbled aimlessly over a narrow price route in today's trading.

Volume dried up to $2,930,000, smallest for any full session since January 2, from $4,430,000 Thursday.

United States governments held firm in the over-the-counter market. The Victory Loan 2½s of December '67-72 ended 2/32 higher at 102 30/32 bid.

Drive To Raise Garrett Hospital Funds Is Started

Hanst Heads County Soliciting Group

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 14—A campaign to raise $80,000 by contributions from individuals, organizations and business concerns throughout the county and along the West Virginia border, was inaugurated this week to augment funds already available for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

This amount was deemed necessary to construct and equip the hospital as planned by the architect. The details of the hospital were announced last week, at which time it was estimated that the cost would be in the neighborhood of $350,000.

The County Commissioners, executors of the will of George W. Loar, the county delegation members at Annapolis met with the State Planning Commission in Baltimore yesterday in regard to obtaining federal funds to add to the money already available locally. Bernard I. Gonder, former state senator, who worked with the planning commission last year in regard to the hospital here, said it was practically certain that the federal government would contribute around $125,000 from a fund already authorized by Congress. He said Garrett County was high on the priority list for hospitals in the state.

With federal funds added to the $170,000 made available by Mr. Loar's will, the Commissioners and executors were of the opinion that $80,000 would be ample to complete the amount necessary. The plans are to be in shape for bids by March 15, according to the architect, J. J. Baldwin.

The Commissioners named a number of community chairmen and called them together for a dinner meeting Tuesday night at which time George H. Hanst, Oakland, was named county-wide chairman. Community chairmen are: Virgil Steyer, Gorman section; Arthur Humbertson, Loch Lynn; Fred Beachy, Mt. Lake Park; Milton Pritts, Kitzmiller; Arthur H. Green, Swanton; Dr. Charles E. Smith, Terra Alta; Quincy Murphy, Friendsville; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, with C. O. Bender as assistant; Lester Yutzy, Crellin; Henry M. Speicher, Accident; Emroy D. Bolden, Oakland; Asa Orendorf, Bittinger; Harold Adams, Vindex; Dr. Harold Miller, Eglon; Mrs. Paul Carr, Kempton; Rev. A. K. Jones, Red House; Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Deer Park.

Assisting the Oakland chairman will be Sen. Lawrence M. Fraley, former Sen. Gonder, R. C. McComas and Mrs. E. Z. Tower. Community chairmen were asked to name five members from their section, or more if desired, to assist them in the work, and these persons are to be given signed cards by the County Commissioners authorizing them to receive contributions. Receipts will be given for all contributions which will be turned over to the county chairman, who will turn them over to J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. Jarboe will report to the County Commissioners.

A meeting of the county committee will be held in Oakland Mon-

Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, Cumberland, rector of St. James Episcopal church here, pointed out the importance of the scouts' parents taking an interest in their boys' activities in scouting. "The jails are full of people whose parents just could not be bothered," Rev. Mr. Shcwind declared.

Carl McMillen, Westernport, scoutmaster of Troop 30, was presented with the Scoutmaster's Key by Kenneth Jackson, Cumberland, scout executive. In responding, McMillen stated that although he was glad to receive the award, he was more anxious to see the members of his troop receive medals and announced that the boat in the window display of the Potomac Edison Company at Piedmont was built by Suter Hudson, Piedmont, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Hudson.

Preceding the program music was provided by the Rhythmaires orchestra, Dr. Donald P. Whitworth presided and led group singing.

Musical numbers were given by representatives of the various troops of the district, including duets, trios and group singing. The Cub pack sponsored by the Hammond Street School, won first prize and Troop 30 second prize.

Troops which gave demonstrations were No. 30, signaling; No. 33, first aid; No. 34, unpacking pack-sling and repacking it; No. 25, boxing a compass; and No. 36, rope-tying.

Jackson stated that the number of scouts had grown from 173,000 to over 2,000,000 in approximately 25 years. He announced that Potomac Council has a new camp site. He complimented the scoutmasters and said they make scouting go.

Alton R. Fortney, chairman of the Tri-Towns district, led the scouts in their rededicating oath, an annual custom.

Scout Commissioner Harry J. Biggs stated that last night's program was the beginning of a scout circus they hope to present in the next two or three years in the Savage River District, the new name of this district. Biggs led the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the pronouncement of the scout benediction.

Shopping "Off-peak" hours means "On-time" meals

SHOPPING is a problem today—and it does take time; often more than we bargain for. Late shopping has other drawbacks, too. It means the delay and discomfort of riding home with the "rush hour" crowds. And being late for dinner.

Early shopping benefits everyone. It makes more room for workers who must travel from 4 to 6 P.M. . . . It offers plenty of seats and room for packages. . . . And best of all you're home on time to welcome "Him" with a good, old-fashioned, home-cooked meal.

Committee Appointed To Represent Group

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Feb. 14—Frostburg Aerie No. 1273, Fraternal Order of Eagles, meeting last night with George Kennedy, president, presiding, passed a resolution opposing the move to abandon Frostburg State Teachers College. Speakers urging the passing of the resolution and urging the members to use all possible influence to have the facilities of the institution increased were G. A. Shuckhart, former mayor of Frostburg, and Maxwell Mathias, a former city engineer.

Shuckhart stressed the advantages the college has afforded ambitious young men and women from families with limited incomes to prepare themselves for the teaching profession since the institution was established here in 1902.

Mathias, a mining engineer, urged the members of the Eagles to keep posted on the activities of the committee appointed by the Mayor and Council and to have representatives at all meetings of the general committee.

A committee consisting of Shuckhart, Edgar Frank and Harry Winner was appointed to represent the Eagles at future meetings of the general committee.

The Frostburg Aerie will hereafter meet every Thursday night. At the meeting to be held Thursday, February 21, a building committee will be appointed to plan for the enlargement of the Eagles building at the corner of Main and Uhl street.

Drive To Raise Garrett Hospital Funds Is Started

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 14—A campaign to raise $80,000 by contributions from individuals, organizations and business concerns throughout the county and along the West Virginia border, was inaugurated this week to augment funds already available for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

This amount was deemed necessary to construct and equip the hospital as planned by the architect. The details of the hospital were announced last week, at which time it was estimated that the cost would be in the neighborhood of $350,000.

The County Commissioners, executors of the will of George W. Loar, the county delegation members at Annapolis met with the State Planning Commission in Baltimore yesterday in regard to obtaining federal funds to add to the money already available locally. Bernard I. Gonder, former state senator, who worked with the planning commission last year in regard to the hospital here, said it was practically certain that the federal government would contribute around $125,000 from a fund already authorized by Congress. He said Garrett County was high on the priority list for hospitals in the state.

With federal funds added to the $170,000 made available by Mr. Loar's will, the Commissioners and executors were of the opinion that $80,000 would be ample to complete the amount necessary. The plans are to be in shape for bids by March 15, according to the architect, J. J. Baldwin.

The Commissioners named a number of community chairmen and called them together for a dinner meeting Tuesday night at which time George H. Hanst, Oakland, was named county-wide chairman. Community chairmen are: Virgil Steyer, Gorman section; Arthur Humbertson, Loch Lynn; Fred Beachy, Mt. Lake Park; Milton Pritts, Kitzmiller; Arthur H. Green, Swanton; Dr. Charles E. Smith, Terra Alta; Quincy Murphy, Friendsville; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, with C. O. Bender as assistant; Lester Yutzy, Crellin; Henry M. Speicher, Accident; Emroy D. Bolden, Oakland; Asa Orendorf, Bittinger; Harold Adams, Vindex; Dr. Harold Miller, Eglon; Mrs. Paul Carr, Kempton; Rev. A. K. Jones, Red House; Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Deer Park.

Assisting the Oakland chairman will be Sen. Lawrence M. Fraley, former Sen. Gonder, R. C. McComas and Mrs. E. Z. Tower. Community chairmen were asked to name five members from their section, or more if desired, to assist them in the work, and these persons are to be given signed cards by the County Commissioners authorizing them to receive contributions. Receipts will be given for all contributions which will be turned over to the county chairman, who will turn them over to J. M. Jarboe, treasurer. Jarboe will report to the County Commissioners.

A meeting of the county committee will be held in Oakland Mon-

Cumberland Pastor Urges Parents Of Scouts To Encourage Program

Rev. Mr. Schwind Addresses Rally

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 14 — A Parent-Scout rally held last night in the auditorium of Bruce High School by the scouts of the Tri-Towns District was well attended.

Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, Cumberland, rector of St. James Episcopal church here, pointed out the importance of the scouts' parents taking an interest in their boys' activities in scouting. "The jails are full of people whose parents just could not be bothered," Rev. Mr. Shcwind declared.

Carl McMillen, Westernport, scoutmaster of Troop 30, was presented with the Scoutmaster's Key by Kenneth Jackson, Cumberland, scout executive. In responding, McMillen stated that although he was glad to receive the award, he was more anxious to see the members of his troop receive medals and announced that the boat in the window display of the Potomac Edison Company at Piedmont was built by Suter Hudson, Piedmont, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Hudson.

Preceding the program music was provided by the Rhythmaires orchestra. Dr. Donald P. Whitworth presided and led group singing.

Musical numbers were given by representatives of the various troops of the district, including duets, trios and group singing. The Cub pack sponsored by the Hammond Street School, won first prize and Troop 30 second prize.

Troops which gave demonstrations were No. 30, signaling; No. 33, first aid; No. 34, unpacking pack-sling and repacking it; No. 25, boxing a compass; and No. 36, rope-tying.

Jackson stated that the number of scouts had grown from 173,000 to over 2,000,000 in approximately 25 years. He announced that Potomac Council has a new camp site. He complimented the scoutmasters and said they make scouting go.

Alton R. Fortney, chairman of the Tri-Towns district, led the scouts in their rededicating oath, an annual custom.

Scout Commissioner Harry J. Biggs stated that last night's program was the beginning of a scout circus they hope to present in the next two or three years in the Savage River District, the new name of this district. Biggs led the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the pronouncement of the scout benediction.

Observe Founders Day

Piedmont Parent-Teacher Association at its February meeting last night at the high school auditorium observed Founders Day. Mrs. Grace Baughman read a message from the national chairman of the association.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Margaret Roberts, included a poem, "The Golden Years," read by Mrs. Arthur Hartman. The group sang, "My Tribute." The girls' glee club sang "There Are Such Things" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." The group is composed of Lila McDonald, Lillian Taylor, Ruth Erwin, Ruth Basye, Dorothy Sowers, Dorothy Kelly, Sandra Ashenfelter, Iona Ferguson, Mary Louise Paugh, Joanne Sagers, Lois Shreve, Ruth Brown, Joan Bell, Flora Mae Hood and Barbara Albright. The high school orchestra, directed by Miss Anita Dickens, played "Sweetheart Waltz" and "President Lincoln" March.

The devotionals were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Cory, pastor of Piedmont Presbyterian Church.

The association voted to contribute $45 toward the cost of the radio-phonograph combination machine recently purchased for the Piedmont graded school, and $5 to the Boy Scout fund. It was also voted that a telegram be sent to John Rogers, Mineral county member of the House of Delegates, urging him to support a bill for an increase in the salaries of teachers.

Prayer Service Planned

A union World Day of Prayer service will be held Friday, February 21, at 7:30 p. m. at Trinity Methodist Church, Piedmont. Representatives of the Church of the Brethren and Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport, and Piedmont Presbyterian and Methodist churches will participate in the program. The theme will be "Make Level in the Desert a Highway for Our God."

Meyersdale Man Injures Eye As He Drives Spike

By W. A. SHOEMAKER

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Feb. 14 — James Cannon, proprietor of a local garage and service station, was removed to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Wednesday, for an eye operation. While engaged in driving a spike the head flew off and was embedded in the eye ball. Mr. Cannon at the time was wearing glasses, the lens of which was shattered and particles of the glass also became imbedded in the eye ball.

An eye specialist from Baltimore was summoned to Cumberland to perform the operation of removing the eye ball. Mrs. William Cannon, 120 North street, and her son, Ralph Cannon, and the former's nephew, Carl Secrist, left last night for Cumberland to be present with her son following the operation.

Besides his service station interests, Cannon has a contract for transporting bus pupils to the Meyersdale High School from Wellersburg and intermediate points, Summit Township and the borough of Garrett, requiring the operation of three buses to perform the service.

Salom Rizk To Speak

The final speaker for the local Rotary Club's Forum of International Understanding will be Salom Rizk, who will speak next Tuesday night in the high school auditorium at 7:30 on the subject, "United Nations—Vehicle of World Co-operation?" Rizk will also speak to the high school pupils Tuesday afternoon.

Rizk was born in Syria and lived as an orphan in the country during the chaotic period of World War I. During his early youth, he learned that he was a citizen of America and spent five years convincing the American Consul at Beirut of his U. S. citizenship. Arriving in America, he began an upward struggle through menial labor, night school, and working his way through high school and college courses.

Go to Church this Sunday . . . . your Church . . . . any Church . . . . but go!

Lord,

TEACH US TO PRAY

When Jesus taught His disciples the new familiar words of what we call the Lord's Prayer, He placed in their hands the most powerful spiritual weapon ever devised.

This materialistic age, engrossed as it is in things that can be touched and seen, but vaguely comprehends the dynamic power of prayer.

PRAYER gives direction to life. There is nowhere a greater waste than in the realm of misdirected human energies.

PRAYER gives perspective. How difficult it is always to give first place in life to those values of first importance, and to treat as trivial, things that are really trivial! Yet earnest sincere prayer helps us do just that.

PRAYER releases spiritual power. It may not always remove the burden or sorrow, but it gives power to bear and overcome.

Nor is prayer just a one-way street in which we ask something of God. One of its principal values is that through reverent listening, we hear God speak to us.

The Church has been called the House of Prayer. And so it is. The one business of the Church is properly to relate the individual to God. And the chief means of achieving this end is Prayer.

When in the right spirit we go to Church, we give God a better chance to speak to us, and we, in turn, may the better talk with him.

Won't you go to Church this Sunday?

The Church needs you.

YOU need the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

Altoona Catholic Stops LaSalle, 45-31

Marauders Snap Locals' 7-Game Winning Streak

Pennsy Team Makes Sweep Of Series

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 14 — A scrappy, courageous LaSalle High Explorer quint from Cumberland, Maryland, had its seven-game winning streak snapped here tonight as it went down to defeat, 45-31, before the Altoona Catholic High Marauders on the local high school court. The win gave Altoona a sweep of the season series between the two schools as the Marauders copped the first game 29-17 last December 29 at Cumberland.

Outscored 18 to eight from the field the blue-shirted Explorers stayed in the thick of the fight through three quarters with an exceptionally fine showing at the foul line—the visitors netting 15 of 22 chances at the 15-foot stripe.

Altoona jumped to a two-point margin in the first period, 12-10 but saw the lead wiped out and trailed 21-20 as the Explorers more than matched them point for point at the foul line in the first half. Paced by the stellar floorwork and shooting of Fox and Bradley Altoona went to the fore as the second half began and were never headed thereafter although LaSalle was behind by only four markers at 31-27 as the third canto ended. A 14-point rally in the last period clinched the victory for the Marauders.

Bobby Vanderhout again topped his mates, scoring 11 tallies on two fielders and seven of 11 foul tries. Karl Muller caged three of the losers two-point goals. Fox and Bradley were the big guns for Altoona, each with 13 tallies, as the Marauders snapped a two-game losing skein to cop their 13th win in 16 starts this season. It was the Explorers 10th defeat in 22 games. The lineups:

RAY ROBINSON DENIES $25,000 BRIBE OFFER WAS MADE TO HIM

Boxing Commission Will Act Monday

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the world welterweight champion, explained in sworn testimony today that the $25,000 he was offered not to fight Marty Servo last summer actually wasn't an offer at all, but a "sporting bet" proposition, and it wasn't made to him, but to his manager.

Both the Harlem Stringbean and his manager, George Gainford, testified before the New York State Athletic Commission in a hearing on the reported offer he received not to make the 147-pound weight limit, and the reason Sugar didn't report it to the fistic fathers. It was the commission's second hearing in a week, following the inquiry last week in which Rocky Graziano had his license revoked for failing to report two $100,000 bribe bids to throw fights.

After the fighter and his manager and Lester Bromberg, New York World Telegram boxing writer who wrote the story of the offer after an interview with Robinson, testified, Commission Chairman Eddie Eagan adjourned the hearing until Monday, when he will announce the decision of the commission which has been operating with two men instead of the legal three for the past year.

Occurred At Camp

Robinson told boxing writers of the incident on December 16. It had occurred last August while he was training at his Greenwood Lake, N. Y., camp for his scheduled title bout with Servo, who was welterweight champion at that time. The bout never came off, because Servo abdicated the throne and retired from boxing with an injured nose. In December, the Sugar Man succeeded to the throne by outpointing Tommy Bell.

Both Robinson and Gainford related that after Ray's training session one afternoon last August, while he was getting a rubdown, some 20 to 30 spectators came into the dressing room. One man—both described him as "stocky and well dressed"—came over to the rubbing table, and asked Gainford how much Robinson weighed. Gainford replied that the slim swatter scaled 150 or 151 at that time.

" 'I'll bet you $25,000 you can't make the weight'," Robinson testified the man said. "I jumped up from the rubbing table and told him I've been waiting five years for this title shot—why shouldn't I make thew eight. I'll make the weight if I have to go in on one leg'. Then I walked into the shower."

Picking up the story from there, Gainford testified the man then said ,"don't get sore—it's simply a business proposition." The manager explained he had seen the man several times since then, both in Harlem and in downtown Manhattan.

Robinson first revealed the incident on December 16, while he was in training for his fight with Bell, and Gainford testified today he thought the story was "good publicity" for the Bell fight. Mention of the incident came up first in a conversation concerning the attempted fix of the National Professional Football League championship which had been exposed the day before.

Writer's Story Differs

Bromberg's story of his interview with Robinson presented a different version than that testified to by the fighter and his pilot. Bromberg wrote that Ray said some men approached him with the offer "not to fight Servo — not to make the weight." He testified today that the story he wrote was what Robinson had told him.

Bow And Arrow Hunt For Buffaloes Proves To Be Bloody Event

RAWLINS, Wyo., Feb. 14 (AP) —The nation's first one-shot bow and arrow hunt for Bison came and went today and it's doubtful that the bloody event ever will be staged again.

Four Buffaloes were finished off with bullets after being freely punctured by arrows and even the most ardent archers agreed the spectacle was an ugly one.

The committeemen from the Rawlins Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the event, and the onlookers were almost unanimous tonight in the opinion that bow-and-arrow Buffalo killing was too brual to warrant another hunt.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP) — Babe Ruth, who has been in the hospital since Nov. 26, is going home tomorrow, an attendant said late today.

Pittsburgh Owner Says Hank Greenberg Will Not Be Sold

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 14 (AP) — Frank McKinney, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said today Hank Greenberg will not be sold under any consideration.

The home run king of the major leagues, who announced Sunday he was "considering" retirement from active playing ranks, was sold to Pittsburgh by Detroit for $40,000. McKinney said today he had offered Greenberg a flat salary of "more than $80,000" for the season.

McKinney denied reports that the New York Yankees had contacted either him or Greenberg on a sale. He added that Greenberg had told him "if he plays, he desires to play with Pittsburgh."

Fusari weighed 146; Larkin 142.

A 5 to 11 betting underdog, blonde Charley from Irvington, N. J., was swinging for keeps from the word go, floored his fellow Jerseyan four times earlier and finally put the crusher on at 2:49 of the ninth. Down for the fifth time, Larkin was trying to get to his feet when the count reached eight, and Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the proceedings.

Pennsy Team Makes Sweep Of Series

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 14 — A scrappy, courageous LaSalle High Explorer quint from Cumberland, Maryland, had its seven-game winning streak snapped here tonight as it went down to defeat, 45-31, before the Altoona Catholic High Marauders on the local high school court. Outscored 18 to eight from the field the blue-shirted Explorers stayed in the thick of the fight through three quarters with an exceptionally fine showing at the foul line—the visitors netting 15 of 22 chances at the 15-foot stripe.

Bobby Vanderhout again topped his mates, scoring 11 tallies on two fielders and seven of 11 foul tries. Karl Muller caged three of the losers two-point goals. Fox and Bradley were the big guns for Altoona, each with 13 tallies, as the Marauders snapped a two-game losing skein to cop their 13th win in 16 starts this season. Coach Suder's Quint Tops Tygart Valley

THOMAS, W. Va., Feb. 14 — Thomas High School scored its third victory in as many nights and its 15th triumph in 17 starts when it nosed out Tygarts Valley High School at Mill Creek tonight by the score of 46-45.

Allegany high school's defending champions made it eight wins in a row in W.M.I. League competition by defeating Beall High School, of Frostburg, 43-32, in a fast game played last night at Campobello before approximately 500 fans. It was the 38th straight consecutive league triumph for the Campers.

Coach Finzel's cagers succeeded in holding the league leaders to an 8-6 score at the quarter and a 19-13 lead at the half but the Campobello boys make victory certain by outscoring the Mountaineers 16 to 7 to grab the long end of a 35-20 count at the conclusion of the third period.

Gene Shaw topped the A.H.S. offensive with 15 points, including six fielders, while Nelson and Truly headed Beall with nine points each.

Allegany's Reserves trimmed Beall's Reserves in the opening game, 38-27.

Sentinels Trim Bruce

Fort Hill High School stayed on the Campers' heels in the county league race by defeating Bruce High School in Westernport, 40-18.

The Sentinels held Bruce to five field goals while connecting for 15 baskets and sinking 12 of 21 shots at the foul line. Bruce hooped 8 of 22 free throws.

At the quarter whistle the teams were knotted at 4-4. Fort Hill held a 13-7 lead at the intermission and was on top 24-10 when the third period ended.

Twenty-nine of Fort Hill's markers were shared by Elmer Freeland and Milford Dean. Freeland collected seven fielders and 16 points while Dean gathered 13 tallies. Don Moran was responsible for 11 of Bruce's 18 points.

Bruce High's girls defeated the Red Johnnies sextet of Cumberland in an extra period opening game, 11-10.

Barton High School rallied after the automatic time out to squeeze out a 28-25 victory over Central High School, of Lonaconing, on the Barton floor.

With four minutes remaining to play, Central held a 23-20 lead. Then Barton won the ball game. Bill Warnick's basket put the home team a point in the rear and successive fielders by Jimmie Lamberson gave the Braves the long end of a 26-23 score. Goals by Ralston, of Central, and Leo Bradley, of Barton, concluded the scoring. Bill Warnick, Barton, and Rowan, Central, tied for high point honors with 11 tallies each.

Barton held a 7-6 edge at the quarter but the Orange and Black was in front at the half, 13-9, and at the end of the third stanza, 20-15. Lineups:

RAY ROBINSON DENIES $25,000 BRIBE OFFER WAS MADE TO HIM

Boxing Commission Will Act Monday

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the world welterweight champion, explained in sworn testimony today that the $25,000 he was offered not to fight Marty Servo last summer actually wasn't an offer at all, but a "sporting bet" proposition, and it wasn't made to him, but to his manager.

Both the Harlem Stringbean and his manager, George Gainford, testified before the New York State Athletic Commission in a hearing on the reported offer he received not to make the 147-pound weight limit, and the reason Sugar didn't report it to the fistic fathers. It was the commission's second hearing in a week, following the inquiry last week in which Rocky Graziano had his license revoked for failing to report two $100,000 bribe bids to throw fights.

After the fighter and his manager and Lester Bromberg, New York World Telegram boxing writer who wrote the story of the offer after an interview with Robinson, testified, Commission Chairman Eddie Eagan adjourned the hearing until Monday, when he will announce the decision of the commission which has been operating with two men instead of the legal three for the past year.

Occurred At Camp

Robinson told boxing writers of the incident on December 16. It had occurred last August while he was training at his Greenwood Lake, N. Y., camp for his scheduled title bout with Servo, who was welterweight champion at that time. The bout never came off, because Servo abdicated the throne and retired from boxing with an injured nose. In December, the Sugar Man succeeded to the throne by outpointing Tommy Bell.

Both Robinson and Gainford related that after Ray's training session one afternoon last August, while he was getting a rubdown, some 20 to 30 spectators came into the dressing room. One man—both described him as "stocky and well dressed"—came over to the rubbing table, and asked Gainford how much Robinson weighed. Gainford replied that the slim swatter scaled 150 or 151 at that time.

"'I'll bet you $25,000 you can't make the weight'," Robinson testified the man said. "I jumped up from the rubbing table and told him I've been waiting five years for this title shot—why shouldn't I make thew eight. I'll make the weight if I have to go in on one leg'. Then I walked into the shower."

Picking up the story from there, Gainford testified the man then said ,"don't get sore—it's simply a business proposition." The manager explained he had seen the man several times since then, both in Harlem and in downtown Manhattan.

Robinson first revealed the incident on December 16, while he was in training for his fight with Bell, and Gainford testified today he thought the story was "good publicity" for the Bell fight. Mention of the incident came up first in a conversation concerning the attempted fix of the National Professional Football League championship which had been exposed the day before.

Writer's Story Differs

Bromberg's story of his interview with Robinson presented a different version than that testified to by the fighter and his pilot. Bromberg wrote that Ray said some men approached him with the offer "not to fight Servo — not to make the weight." He testified today that the story he wrote was what Robinson had told him.

Battlers Top Bisons

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Feb. 14 (AP) — The Alderson-Broaddus Battlers recovered from a slow start to snow the Bisons of Bethany under a barrage of field goals and fouls tonight to win a West Virginia Conference cage setto, 81 to 57.

F. Peraez looped in 10 field goals and five free throws for 25 points and the scoring honors for the game, and Wilmoth was close behind with 21. Joe Pelaez, another of ths three high-scoring brothers on the A. B. lineup, got 17.

Bow And Arrow Hunt For Buffaloes Proves To Be Bloody Event

RAWLINS, Wyo., Feb. 14 (AP) —The nation's first one-shot bow and arrow hunt for Bison came and went today and it's doubtful that the bloody event ever will be staged again.

Four Buffaloes were finished off with bullets after being freely punctured by arrows and even the most ardent archers agreed the spectacle was an ugly one.

The committeemen from the Rawlins Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the event, and the onlookers were almost unanimous tonight in the opinion that bow-and-arrow Buffalo killing was too brual to warrant another hunt.

RUTH WILL LEAVE HOSPITAL TODAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP) — Babe Ruth, who has been in the hospital since Nov. 26, is going home tomorrow, an attendant said late today.

Ruth, who celebrated his 52nd birthday in the hospital on Feb. 6, underwent a serious neck operation on Jan. 6 "for the relief of intractable pain" has shown such improvement recently that he has been permitted to stroll through corridors.

The attendant said that Ruth likely would leave the hospital about non and would go to his Riverside Drive apartment.

Pittsburgh Owner Says Hank Greenberg Will Not Be Sold

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 14 (AP) — Frank McKinney, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said today Hank Greenberg will not be sold under any consideration.

The home run king of the major leagues, who announced Sunday he was "considering" retirement from active playing ranks, was sold to Pittsburgh by Detroit for $40,000 McKinney said today he had offered Greenberg a flat salary of "more than $80,000" for the season.

McKinney denied reports that the New York Yankees had contacted either him or Greenberg on a sale. He added that Greenberg had told him "if he plays, he desires to play with Pittsburgh."

Batting For Greenberg

DETROIT, (AP) — Ed Merkowicz, Detroit Tiger rookie, recalls his biggest baseball thrill. It came last Sept. 10 when he pinch hit for Hank Greenberg and doubled to beat the Boston Red Sox, 2-1.

Charlie Fusari Kayoes Larkin In Ninth Round

Underdog In Betting Bags 48th Win In Row

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Unbeaten Charlie Fusari chalked up the 48th straight triumph of his all-winning career tonight and skyrocketed high up among welterweight title contenders by knocking out Junior Welterweight Champion Tippy Larkin in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-rounder in Madison Square Garden. Fusari weighed 146; Larkin 142.

A 5 to 11 betting underdog, blonde Charley from Irvington, N. J., was swinging for keeps from the word go, floored his fellow Jerseyan four times earlier and finally put the crusher on at 2:49 of the ninth. Down for the fifth time, Larkin was trying to get to his feet when the count reached eight, and Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the proceedings.

Moore Scores TKO

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14 (AP)—Terry Moore, 137, of Baltimore, scored a technical knockout tonight over Johnny Gebert, 130, of Baldwin, N. Y., in the co-feature of the Fayette Street Garden fight card when a boxing commission physician ordered the bout halted at the end of the fifth round because of a bad cut over Gebert's eye.

Leon Braxton, 137, of Philadelphia, punched out a unanimous eight round decision over Billy Richardson, 135, of Baltimore.

Legion To Stage Boxing Show February 24

3,983 Fans Pay $4,824 To See 9 Shows Here

78 Bouts Are Held During Four Months

A sanction for the staging of an amateur boxing show at the state armory, Monday, February 24, was issued yesterday by the South Atlantic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union to Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

The sanction was issued by A. Edwin Schmidt, chairman of the registration committee.

Tenth Show of Season

It will be the tenth amateur fistic show of the 1946-47 season in Cumberland and the fourth for Fort Cumberland Post of which Robert V. Chisholm is matchmaker. Three shows also have been held this season by the Cumberland Police Boys' Club and the South Cumberland Athletic Club.

Schmidt advised the local boxing commissioner to compel all boxers entering local shows to obtain registration cards which are 25 cents each and are good for one year. Quite a number of cards taken out a year ago have expired and these boys will not be permitted to enter the ring for future shows until they are properly registered.

Registration cards were received yesterday from the A.A.U. for R. James Reed, John Tressler and Michael D. Leslie, of the South Cumberland Athletic Club, and Charles Smith, unattached. Tressler and Smith are the heavyweights who made a big hit in the recent SCAC show which attracted the large crowd of the current season—813 persons who paid $949. Billy Dircks and Frank Metz, heavyweights, appeared on the same program.

3,983 Witnessed Bouts

The financial report for the first nine shows of the current season which opened October 7 reveals that 3,983 persons paid a total of $4,824.30 to witness 78 bouts over a period of four months.

Two Local Men Enter Motorcycle Races In Florida

Will Compete In Two Championship Events

Two local men are getting ready to enter national motorcycle races and speed trials at Daytona Beach, February 22, and February 23. Both men, Homer Stierstorfer, 331 Dorn Avenue, and Tan Hemmis, 101 Virginia Avenue, are experienced race and hill climb drivers.

Stierstorfer owns a special-built English type racing motorcycle, which he gave a speed test on the long runways of Cumberland Municipal Airport yesterday. He said the machine was built here by him and James Raupach, and is capable of a top speed of 100 miles an hour.

Stierstorfer said he has entered a 100 mile championship race for February 22 and a 200 mile competition for February 23. Hemmis, who drives a popular American make, special built racer also plans to enter the same contests.

Hemmis holds several hill climbing championships and competed in the nationally-known hill climb meet sometime ago at Muskegon, Mich. which he won.

Stierstorfer is known throughout this section as a motorcycle race driver and has competed in Pittsburgh, Johnstown and other cities in this area.

Both men are members of the Cumberland Tiger Motorcycle Club here.

DERBY NOMINATIONS WILL CLOSE TODAY

Nominations for the Kentucky Derby close this week (February 15), but thus far there has been little talk of a "winter-book" favorite. In recent years it seems, there was more written about than written in any future book on the Derby though prices were quoted on the nominees. The late Colonel E. R. Bradley used to maintain that 5-1 would be a fair price against naming a horse to start in the Derby, let alone win it.

One prominent Derby candidate—and near as one might come to a "winter favorite," if the British custom of "backing ahead" were in vogue here—is Double Jay, currently in light training at Oaklawn Park, Hot Springs, Ark. The "Jaybird," according to word from Hot Springs, was on the track, of a recent afternoon, but was more interested in a golf game on the nine-hole center field course than he was in working.

Double Jay, it will be recalled, was voted tops in his division last season and earned a top weight on Jockey Club Handicapper John B. Campbell's Experimental Handicap, winning six of ten starts and $77,550, never being worse than third and that but once.

New Minimum Set

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP) — President James Donn of the Gulfstream Park track at nearby Hallandale announced here this afternoon that the minimum purse at the 40-day meeting opening March 5 will be $2,300.

FERRIS SAYS JAPAN, GERMANY SHOULD VIE IN OLYMPIC GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Speaking as a private individual, Dan Ferris said today he believed England should invite Japan and Germany to compete in the 1948 Olympic Games in London.

Daniel J. Ferris

"We're going to take up competition with them sooner of later and I can't see why we should not start right away," said Ferris, who is a member of the American Olympic Committee and secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of America.

"I have talked with a lot of our boys who were in the war, and they too can't see any reason why we shouldn't compete with the Germans and Japanese, and they are the ones who did the fighting," said Ferriss in an interview.

The British Olympic Committee recently announced it was not including the two great war enemies in the list of invitations.

BOSOX BOSS?—Joe McCarthy, the ex-manager of the Cubs and Yanks, is expected to pop back in the baseball spotlight any day now, either as manager or a front office official with the Boston Red Sox.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

A Talk With Chief Meyers

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14—It is a far cry and a long haul back to the day when some umpire would announce—Batteries today—for New York—"Mathewson and Meyers."

Every old-time Giant fan must remember Chief Meyers, the stocky Indian who was Matty's catching partner back in the days of McGraw's reign and Giant glory. That was far away and long ago. But the Chief is still looking hale, hearty and happy. Here is his voice from past years—

"The greatest hitter in baseball? That's easy, Hans Wagner. There never was anybody like him. Baseball players are apt to be pretty critical of each other, looking for weaknesses, etc. But in Wagner's case it was different. I know how we used to be, all us Giants. We just sat on the bench when Pittsburgh had infield or batting practice and watched Wagner's every move. He was the best.

"Once we were playing in Pittsburgh. Wagner booted one, which in itself was a story because he rarely missed 'em. John McGraw was a pretty tough guy, as you know, but he, too admired perfection. Pittsburgh lost the game and the home fans actually booed Wagner.

"Mr. McGraw stood up in front of the stands, held up his hands and gave those babies a piece of his mind. McGraw was a commanding figure, you know, and when he got through telling 'em about Wagner they were cheering instead of booing. You don't find much of that these days, but it illustrates how highly Wagner rated with those who really knew baseball."

The Chief caught many great pitchers . . . Cy Young, Rube Waddell, Nap Rucker, Rube Marquard, Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson and many others. The greatest?

"Well," said the colorful ex-catcher, "certainly Waddell, Rucker and Marquard were great left-handers, probably the greatest the game has ever known. Johnson had blinding speed and was tops over a long, long time.

"But my choice would be Mathewson. Don't forget that he had practically everything the others had, plus his famous fadeaway — they call it a screwball today. And he had something else—a wonderful retentive mind.

"In the old days McGraw insisted that we report at the park at 10 a. m. The games didn't start until four o'clock because of the Wall Street crowd. So we were at the park six hours every day.

"McGaw did not allow card games or any kind of gambling in the clubhouse, so Matty used to play checkers a lot. He'd play two or three different games at the same time, even while he was dressing or doing something else, and he seldom lost."

Matty's Memory

"His retentive memory was a tremendous asset on the mound. When a batter hit a hard ball off him, Matty never forgot it, and the batter never got that same pitch again."

Few but the old-timers will recall that Chief Meyers attended Dartmouth.

"Dartmouth was founded by the Rev. Eleasar Wheelock in 1754 at Lebanon, Conn.," he said. "It was known then as Moor's Indian School. A large amount of the money raised came from England and was placed in charge of a board of trustees headed by the Earl of Dartmouth.

"One of the early stipulations was that any Indian who met certain academic requirements could attend Dartmouth—tuition free. I think that still goes. So that's how I happened to enroll there.

"And I've always been sorry that I didn't stay longer than one year. Not that I feel sorry about turning to baseball, but I wish I had completed my education first."

Born in Riverside (around 1880) the Chief came back to his home town after he finished baseball at the close of World War I. He has lived there ever since.

Lillian Russell was responsible for Chief Meyers joining the Marines in 1918.

"She was an honorary colonel in the Marines while I was managing the New Haven club. One night I attended a public meeting where she spoke eloquently in an effort to enlist young men in the service. I had known her for several years and when she spotted me in the crowd and called my name I stepped up and enlisted."

The Giants won three pennants while Meyers was with them from 1909 through '15. And when he shifted over to Brooklyn in '16 the Dodgers won the flag.

"We were an odd bunch of hasbeens that season . . . Most of us had passed our peak but Uncle Robbie (Wilbert Robinson) kept us together even though we were completely shot when the race ended. The Red Sox found us an easy mark in the World Series because we just didn't have anything left."

The Chief is a great booster for baseball. "But some of those I see playing today . . . they couldn't carry Matty's glove . . . and as for Wagner, well" . . . and his voice trailed off.

78 Bouts Are Held During Four Months

A sanction for the staging of an amateur boxing show at the state armory, Monday, February 24, was issued yesterday by the South Atlantic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union to Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion.

The sanction was issued by A. Edwin Schmidt, chairman of the registration committee.

Tenth Show of Season

It will be the tenth amateur fistic show of the 1946-47 season in Cumberland and the fourth for Fort Cumberland Post of which Robert V. Chisholm is matchmaker. Three shows also have been held this season by the Cumberland Police Boys' Club and the South Cumberland Athletic Club.

Schmidt advised the local boxing commissioner to compel all boxers entering local shows to obtain registration cards which are 25 cents each and are good for one year. Quite a number of cards taken out a year ago have expired and these boys will not be permitted to enter the ring for future shows until they are properly registered.

Registration cards were received yesterday from the A.A.U. for R. James Reed, John Tressler and Michael D. Leslie, of the South Cumberland Athletic Club, and Charles Smith, unattached. Tressler and Smith are the heavyweights who made a big hit in the recent SCAC show which attracted the large crowd of the current season—813 persons who paid $949. Billy Dircks and Frank Metz, heavyweights, appeared on the same program.

Two Local Men Enter Motorcycle Races In Florida

Will Compete In Two Championship Events

Two local men are getting ready to enter national motorcycle races and speed trials at Daytona Beach, February 22, and February 23. Both men, Homer Stierstorfer, 331 Dorn Avenue, and Tan Hemmis, 101 Virginia Avenue, are experienced race and hill climb drivers.

Stierstorfer owns a special-built English type racing motorcycle, which he gave a speed test on the long runways of Cumberland Municipal Airport yesterday. He said the machine was built here by him and James Raupach, and is capable of a top speed of 100 miles an hour.

Stierstorfer said he has entered a 100 mile championship race for February 22 and a 200 mile competition for February 23. Hemmis, who drives a popular American make, special built racer also plans to enter the same contests.

Hemmis holds several hill climbing championships and competed in the nationally-known hill climb meet sometime ago at Muskegon, Mich. which he won.

Stierstorfer is known throughout this section as a motorcycle race driver and has competed in Pittsburgh, Johnstown and other cities in this area.

Both men are members of the Cumberland Tiger Motorcycle Club here.

DERBY NOMINATIONS WILL CLOSE TODAY

Nominations for the Kentucky Derby close this week (February 15), but thus far there has been little talk of a "winter-book" favorite. In recent years it seems, there was more written about than written in any future book on the Derby though prices were quoted on the nominees. The late Colonel E. R. Bradley used to maintain that 5-1 would be a fair price against naming a horse to start in the Derby, let alone win it.

One prominent Derby candidate—and near as one might come to a "winter favorite," if the British custom of "backing ahead" were in vogue here—is Double Jay, currently in light training at Oaklawn Park, Hot Springs, Ark. The "Jaybird," according to word from Hot Springs, was on the track, of a recent afternoon, but was more interested in a golf game on the nine-hole center field course than he was in working.

Double Jay, it will be recalled, was voted tops in his division last season and earned a top weight on Jockey Club Handicapper John B. Campbell's Experimental Handicap, winning six of ten starts and $77,550, never being worse than third and that but once.

New Minimum Set

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP) — President James Donn of the Gulfstream Park track at nearby Hallandale announced here this afternoon that the minimum purse at the 40-day meeting opening March 5 will be $2,300.

FERRIS SAYS JAPAN, GERMANY SHOULD VIE IN OLYMPIC GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Speaking as a private individual, Dan Ferris said today he believed England should invite Japan and Germany to compete in the 1948 Olympic Games in London.

Daniel J. Ferris

"We're going to take up competition with them sooner of later and I can't see why we should not start right away," said Ferris, who is a member of the American Olympic Committee and secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of America.

"I have talked with a lot of our boys who were in the war, and they too can't see any reason why we shouldn't compete with the Germans and Japanese, and they are the ones who did the fighting," said Ferriss in an interview.

The British Olympic Committee recently announced it was not including the two great war enemies in the list of invitations.

Maryland House Committee Kills Horsemen's Bill

Sought Priorities For Stable Room

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP)—A plan to give Maryland horsemen priorities over "outsiders" for stable room at Maryland race tracks met death today in a House committee.

After listening to complaints that Marylanders are discriminated against, and denials of the accusations, the committee on licenses and commissions voted to return an adverse report on a pending bill.

The measure by Delegate Boone (D-Balto County) would have stipulated that tracks first allot stable space to Maryland horse owners admitting out-of-state contestants.

This met with strong opposition from the State Racing Commission on the ground that such restrictions would be arbitrary and would tend to lower the number of good horses brought to Maryland tracks.

J. Yancey Christmas of Upper Marlboro, asking approval of the bill, said that some horsemen who were on the borderline "between hoodlums and near hoodlums" were allowed to stable their horses at tracks while free state owners were turned away.

He was backed up by Dr. Wilmer C. Ensor of Cockeysville, who said he had yet to get any stall space at a major track, adding that "they turned me down unceremoniously and not very courteously at Laurel."

H. Courtenay Jenifer, member of the racing commission, denied emphatically that he had heard of the conditions listed by the proponents, and said that all reports were made to keep undesirables away, no matter where their habitats.

Jenifer said racing secretaries naturally invite owners of the best horses to the tracks.

Under questioning Jenifer asserted that while it may have been true at first that Maryland legalized horse racing "to improve the breed, today its primary purpose is to produce revenue for the state."

Also appearing to oppose the bill was Frank Small, Jr., another member of the commission.

Interstate Loop Meets Tomorrow

An important meeting of the Interstate Baseball League is set for tomorrow at 3 o'clock at the Fraternal Order of Eagles' Home, North Mechanic street.

The league was reduced to six teams due to Mt. Savage and Hyndman transferring to the Bi-State League and the question of whether the league will expand to eight teams will be determined tomorrow.

It is understood that Everett, Pa., is interested in joining the circuit. The holdover teams are Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion; Moorefield American Legion, Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose, Barrelville, Md., and Centerville, Pa.

Phil Fleming, vice president, will preside in the absence of President John J. Long, whose LaSalle basketball team is scheduled to play here tomorrow afternoon.

Alex "Pop" Nicol, president of the Bi-State League, announces that the next meeting of his circuit will be held Sunday, March 2, at the American Legion Home, Romney, W. Va. The Bi-State will operate with ten teams this season.

A Talk With Chief Meyers

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14—It is a far cry and a long haul back to the day when some umpire would announce—Batteries today—for New York—"Mathewson and Meyers."

Every old-time Giant fan must remember Chief Meyers, the stocky Indian who was Matty's catching partner back in the days of McGraw's reign and Giant glory. That was far away and long ago. But the Chief is still looking hale, hearty and happy. Here is his voice from past years—

"The greatest hitter in baseball? That's easy, Hans Wagner. There never was anybody like him. Baseball players are apt to be pretty critical of each other, looking for weaknesses, etc. But in Wagner's case it was different. I know how we used to be, all us Giants. We just sat on the bench when Pittsburgh had infield or batting practice and watched Wagner's every move. He was the best.

"Once we were playing in Pittsburgh. Wagner booted one, which in itself was a story because he rarely missed 'em. John McGraw was a pretty tough guy, as you know, but he, too admired perfection. Pittsburgh lost the game and the home fans actually booed Wagner.

"Mr. McGraw stood up in front of the stands, held up his hands and gave those babies a piece of his mind. McGraw was a commanding figure, you know, and when he got through telling 'em about Wagner they were cheering instead of booing. You don't find much of that these days, but it illustrates how highly Wagner rated with those who really knew baseball."

The Chief caught many great pitchers . . . Cy Young, Rube Waddell, Nap Rucker, Rube Marquard, Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson and many others. The greatest?

"Well," said the colorful ex-catcher, "certainly Waddell, Rucker and Marquard were great left-handers, probably the greatest the game has ever known. Johnson had blinding speed and was tops over a long, long time.

"But my choice would be Mathewson. Don't forget that he had practically everything the others had, plus his famous fadeaway — they call it a screwball today. And he had something else—a wonderful retentive mind.

"In the old days McGraw insisted that we report at the park at 10 a. m. The games didn't start until four o'clock because of the Wall Street crowd. So we were at the park six hours every day.

"McGaw did not allow card games or any kind of gambling in the clubhouse, so Matty used to play checkers a lot. He'd play two or three different games at the same time, even while he was dressing or doing something else, and he seldom lost."

Matty's Memory

"His retentive memory was a tremendous asset on the mound. When a batter hit a hard ball off him, Matty never forgot it, and the batter never got that same pitch again."

Few but the old-timers will recall that Chief Meyers attended Dartmouth.

"Dartmouth was founded by the Rev. Eleasar Wheelock in 1754 at Lebanon, Conn.," he said. "It was known then as Moor's Indian School. A large amount of the money raised came from England and was placed in charge of a board of trustees headed by the Earl of Dartmouth.

"One of the early stipulations was that any Indian who met certain academic requirements could attend Dartmouth—tuition free. I think that still goes. So that's how I happened to enroll there.

"And I've always been sorry that I didn't stay longer than one year. Not that I feel sorry about turning to baseball, but I wish I had completed my education first."

Born in Riverside (around 1880) the Chief came back to his home town after he finished baseball at the close of World War I. He has lived there ever since.

Lillian Russell was responsible for Chief Meyers joining the Marines in 1918.

"She was an honorary colonel in the Marines while I was managing the New Haven club. One night I attended a public meeting where she spoke eloquently in an effort to enlist young men in the service. I had known her for several years and when she spotted me in the crowd and called my name I stepped up and enlisted."

The Giants won three pennants while Meyers was with them from 1909 through '15. And when he shifted over to Brooklyn in '16 the Dodgers won the flag.

"We were an odd bunch of hasbeens that season . . . Most of us had passed our peak but Uncle Robbie (Wilbert Robinson) kept us together even though we were completely shot when the race ended. The Red Sox found us an easy mark in the World Series because we just didn't have anything left."

The Chief is a great booster for baseball. "But some of those I see playing today . . . they couldn't carry Matty's glove . . . and as for Wagner, well" . . . and his voice trailed off.

Coach Joe Majer's aggregation scored its 12th victory of the season on Tuesday night when it defeated St. Vincent's Prep of Latrobe, 34-24. Center Leroy Leslie starred for the Johnnies in that game with seven field goals and 17 points. The only losses on Johnstown's record this season were suffered at the hands of St. Mary's High, Pittsburgh, and Kiski Prep.

A regular Interstate League game between the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose and the Paw Paw (W. Va.) American Legion will get under way at 2 o'clock.

Tomorrow night at 9 o'clock, the classy Wheeling (W. Va.) Valans will make their second appearance of the season here against the Amvets' professional team.

The Valans have won 16 and lost 5 and their only defeats were suffered at the hands of National League teams. The West Virginians hold a 71-70 victory over the Amvets who will be playing their 20th game of the season. Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's outfit has won 11 and lost 8.

Wheeling's lineup will include Irv Barnett, outstanding center; "Chuck" Beihl, Earl Klevins, Jim Ruch, Charley Seabright, Joey Baron and Jimmie Quinlan.

Moose Teams Tangle

Jimmie Angellatta's Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose cagers will play hosts to the Charles Town (W. Va.) Moose quint in the opener of the twin bill at 7:45 o'clock.

The well-known hymn, "O for a Closer Walk With God," was written by the English poet, William Cowper. He lived from 1731 to 1800.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, John Alphonsus Divico, who died 4 years ago Feb. 15, 1942.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed by:

WIFE AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, John Alphonsus Divico, who died 4 years ago Feb. 15, 1942.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed by:
WIFE AND FAMILY.

2 State Road Men Find Wolfe Silver Buried In Cinders

Elderly Woman's Home Robbed Wednesday

Between $2,000 and $2,500 worth of "beautiful Stieff silver" reported stolen from the home of Mrs. E. F. Wolfe, Route 40, opposite Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, Wednesday morning, was reported recovered last night by Maryland State Police, who said an early arrest is expected.

Police said Harmon Robinette, RFD No. 2, and Glenn Carder, 303 Maryland avenue, both employed by the State Roads Commission, found the silver buried in a cinder pile on Long Hill, Route 40, late Wednesday afternoon, while they were working in that area.

Not knowing that the Wolfe home had been robbed, the two men took the silver home, but yesterday when they read of the burglary in The Cumberland News, they immediately notified State Police, who now have the valuables.

Silver In Pillow Cases

Police said the two men were "rearranging" the cinders, which are used on icy roads, when they discovered two pillow cases and some boxes buried several feet down in the pile. The silver was in the two pillow cases, which were also taken from the Wolfe home, police said.

With the discovery of the stolen articles, described as a complete set of "very beautiful monogrammed" silver, police said they also uncovered several clues that will aid in apprehending the two men who broke into the home.

One of the intruders is reported to have gone to the bed of Mrs. Wolfe, who resides alone, and seated himself beside her while he demanded money, but the other man remained outside in another room.

Mrs. Wolfe told police that the two men broke a window on the first floor to gain entrance. She said they entered the house about 12:30 a. m. and she heard them downstairs talking for several minutes before they came upstairs.

Have Several Tips

The robbery was not reported to police until late Wednesday morning, since the elderly woman, who lives alone, has no telephone. Troopers Harry Holsinger and William McElfish, Maryland State Police, are investigating.

The man who entered the bedroom told Mrs. Wolfe that he and his companion had been drinking, police said, and explained that they wanted money. Mrs. Wolfe declared that she did not keep money in the house, and the men then took the silverware.

Police said they have received several tips from West Virginia that may aid in apprehending the two men.

Campaign Office Opens For Greek War Relief Drive

Seek Funds To Aid Starving Allies

A campaign office has been opened in the Peoples Bank building for the 1947 Cumberland Campaign of the Greek War Relief Association, Inc., according to Harold R. Fletcher, local campaign chairman.

As a part of the 1947 national drive to raise the $12,000,000 to aid stricken Greeks in their homeland, a local group has been organized to raise $6,500 in Cumberland and this vicinity.

Ex-President Herbert Hoover, who made a personal tour of Greece a year ago at the request of President Truman, is national campaign chairman. In a communication to Fletcher, Ex-President Hoover declared that the Greeks suffered greater loss during the war than any other single country. Agriculture and industry have been systematically destroyed, and people are in a state of starvation and illness and most are without shelter.

This particular campaign, Fletcher said, is to provide funds to provide medical care, food and emergency shelter to the Greeks, until the little country can again stand on its own feet as a Democracy to which system of government it still clings.

Joseph J. Ryland is treasurer of the campaign group here, and contributions can be sent directly to him at the Peoples Bank, Fletcher declared. F. Allan Weatherholt is acting as secretary to the campaign committee, and is assisting in planning a solicitation for local funds.

Members of the committee include Milton Bernstein, Paul E. Myers, Mrs. Aurelia S. Becker, Rev. William A. Eisenberger, Marcus A. Naughton, Clarence Lippel, Cilbert A. Rehbeck, Wesley A. McGraw, Albert H. Macy, D. Clifford Goodfellow, Ervin Steinla, Mrs. Francina Lichtenstein.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, William V. Keegan, William H. Kight, John H. Mosner, Thomas F. Conlon, G. Louis Spoerl, Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, E. F. Soehner, Mrs. Rngela W. Rowley, Gus Anthony, Pete Dendrenos, Anthony D. Antonakos, Louis P. Soterakos, James Crom, Michael Falandas, Peter Koumanis, Robert E. Freedland, Edgar A. Dashiell and Arthur B. Gibson.

Three nationwide radio broadcasts have been announced to help publicize the national and community campaigns. The first will be on Phil Baker's Columbia Broadcasting System program tomorrow at 10 to 10:30 p. m. The next will be on the Screen Actor's Guild over Columbia, February 17 from 9 to 10:30 p. m. and the third will be at 6:30 p. m. Cresaptown Legion Home Is Robbed

State police last night were investigating a reported robbery at the Cresaptown American Legion Home that netted the thieves approximately $100 in cash and "several" fifths of whisky, after it was discovered yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

Troopers Glen Folk and G. M. Rotruck, who are investigating, said the intruders gained entrance to the place some time between midnight and the time of discovery, by drilling through the back door and turning a spring lock.

The theft was discovered yesterday morning by a barkeeper, identified as "Joke" Holler, and reported to police. The money, proceeds of the bar, was kept in a hiding place in the bar room, police said, adding that nothing else was disturbed.

The home was recently opened after the Cresaptown Post received its charter last year.

Sale Of C. And O. Canal Property To City Sought

See Introduces Resolution In House

Petitioning the Secretary of the Interior to sell to the Mayor and Council of Cumberland the old C. and O. Canal property within the city limits, a joint resolution was introduced in the House of Delegates yesterday by Delegate Charles M. See.

The land is now owned by the Interior Department's Division of Public Parks, and See asks that it be sold to Cumberland at a "nominal consideration."

The resolution points out that Cumberland authorities have evolved plans for construction of a highway on the land, which abuts the Potomac River and Wills Creek within the city.

"Unsightly And Unsanitary"

See's resolution declared that the land "has long since fallen into disuse and has become unsightly and unsanitary and detrimental to the health and general well-being" of Cumberland residents.

He said it is his opinion that the property "will not be used in the future as a waterway because of more modern transportation" methods.

In addition to proposed construction of a highway on the land, See said if it was acquired it also be used for "sewerage, housing and recreational purposes."

The projected highway, with sewage conduits underneath, would relieve traffic congestion in the city, the resolution stated, and provide a fast route to the municipal airport.

A copy of the resolution will be mailed to the Secretary of the Interior, one to each of Maryland's United States Senators and to each of Maryland's members of the House of Representatives, See said.

Will Bear Great Seal

He added that the copies will be mailed by the secretary of state and will bear the Great Seal of Maryland.

The resolution was referred to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County delegation, said yesterday afternoon that the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate's Financial Committee started joint hearings on the budget. Whitworth is a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

West Va. Teachers May Strike If Pay Bill Is Changed

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 14. (AP)—Any additional changes in the State Education Association salary bill and three companion tax measures now pending in the Senate might send half of West Virginia's teachers out on strike, a Mineral County school teacher warned today.

President E. Michael Welshonce of the Mineral County Federation of Teachers added that "at least two other counties in the state have promised to back a walkout, and I believe half the teachers in the state would join us if the bill is amended."

The salary measure to which he referred would provide raises of from $30 to $60 a month for teachers, and would result in additional raises based on experience.

Earlier, the Pleasants County Classroom Teachers Association had asked related county affiliates to back a proposal to take "definite action" if the SEA salary bill and the revenue measures are not passed by the Legislature by February 22.

The House yesterday passed the teacher salary bill and three tax measures on horse racing, beer and cigarettes, and sent them on to the Senate.

SEA President Rex Smith of Morgantown commented "I am confident that the school people throughout the state have no intention of taking hasty action which might be detrimental to their cause."

Craft Unions Ask Action On Schools

The Building and Construction Trades Council last night passed a resolution calling for the construction of school buildings at Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Ellerslie this year, George W. Lucas, president, reported.

Lucas said the group pointed out that money for the buildings has been approved by the state legislature and that the group sees no reason why school children of this county should continue to put up with crowded conditions.

The Board of Education has recommended to the Allegany County delegation of the General Assembly that the building program, so far as the three above mentioned buildings are concerned, be deferred at least until building costs become more definitely evident. They pointed out the 1941 legislature authorized a bond issue of $800,000 for the buildings while the present estimated cost is $2,895,000.

Robert A. Warner, Philadelphia, AFL organizer, who installed 1947 officers, urged members to keep abreast of the current legislative program and to protest passage of bills which might restrict labor.

The wage question was not discussed at the meeting, he added.

Trades Council Opposes Sales Tax In State

Suggest Five New Revenue Sources

Several new revenue proposals were made by representatives of the Allegany Trades Council to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday, as they also filed a formal protest against a two cent consumers sales tax.

F. Patrick Allender, chairman of the Trades Council committee, and Clarence E. Bramble, secretary, appeared before the board and requested licensing of slot machines, increasing liquor license fees to clubs, one dollar tax per gallon on liquor, removal of tax exemptions on clubs, etc., where liquor is sold, and consideration of a plan to put Allegany County in the wholesale liquor business.

The union representatives commented that a general sales tax would work a hardship on many people in the lower income brackets, and said the tax bill now before the General Assembly is unfair, but since other revenue is needed, it should come from sources other than real estate taxes.

"Inasmuch as we realize the necessity of raising more revenue to meet the coming budget, we have given a great deal of consideration and study to ways and means of raising the necessary money. We are suggesting to you several things for your consideration:

"1. Raise the license fee for clubs to the same level as other retail liquor licenses. (There are more club licenses than 'regular' licenses issued in the county.)

"2. All real estate belonging to fraternal organizations or clubs which are selling liquor, beer and lunches be returned to the tax books. (Under state law such organizations are exempt from paying taxes on real estate.)

"License Slot Machines"

"3 Legalize slot machines, tip boards, punch boards and any like gaming devices and place a heavy tax thereon.

"4. Give serious consideration to Allegany County entering the wholesale liquor business.

"5. Place one dollar tax on each gallon of liquor sold in Allegany County.

"We feel sure that some of these suggestions can be worked out and enough revenue raised that it will not be necessary to place the burden of a sales tax on the people."

Russell Keister, of Frostburg, asked the board to repair a crossing on the road leading from Knapp's Meadow to the old Lonaconing Cemetery. He cited that many miners use the road and their cars are endangered by the condition of the crossing. County Engineer Albert Paye was asked to investigate.

White Request Rejected

Clifton W. White, president of the Cumberland Fair Association, requested that the county place shoulders on the road leading from the McMullen Highway to Fairgo, but the plea was rejected. He contended that as many as 8,000 persons use the roadway during the Fair, and persons walking along the road are endangered.

Auto License Tags May Be Delayed

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14 (AP)—Maryland motorists may not get their 1947 license plates until June 1, Motor Vehicles Commissioner W. Lee Elgin disclosed today.

He explained it all depended upon what action the Legislature takes on a bill which would increase commercial vehicle registration fees and provide a flat $10 levy for automobile tags.

Ordinarily, forms for 1947 tags would go into the mails tomorrow and motorists would have to have the new tags on their cars by midnight, March 31.

The General Assembly passed a bill a few weeks ago authorizing the governor to extend the validity of the old plates in event of an emergency.

Elgin said it would take three months to prepare new forms if the flat fee bill passed and $26,500 would be needed to pay for their printing.

He explained that if the Legislature were to defeat the measure within the next few days, the already-prepared standard forms would be mailed out and the new plates would be issued on schedule.

If the bill were defeated later in the month, a short extension in the validity of the present plates will be required, he said.

The commissioner explained that if the new bill passed by March 1, Governor Lane is expected, under his new power, to extend the validity of the present license tags three months while the new forms are being prepared and mailed.

The bill is being held in Senate committee for changes. A hearing was held on the measure recently and many trucking interests objected to some of its provisions.

Three Men Held On Interstate Theft Charges

Committed To Jail In Default Of Bonds

Two Cumberland men and a Pennsylvanian were committed to Allegany County Jail yesterday in default of $1,000 each, one on charges of stealing goods from interstate shipments and the others on charges of transporting stolen goods.

The men identified as Lawrence Joseph Simmons, 26, 545 North Centre street, Jack Wilbert Williams, 25, this city, and DeVon Stanley Beachley, near Garrett, Pa., were arrested by the FBI, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Police and an investigator of the Railway Express Agency.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett yesterday morning the men were ordered held for action of the federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Simmons Drove A Truck

Simmons, a truck driver for the Railway Express, was taken into custody on charges of stealing one Motorola radio shipped from Washington, D. C., one RCA Victor radio, shipped from Baltimore to Franklin, W. Va., one Sunbeam Mixmaster and one electric toaster.

Williams and Beachley were arrested on charges of receiving stolen goods and transporting stolen goods from interstate commerce. The investigating officers said Simmons is charged with committing the alleged thefts between October 11, 1946, and December 22, 1946.

Simmons, according to the officers, transported interstate merchandise from the B. and O. depot to the Western Maryland Railway in his line of work and is charged with taking the stolen goods to the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beachley, 801 Hill Top drive.

Until three weeks ago Simmons and his wife had been living with her parents but at that time the couple had marital trouble and Simmons went to live with his mother on North Centre Street, authorities said.

Investigators said the stolen goods remained at the Beachley residence and that the wife discussed the matter with her brother, DeVon Bachley and Williams, a friend of the family, before it was decided to take the articles to a farm near Garrett, Pa.

Loaded Items In Car

Beachley and Williams loaded the stolen goods in their automobile on January 6 and took them over the state line despite warnings from a friend and later from a representative of the B. and O. Police, it was reported.

Arrested at 7:15 p. m., police said they were called to the home of Miss Jerry Sirbaugh, 412 South Cedar street, after Twigg "got mouthy," and flashed the gun when she told him she was going out with someone else.

Officer Joseph Stitcher said when he arrived at the home, Twigg was standing in a front room, with the revolver in his inside coat pocket. He offered no resistance and give police the gun, they said.

He was docketed as being held for "carrying concealed weapons," and will be given a hearing this morning. Police said there were four rounds in the pistol when Twigg was arrested, and he was carrying a box of shells.

FBI Holds LaVale Man For Robbing Express Company

Irving James DuVall Held In County Jail

A 25-year-old LaVale man with a Bachelor of Science degree, who sought to settle a grudge with the Railway Express Agency, where he was employed, was taken into custody yesterday on charges of stealing goods from interstate shipments on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, FBI authorities said.

Identified as Irving James DuVall, authorities said the man will be given a hearing this morning before James Alfred Avirett, United States Commissioner, after he reportedly signed a statement admitting the thefts which occurred between October 1946 and January, 1947.

DuVall, according to authorities, admitting taking an automobile radio and heater, electric food mixer, table model radio, 81 cigaret lighters, a pair of men's dress shoes and pants, six pairs of sox and a pair of women's bedroom slippers along with chewing gum and confections. With the exception of the confections, bedroom slippers and sox, police said everything had been recovered.

Low On Seniority List

DuVall, who was once injured while unloading a freight car, and suffered the loss of two fingers on his left hand, told authorities, they said, that he stole the articles to even a grudge against the express company.

He declared that he was low on the seniority list, and subject to furlough. Once he went to Baltimore and talked with the company's superintendent about regular employment, authorities quoted him as saying, but was told that he would have to abide by the seniority list.

After that, investigating agents said he told them, he decided to "harm the company by stealing things." He was employed by the express company in the Cumberland warehouse in February, 1944.

A married man, with a five-year-old daughter, authorities said DuVall gave the electric mixing machine to his wife for a Christmas present, and kept the remainder of the articles hidden in the basement. However, the radio and heater were installed in a new car, that DuVall recently bought, authorities stated.

Considerable Loss Noted

The investigation, which led to DuVall's arrest, as well as the apprehension of three other persons who were arraigned yesterday in the commissioner's office, was begun when a considerable loss was noted at the express office, authorities said.

DuVall, apparently transferred merchandise from the B. and O. to the Western Maryland railway for delivery into West Virginia, an agent said, and would drop items into his car as he made the trip.

The investigation was conducted by the FBI, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Police and an investigator of the express company. The crime carries a penalty upon conviction of 10 years in prison or $5,000 fine, or both, for each article stolen, authorities said.

Legislature Asked To Act Against Removing College

Delegates Introduce Joint Resolution

A joint resolution asking the House of Delegates to disapprove any move to discontinue the State Teachers College at Frostburg as a part of the state's educational system was introduced yesterday by the Allegany County delegation.

Introduced yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Education.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said the resolution was introduced because the Maryland Commission on Higher Education on February 1 recommended discontinuance of the college.

The delegation declared that the college "has a long and scholarly record as an integral part of the program of public education in Maryland," and said the proposal to discontinue the institution "raises a serious question of consistency" since it was "advanced at a time when much consideration is being given to a general program of junior college education as a part of the public school system."

State Teachers College at Frostburg "is the only public educational institution in Western Maryland offering scholastic opportunities above the high school level," the delegation stated.

The Legislature was asked to disapprove and register its protest "against any educational policy which would abandon the use of a valuable educational plant and leave one great section of the state without the educational opportunities it long has enjoyed and utilized."

At Annapolis last night, Delegate Charles M. See said the college has "been a landmark for years and we don't want it moved."

2 State Road Men Find Wolfe Silver Buried In Cinders

Elderly Woman's Home Robbed Wednesday

Between $2,000 and $2,500 worth of "beautiful Stieff silver" reported stolen from the home of Mrs. E. F. Wolfe, Route 40, opposite Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, Wednesday morning, was reported recovered last night by Maryland State Police, who said an early arrest is expected.

Police said Harmon Robinette, RFD No. 2, and Glenn Carder, 303 Maryland avenue, both employed by the State Roads Commission, found the silver buried in a cinder pile on Long Hill, Route 40, late Wednesday afternoon, while they were working in that area.

Not knowing that the Wolfe home had been robbed, the two men took the silver home, but yesterday when they read of the burglary in The Cumberland News, they immediately notified State Police, who now have the valuables.

Silver In Pillow Cases

Police said the two men were "rearranging" the cinders, which are used on icy roads, when they discovered two pillow cases and some boxes buried several feet down in the pile. The silver was in the two pillow cases, which were also taken from the Wolfe home, police said.

With the discovery of the stolen articles, described as a complete set of "very beautiful monogrammed" silver, police said they also uncovered several clues that will aid in apprehending the two men who broke into the home.

One of the intruders is reported to have gone to the bed of Mrs. Wolfe, who resides alone, and seated himself beside her while he demanded money, but the other man remained outside in another room.

Mrs. Wolfe told police that the two men broke a window on the first floor to gain entrance. She said they entered the house about 12:30 a. m. and she heard them downstairs talking for several minutes before they came upstairs.

Have Several Tips

The robbery was not reported to police until late Wednesday morning, since the elderly woman, who lives alone, has no telephone. Troopers Harry Holsinger and William McElfish, Maryland State Police, are investigating.

The man who entered the bedroom told Mrs. Wolfe that he and his companion had been drinking, police said, and explained that they wanted money. Mrs. Wolfe declared that she did not keep money in the house, and the men then took the silverware.

Police said they have received several tips from West Virginia that may aid in apprehending the two men.

Campaign Office Opens For Greek War Relief Drive

Seek Funds To Aid Starving Allies

A campaign office has been opened in the Peoples Bank building for the 1947 Cumberland Campaign of the Greek War Relief Association, Inc., according to Harold R. Fletcher, local campaign chairman.

As a part of the 1947 national drive to raise the $12,000,000 to aid stricken Greeks in their homeland, a local group has been organized to raise $6,500 in Cumberland and this vicinity.

Ex-President Herbert Hoover, who made a personal tour of Greece a year ago at the request of President Truman, is national campaign chairman. In a communication to Fletcher, Ex-President Hoover declared that the Greeks suffered greater loss during the war than any other single country. Agriculture and industry have been systematically destroyed, and people are in a state of starvation and illness and most are without shelter.

This particular campaign, Fletcher said, is to provide funds to provide medical care, food and emergency shelter to the Greeks, until the little country can again stand on its own feet as a Democracy to which system of government it still clings.

Joseph J. Ryland is treasurer of the campaign group here, and contributions can be sent directly to him at the Peoples Bank, Fletcher declared. F. Allan Weatherholt is acting as secretary to the campaign committee, and is assisting in planning a solicitation for local funds.

Members of the committee include Milton Bernstein, Paul E. Myers, Mrs. Aurelia S. Becker, Rev. William A. Eisenberger, Marcus A. Naughton, Clarence Lippel, Cilbert A. Rehbeck, Wesley A. McGraw, Albert H. Macy, D. Clifford Goodfellow, Ervin Steinla, Mrs. Francina Lichtenstein.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, William V. Keegan, William H. Kight, John H. Mosner, Thomas F. Conlon, G. Louis Spoerl, Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, E. F. Soehner, Mrs. Rngela W. Rowley, Gus Anthony, Pete Dendrenos, Anthony D. Antonakos, Louis P. Soterakos, James Crom, Michael Falandas, Peter Koumanis, Robert E. Freedland, Edgar A. Dashiell and Arthur B. Gibson.

Three nationwide radio broadcasts have been announced to help publicize the national and community campaigns. The first will be on Phil Baker's Columbia Broadcasting System program tomorrow at 10 to 10:30 p. m. The next will be on the Screen Actor's Guild, over Columbia, February 17 from 10 to 10:30 p. m. and the third will be at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, February 18, over CBS, when "Red" Barber will interview Gene Tunney, on behalf of Greek Relief.

Cresaptown Legion Home Is Robbed

State police last night were investigating a reported robbery at the Cresaptown American Legion Home that netted the thieves approximately $100 in cash and "several" fifths of whisky, after it was discovered yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

The theft was discovered yesterday morning by a barkeeper, identified as "Joke" Holler, and reported to police. The money, proceeds of the bar, was kept in a hiding place in the bar room, police said, adding that nothing else was disturbed.

The home was recently opened after the Cresaptown Post received its charter last year.

Sale Of C. And O. Canal Property To City Sought

See Introduces Resolution In House

Petitioning the Secretary of the Interior to sell to the Mayor and Council of Cumberland the old C. and O. Canal property within the city limits, a joint resolution was introduced in the House of Delegates yesterday by Delegate Charles M. See.

The land is now owned by the Interior Department's Division of Public Parks, and See asks that it be sold to Cumberland at a "nominal consideration."

The resolution points out that Cumberland authorities have evolved plans for construction of a highway on the land, which abuts the Potomac River and Wills Creek within the city.

"Unsightly And Unsanitary"

See's resolution declared that the land "has long since fallen into disuse and has become unsightly and unsanitary and detrimental to the health and general well-being" of Cumberland residents.

He said it is his opinion that the property "will not be used in the future as a waterway because of more modern transportation" methods.

In addition to proposed construction of a highway on the land, See said if it was acquired it also be used for "sewerage, housing and recreational purposes."

The projected highway, with sewage conduits underneath, would relieve traffic congestion in the city, the resolution stated, and provide a fast route to the municipal airport.

A copy of the resolution will be mailed to the Secretary of the Interior, one to each of Maryland's United States Senators and to each of Maryland's members of the House of Representatives, See said.

Will Bear Great Seal

He added that the copies will be mailed by the secretary of state and will bear the Great Seal of Maryland.

The resolution was referred to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County delegation, said yesterday afternoon that the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate's Financial Committee started joint hearings on the budget. Whitworth is a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

West Va. Teachers May Strike If Pay Bill Is Changed

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 14. (AP)—Any additional changes in the State Education Association salary bill and three companion tax measures now pending in the Senate might send half of West Virginia's teachers out on strike, a Mineral County school teacher warned today.

President E. Michael Welshonce of the Mineral County Federation of Teachers added that "at least two other counties in the state have promised to back a walkout, and I believe half the teachers in the state would join us if the bill is amended."

The salary measure to which he referred would provide raises of from $30 to $60 a month for teachers, and would result in additional raises based on experience.

Earlier, the Pleasants County Classroom Teachers Association had asked related county affiliates to back a proposal to take "definite action" if the SEA salary bill and the revenue measures are not passed by the Legislature by February 22.

The House yesterday passed the teacher salary bill and three tax measures on horse racing, beer and cigarettes, and sent them on to the Senate.

SEA President Rex Smith of Morgantown commented "I am confident that the school people throughout the state have no intention of taking hasty action which might be detrimental to their cause."

Craft Unions Ask Action On Schools

The Building and Construction Trades Council last night passed a resolution calling for the construction of school buildings at Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Ellerslie this year, George W. Lucas, president, reported.

Lucas said the group pointed out that money for the buildings has been approved by the state legislature and that the group sees no reason why school children of this county should continue to put up with crowded conditions.

The Board of Education has recommended to the Allegany County delegation of the General Assembly that the building program, so far as the three above mentioned buildings are concerned, be deferred at least until building costs become more definitely evident. They pointed out the 1941 legislature authorized a bond issue of $800,000 for the buildings while the present estimated cost is $2,895,000.

Robert A. Warner, Philadelphia, AFL organizer, who installed 1947 officers, urged members to keep abreast of the current legislative program and to protest passage of bills which might restrict labor.

The wage question was not discussed at the meeting, he added.

Suggest Five New Revenue Sources

Several new revenue proposals were made by representatives of the Allegany Trades Council to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday, as they also filed a formal protest against a two cent consumers sales tax.

F. Patrick Allender, chairman of the Trades Council committee, and Clarence E. Bramble, secretary, appeared before the board and requested licensing of slot machines, increasing liquor license fees to clubs, one dollar tax per gallon on liquor, removal of tax exemptions on clubs, etc., where liquor is sold, and consideration of a plan to put Allegany County in the wholesale liquor business.

The union representatives commented that a general sales tax would work a hardship on many people in the lower income brackets, and said the tax bill now before the General Assembly is unfair, but since other revenue is needed, it should come from sources other than real estate taxes.

Allender then presented a letter setting forth the objections and suggestions of the organized labor groups as follows:

"Inasmuch as we realize the necessity of raising more revenue to meet the coming budget, we have given a great deal of consideration and study to ways and means of raising the necessary money. We are suggesting to you several things for your consideration:

"1. Raise the license fee for clubs to the same level as other retail liquor licenses. (There are more club licenses than 'regular' licenses issued in the county.)

"2. All real estate belonging to fraternal organizations or clubs which are selling liquor, beer and lunches be returned to the tax books. (Under state law such organizations are exempt from paying taxes on real estate.)

"License Slot Machines"

"3 Legalize slot machines, tip boards, punch boards and any like gaming devices and place a heavy tax thereon.

"4. Give serious consideration to Allegany County entering the wholesale liquor business.

"5. Place one dollar tax on each gallon of liquor sold in Allegany County.

"We feel sure that some of these suggestions can be worked out and enough revenue raised that it will not be necessary to place the burden of a sales tax on the people."

Russell Keister, of Frostburg, asked the board to repair a crossing on the road leading from Knapp's Meadow to the old Lonaconing Cemetery. He cited that many miners use the road and their cars are endangered by the condition of the crossing. County Engineer Albert Paye was asked to investigate.

White Request Rejected

Clifton W. White, president of the Cumberland Fair Association, requested that the county place shoulders on the road leading from the McMullen Highway to Fairgo, but the plea was rejected. He contended that as many as 8,000 persons use the roadway during the Fair, and persons walking along the road are endangered.

Auto License Tags May Be Delayed

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14 (AP)—Maryland motorists may not get their 1947 license plates until June 1, Motor Vehicles Commissioner W. Lee Elgin disclosed today.

He explained it all depended upon what action the Legislature takes on a bill which would increase commercial vehicle registration fees and provide a flat $10 levy for automobile tags.

Ordinarily, forms for 1947 tags would go into the mails tomorrow and motorists would have to have the new tags on their cars by midnight, March 31.

The General Assembly passed a bill a few weeks ago authorizing the governor to extend the validity of the old plates in event of an emergency.

Elgin said it would take three months to prepare new forms if the flat fee bill passed and $26,500 would be needed to pay for their printing.

He explained that if the Legislature were to defeat the measure within the next few days, the already-prepared standard forms would be mailed out and the new plates would be issued on schedule.

If the bill were defeated later in the month, a short extension in the validity of the present plates will be required, he said.

The commissioner explained that if the new bill passed by March 1, Governor Lane is expected, under his new power, to extend the validity of the present license tags three months while the new forms are being prepared and mailed.

The bill is being held in Senate committee for changes. A hearing was held on the measure recently and many trucking interests objected to some of its provisions.

Three Men Held On Interstate Theft Charges

Committed To Jail In Default Of Bonds

Two Cumberland men and a Pennsylvanian were committed to Allegany County Jail yesterday in default of $1,000 each, one on charges of stealing goods from interstate shipments and the others on charges of transporting stolen goods.

The men identified as Lawrence Joseph Simmons, 26, 545 North Centre street, Jack Wilbert Williams, 25, this city, and DeVon Stanley Beachley, near Garrett, Pa., were arrested by the FBI, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Police and an investigator of the Railway Express Agency.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett yesterday morning the men were ordered held for action of the federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Simmons Drove A Truck

Simmons, a truck driver for the Railway Express, was taken into custody on charges of stealing one Motorola radio shipped from Washington, D. C., one RCA Victor radio, shipped from Baltimore to Franklin, W. Va., one Sunbeam Mixmaster and one electric toaster.

Williams and Beachley were arrested on charges of receiving stolen goods and transporting stolen goods from interstate commerce. The investigating officers said Simmons is charged with committing the alleged thefts between October 11, 1946, and December 22, 1946.

Simmons, according to the officers, transported interstate merchandise from the B. and O. depot to the Western Maryland Railway in his line of work and is charged with taking the stolen goods to the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beachley, 801 Hill Top drive.

Until three weeks ago Simmons and his wife had been living with her parents but at that time the couple had marital trouble and Simmons went to live with his mother on North Centre Street, authorities said.

Investigators said the stolen goods remained at the Beachley residence and that the wife discussed the matter with her brother, DeVon Bachley and Williams, a friend of the family, before it was decided to take the articles to a farm near Garrett, Pa.

Loaded Items In Car

Beachley and Williams loaded the stolen goods in their automobile on January 6 and took them over the state line despite warnings from a friend and later from a representative of the B. and O. Police, it was reported.

Arrested at 7:15 p. m., police said they were called to the home of Miss Jerry Sirbaugh, 412 South Cedar street, after Twigg "got mouthy," and flashed the gun when she told him she was going out with someone else.

Officer Joseph Stitcher said when he arrived at the home, Twigg was standing in a front room, with the revolver in his inside coat pocket. He offered no resistance and give police the gun, they said.

He was docketed as being held for "carrying concealed weapons," and will be given a hearing this morning. Police said there were four rounds in the pistol when Twigg was arrested, and he was carrying a box of shells.

The gas, she added, struck Warner in the face and clothes and and some of the substance froze solid upon his clothes.

FBI Holds LaVale Man For Robbing Express Company

Irving James DuVall Held In County Jail

A 25-year-old LaVale man with a Bachelor of Science degree, who sought to settle a grudge with the Railway Express Agency, where he was employed, was taken into custody yesterday on charges of stealing goods from interstate shipments on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, FBI authorities said.

Identified as Irving James DuVall, authorities said the man will be given a hearing this morning before James Alfred Avirett, United States Commissioner, after he reportedly signed a statement admitting the thefts which occurred between October 1946 and January, 1947.

DuVall, according to authorities, admitting taking an automobile radio and heater, electric food mixer, table model radio, 81 cigaret lighters, a pair of men's dress shoes and pants, six pairs of sox and a pair of women's bedroom slippers along with chewing gum and confections. With the exception of the confections, bedroom slippers and sox, police said everything had been recovered.

Low On Seniority List

DuVall, who was once injured while unloading a freight car, and suffered the loss of two fingers on his left hand, told authorities, they said, that he stole the articles to even a grudge against the express company.

He declared that he was low on the seniority list, and subject to furlough. Once he went to Baltimore and talked with the company's superintendent about regular employment, authorities quoted him as saying, but was told that he would have to abide by the seniority list.

After that, investigating agents said he told them, he decided to "harm the company by stealing things." He was employed by the express company in the Cumberland warehouse in February, 1944.

A married man, with a five-year-old daughter, authorities said DuVall gave the electric mixing machine to his wife for a Christmas present, and kept the remainder of the articles hidden in the basement. However, the radio and heater were installed in a new car, that DuVall recently bought, authorities stated.

Considerable Loss Noted

The investigation, which led to DuVall's arrest, as well as the apprehension of three other persons who were arraigned yesterday in the commissioner's office, was begun when a considerable loss was noted at the express office, authorities said.

DuVall, apparently transferred merchandise from the B. and O. to the Western Maryland railway for delivery into West Virginia, an agent said, and would drop items into his car as he made the trip.

The investigation was conducted by the FBI, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Police and an investigator of the express company. The crime carries a penalty upon conviction of 10 years in prison or $5,000 fine, or both, for each article stolen, authorities said.

Legislature Asked To Act Against Removing College

Delegates Introduce Joint Resolution

A joint resolution asking the House of Delegates to disapprove any move to discontinue the State Teachers College at Frostburg as a part of the state's educational system was introduced yesterday by the Allegany County delegation.

Introduced yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Education.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said the resolution was introduced because the Maryland Commission on Higher Education on February 1 recommended discontinuance of the college.

The delegation declared that the college "has a long and scholarly record as an integral part of the program of public education in Maryland," and said the proposal to discontinue the institution "raises a serious question of consistency" since it was "advanced at a time when much consideration is being given to a general program of junior college education as a part of the public school system."

State Teachers College at Frostburg "is the only public educational institution in Western Maryland offering scholastic opportunities above the high school level," the delegation stated.

The Legislature was asked to disapprove and register its protest "against any educational policy which would abandon the use of a valuable educational plant and leave one great section of the state without the educational opportunities it long has enjoyed and utilized."

At Annapolis last night, Delegate Charles M. See said the college has "been a landmark for years and we don't want it moved."

District 16 Firemen Quench Forest Blaze

District 16, Oldtown Road Volunteer Firemen fought for almost three hours yesterday to bring under control a fire which burned over about five acres of woods on Orange Mountain, near the Stephen Knippenberg home, four miles from here.

Fire Chief John Milkowski said several firemen were slightly burned by the flames which broke out about 1:30 p. m. The same company was called to Mexico Farms at 5:30 p. m. to extinguish a grass fire which burned over about eight acres of land.
